FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

The Silver Bill Hanging Fire in the House.

An Appropriation Looking to a Bimetallic Conference—Interesting Debate on the Silver Bill—Several Amendments Acted Upon—The Springer Amendment Rejected—No Monday Session.

SENATE.

SATURDAY, May 17.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill.

Among the amendments agreed to was one offered by Mr. Voorhees, from the joint committee on the library, appropriating $5,000 for the purchase of works of art.

Mr. KERNAN, for Mr. Bayard (who has been called from the city), offered an amendment, recommended by the Committee on Finance, appropriating $20,000 for the diplomatic and consular service, to be expended at the discretion of the President of the United States. The reason for this amendment is there is now a movement in Europe with a view to arrange for a bi-metallic standard, and it might be thought advisable by the State Department to send a representative thither to take part in the proceedings. The amendment was agreed to.

During the debate on an amendment on the subject of clerks in the Post-Office Department, a colloquy occurred between Messrs. Saulsbury and Windom, in which the latter said he would not join the former in his wish to economize expenses by reducing the army, which is required for the protection of the frontier from the attacks of Indians.

Mr. SAULSBURY remarked he had argued that he would not so use the army as to bring odium upon it by surrounding the polls with troops, requiring its officers to perform duties repugnant to their sense of honor.

Mr. WINDOM would like to ask the Senator a question. What amount of money voted for the army had been expended in the use of troops at the polls?;

A protracted colloquy ensued between Messrs. Saulsbury, Windom, Edmunds, and Conkling respecting the use of troops during the rebellion to prevent disloyal men from voting, Mr. SAULSBURY asserting that it was distasteful to the people of Delaware and the others defending the action of President Lincoln and General Schenck.

The Senate, at fifteen minutes to four o'clock, went into executive session, and, when the doors were opened, adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Immediately after the reading of the journal the House proceeded to the consideration of the business of the morning hour, being the bill amending the Statutes relative to the removal of causes from State to Federal courts.

Mr. MCLANE concluded his argument in favor of the bill, taking the ground that wherever State law or State sovereignty is well defined and understood, and where indictments are found under such State law, they should not be removable to Federal courts.

Mr. UNDERWOOD argued in opposition to the bill, holding that every citizen of a State, when he had a dispute with a citizen of another State, had a constitutional right to have the United States Court pass upon the question in controversy, and that the Statutes, which it was proposed to repeal or amend, simply gave effect to that constitutional right.

Pending action on the bill the morning hour expired, and the House resumed the consideration of the Warner silver bill.

The question was on the third section of the bill and the amendment thereto, the first amendment being one offered by Mr. Belford, of Colorado, confirming the privilege of free coinage to silver mined in the United States.

Mr. BELFORD spoke in support of his amendment.

Mr. SPRINGER spoke in support of his amendment (to which Mr. Belford's amendment was offered).

Mr. LOUNSBERY opposed the bill as tending to embarrass the national finances, which were now in a healthy condition.

Mr. BUCKNER opposed Mr. Springer's amendment as an insidious proposition, utterly destructive of the whole theory on which this bill was founded.

Mr. NEWBERRY opposed the bill. It was not based upon facts, but upon theories, opinions, and guesses of the wildest kind. Why were the streets of Washington to-day filled with men who had bullion piled up in New York, if not for the purpose of seeing that this bill was passed, and of lobbying it through? He was thinking of offering an amendment to the bill providing that any owner of paper pulp might deposit the same at the Treasury and receive therefor legal-tender notes of the same dimensions of those now in use.

Mr. BUCHNER said that the question was whether the Government should have a seigniorage on coinage or whether the country should have a free coinage, and argued that when a seigniorage was put upon coin it would be driven out of the mints.

Mr. EINSTEIN argued to show that the benefit of this wonderful bill—this absurdity—would accrue solely to the owner of silver bullion and bankers and brokers.

Mr. REAGAN opposed Mr. Springer's amendment. It was an insidious mode of defeating the purpose of the bill. No more insidious blow could have been stricken at the bill than the one struck by that amendment.

The vote was then taken on Mr. BELFORD's amendment, and it was adopted—yeas, 106; nays, 105—the Speaker casting the deciding vote, amid applause on the Democratic side.

Mr. SPRINGER's amendment, as amended by Mr. Ewing, was then rejected—yeas, 38; nays, 171—and the House then at 4:40, on motion of Mr. Clymer, adjourned until Tuesday.

GEORGETOWN NEWS.

Collected by Republican Reporters.

Yesterday afternoon Officer Meyers brought to the station two young fugitives from the Washington City Orphan Asylum. Their names are William Dyer and John Sadler, aged ten years. Relatives of the latter subsequently claimed the young Bohemian and took him home. William Dyer yet remains in the station, and is quite sick, owing no doubt to his long tramp and lack of proper food. On account of the look of sorrow depicted on his childish face the reporter questioned the little fellow to learn the cause of his troubles. Willie said that they did not treat him good in the Asylum, and gave him a very poor bed and water to eat, and that his companion persuaded him to run away. When captured they had wandered as far as the Chain Bridge.

Yesterday evening Mr. John Stanton, a saloon-keeper on Bridge street, arrived at the station in company with an officer, who had a tight grip upon a young African creature, and complained that the victim had been periodically stealing cigars wine, &c., from his establishment. The amateur purloiner had climbed through a small window, situated high up, and, with a rope tied around his waist, was lowered by a companion, and the spoils divided between them. The young sable descendant is now reflecting upon the errors of his way.

In the chicken-stealing match the other day Andrew Jackson, Williams, John Taylor, and Grayson were each awarded twenty days by His Honor Justice Snell. Some partiality was shown to D. Lewis, one of the contestants, because a fine fowling-piece was found at his house, for which he could give no account and D. Lewis was awarded two months in jail. The chickens were owned by William H. Minis, of 519 Twenty-second street.

Charles Douglass, a florist, fifty years of age, and the happy possessor of three wives, was yesterday hauled up for insulting ladies on Pennsylvania avenue. Charles Douglass was tendered the use of cell No. 4 for the evening.
