MATRIMONIAL ITEMS.

In Cincinnati, recently, a widow lady, her two sons and three daughters, were all married on the same day.

Mrs. Scovill, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, is training for a running match, and Mr. Scovill sues for a divorce in consequence.

A lady correspondent, who not long ago attended a Mormon meeting in England, says if the Mormon men, as a rule, resemble the "others" who officiated on that occasion she would much rather have a claim to a fractional part only of one of them than to be his sole wife.

An Indiana editor declined to publish the proceedings in a divorce case for two reasons: First, because some of his friends were mixed up with it, and he did not wish to publish the fact; and second, because some of his enemies were interested, and threatened to rawhide him if their names appeared in his column.

According to the London Court Journal, Miss Jerome, of New York, is about to marry Lord Churchill, third son of the Duke of Marlborough.

The editor of the Christian Register thinks that if some of our restless "reformers" could attend a few golden weddings they might obtain a new and wholesome revelation of the beauty and dignity of permanent marriage.

A man in Eldora, Iowa, married again the week after his wife's death, and his neighbors gave him a deafening charivari. The bridegroom finally appeared at a window and administered a scathing rebuke to the crowd in this manner: "A'nt you ashamed of yourselves to be making a noise about my house when a funeral took place here but four days ago?"

Ex-Mayor Hall, of New York, in a humorous lecture on "Love, Marriage and Divorce," speaking of sudden marriages, said he had known of a breakfast acquaintance that grew into a lunch declaration, and ended in a marriage at dinner, finished by a divorce in two or three weeks with the first recrimination over the ten minutes of refreshment at some station.

CONNUBIAL COUPLES.

A New York correspondent writes to the Chicago Tribune as follows: This is the season for connubial couples to visit the metropolis on wedding tours, and they are seen in numbers every day at the Broadway hotels. Their incipient matrimonial condition can be detected at a glance and at the longest range. Inasmuch as marriage is in the way of nature and in accordance with time-honored custom, I cannot imagine why those who enter into it should appear awkward and ridiculous. Newly-wedded pairs are among the absurdest of creatures. They seem so utterly silly, so unconsciously spoony, that they never flash across my vision without exciting my profoundest pity. All their attempts to conceal their state, of which we are sincerely ashamed, only result in their rendering it ludicrously conspicuous. Every servant, porter, bell-boy and bootblack in and about a hotel knows that they are novices in matrimony, and never refrains from smiling significantly as they go by. One of the distinguished marks of the hymeneal victims is their complete newness—not of character alone, but of every article of attire. Even to the cuffs of their boots their freshness shines, and their movement and manner seem to be as fresh as their clothes. The fact that they are universally recognized always annoys them and provokes their constant endeavor to appear like old married folks. Wouldn't it be well, under the circumstances, for engaged persons to practice matrimonial ways for some months before they fairly put on the nuptial noose? If they would call each other Mr. and Mrs. Jones, wear garments that had somewhat been used, and show supreme indifference to one another, perhaps they might succeed in imposing on the public; but so long as they indulge in "Dear" and "Darling," and in startling new kitchen, and look like fools generally, they must be detected for what they are.

THE RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

In printing the following communication it must not be supposed that THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN favors or endorses all it contains. Denunciations are not arguments, neither are accusations of the poor male gender proofs positive of their utter worthlessness.

"No State shall enforce laws to abridge the rights, privileges and immunities of the citizens."

To the Editor of the National Republican:

Sir: Where do men get their authority to enforce the fraudulent and unconstitutional laws that disgrace the statute books of every State in the Union? When we women pay taxes our rights are the same as men's; if not, how can we be tried by the same laws? State laws must conform to the letter and spirit of the Constitution, or they are void and must be treated as a nullity. We claim a right to be tried by a jury of our peers. Who ever heard of a woman being tried by her peers? Why can't men comprehend what a mockery and farce it is for all their wise babble about equal rights? When the wife dies the husband, by law and courtesy, occupies the property during his life; when the husband dies no such law or courtesy is known. Although we pay the same taxes, her equal rights cease; her home can be broken, her property appraised, sold at auction, and squandered among men; and these same men can slander, defame and defraud; if she brings suit they can stifle investigation, poison the channels of justice by subornation of perjury and cause the doors of justice to be slammed in her face; lawyers can be induced to delay matters unwarrantably, and by their negligence in the examination of witnesses we have seen decided in our courts the darkest annals of the human race might be challenged for a parallel to the robberies that are being perpetrated on the tax-payers of the present day. Nothing but a sickening succession of robbery; and yet men affect astonishment when we demand justice from this high-handed pillage, venality and tyranny. We are oppressed without remedy or redress from legalized cormorants and vampires. We have no escape, for by every possible device which cupidity and a versatile capability for wrong could suggest we are bound hand and foot, and before our very eyes and in the face of the whole country and the civilized world, against our protests, remonstrances, appeals and prayers, we are preyed upon at will. The policy of oppression, of humiliation, of robbery is pursued against us. Organized gangs of thieves perjure, plunder, defame and defraud, while a corrupt judiciary stifles investigations to cover the startling corruptions that disgrace the country.

When you talk about equal rights don't forget this is the country where a judge threatened Mrs. Rice with jail if she did not assign her right to her own property; where Mrs. Kelley was shot in her own house because she had not invited a man; where a woman was knocked down in broad day light on the corner of Fifteenth and K streets, and Mrs. Miller had both her eyes gouged out, here in this city, and no redress for these outrages. A man in York State instantly two escapes to swear his wife is crazy. On this perjury the mother of his only son is incarcerated in the Lunatic Asylum of Connecticut. "Ye wonder Madame Roland says, 'Oh, Liberty! what crimes are committed in thy name!'" JOHNSON.

USEFUL HOUSEHOLD RECEIPTS.

To Roast a Guinea Fowl—Pick, clean and singe nicely; make a slit in the back part of the neck and take out the craw, leaving on the head, cut off the claws and turn the head under the wing. Stuff with sausage meat and bake, basing frequently; when nearly done sprinkle with flour and a little salt, and baste with melted butter. Serve with gravy in the dish and bread sauce in a sauce tureen. A few bread crumbs and a beaten egg should be added to the stuffing of sausage meat. Cover, if necessary, while baking, with a piece of paper to prevent scorching.

Potato Salad—Cut a dozen cold boiled potatoes in thin slices and mix them thoroughly with a little onion, chopped very fine, a teaspoonful of salad oil or melted butter, a tablespoonful of vinegar and a half a gill of vinegar. This makes a nice relish for tea or lunch.

Vinegar—A correspondent sends a recipe for making vinegar, which may be valuable to those living in regions where apples are scarce: To one gallon of water add one and one quarter pound of brown sugar and half a gill of yeast. Keep it at a temperature of eighty degrees for three or four days, then draw it off and add an ounce each of cut raisins and cream tartar. In a few weeks it will be ready for use.

Apple Cake—Two cups of stewed apples boiled in two cups of molasses. Drain off the molasses (for the cake) from the apples, add two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of soda, four of flour, one cup of butter, one cup of sour milk; spice to suit. Then add the apple, (which was drained as above.) The apple should be soaked the night before stewing for the cake.

Crullers—Two cups of sugar, one of sweet milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful of butter, a teaspoonful and a half of baking powder or a teaspoonful of cream tartar, and half that quantity of soda; flour till it is stiff as pancrust, roll thin, cut in forms and fry. We always get all the cakes ready to fry, and then sit down and fry them, otherwise the process is tedious and fatiguing. If they cook too much them a little harder or work in another egg.

To Cook Tripe—Boil it in a good deal of water, with a handful of salt thrown in, till it is easily penetrated with a straw; drain off the water and place the tripe in an earthen dish and cover with vinegar. When cold, wipe dry with soft cloths, lay in flour and fry in butter. It will keep several days in vinegar, and the last will be best.

Cider Cake—One teacup butter, three teacups sugar, two teacups flour, one teaspoonful soda in two tablespoonfuls warm water, one grated nutmeg and one half teacup milk; mix and add one teacup cider and four more teacups flour.

Butter Pie—Cover your pie tin with crust as for custard pie. Take a piece of fresh butter the size of an egg, two thirds cup sugar, one of sweet cream, one tablespoonful of flour, stir butter, flour, and sugar together, then stir in the cream. Pour in the tin and lay strips of crust across. Bake till brown. This is a most excellent pie.

Cold Cream.—This recipe will be found very nice for making a pleasant salve for chapped hands and lips. Shave very fine one tablespoonful of best spermaceti; take two tablespoonfuls of pure olive oil, and one tablespoonful of white wax, also cut into fine shavings. Put all mixed together in a small cup placed in a larger vessel of hot water. Let the water boil around it, and stir gently all the time until the mixture is of the consistency of richest cream. Just as you remove the salve from the fire add two drops of geranium, otto of rose, and put away for use in a small china gallipot, closely covered with a bit of lid.

To Preserve Quinces.—Peel, quarter and core; boil until tender; skim out, and do not use the liquor they are boiled in, but use it for jelly; slice the peels and cores. Make a syrup of the sugar, using pound for pound; add the quinces, a few at a time; boil until done; pour this syrup over the quinces. Make the juice jelly the usual way.

Monday afternoon four white men, armed and disguised, representing themselves to be United States detectives in search of counterfeit money, visited the house of Henry Dearing, a small farmer on the Washington turnpike, near Baltimore. After entering the house pistols were presented at the heads of Mr. and Mrs. Dearing, and the latter compelled to disclose where their money was kept. The robbers alone securing about two hundred and fifty dollars, made their escape from the house, but were captured Monday in Baltimore.
