IT IS CONFIDENTLY ASSERTED THAT
YELLOW FEVER
Can be PREVENTED by the use of WARNER'S
Safe Kidney & Liver Cure, in connection with
WARNER'S SAFE PILLS.

All authorities on the subject declare Yellow Fever to be a Blood Poison. The breathing of a malarial infected atmosphere acting directly on the blood.

It is known, admitted, and in writing vouched for, that

Warner's Safe Kidney & Liver Cure

in connection with WARNER'S SAFE PILLS, acting, as it does, directly upon the organs—the Kidneys and Liver—that cleanse and purify the blood, is the best and only effective blood purifier now known.

Woman's Thoughts About Women.

It is excusable, perhaps, even in a woman, at this period of our—politics, to differ from her own or the opposite sex. A recent discussion at a meeting of suffragists was upon the subject, "Woman's Duty Toward Woman," and in compliance with this duty the following is written:

That surging, uncertain element known as the woman's rights advocates, whatever of evil it contains, and whether negatively or positively, conduces toward one good; for notwithstanding natural aversions to its aims and ends, we cannot fail to recognize an indirect good resulting therefrom, it being the agitation and wholesome activity that it engenders among the opposing and otherwise silent party. There are women of truest worth and most genuine influence, whose lives are obscure from the public, and whose influence would be far hidden beneath their native modesty were it not for the loquacious and positive errors of the suffragists.

Agitation and controversy are always necessary to properly develope the best qualities in either of two parties, or to evade and trample the wrong, by a clear denunciation of the right. Here, we believe, lies the good, if any exists, in the bold advocacy of woman's suffrage. While we are forced to believe that many of the suffragists, and a few, also, of our lady lecturers, are not too feminine, or indeed, as we would wish them, enough modest, and that they thereby give a derogatory character to the class of which they profess to be a type, yet we are willing and glad to admit that it is erroneous to consider the class as faithfully represented by its leaders best known to the public.

There are women in public life whose histories give honor to their name; whose homes are the embodiment of domestic graces, dignity and usefulness. Of this class are such well and highly known in the lecture field as Mrs. Mary Livermore, of whom, it is said, sought the platform from necessity to make her home what it is. Mrs. Stowe, another of whom to speak is not to be ashamed, is the centre of a home where domestic and useful children cluster about her and from which shines forth that home brilliancy so great a part of woman's best glory. Few such there are who create and never destroy the true dignity of woman in whatever chosen sphere they are found, detracting none from the graces of the home, while they endeavor to add much to the stage.

Such rights for woman as freedom of mind, higher education, the entering of new circles,—spheres within her own sphere, as wheels within the great circumference wheel, circled about woman by a hand higher than her own, are hers incontestably, and destined for her possession as her own birthright. Only in the proper use of these can she attain the superiority of her sex and of her rights. With pride and sympathy we can applaud the deeds and influence of Mrs. Agassiz toward woman's advancement and higher education. And we hope her deeds will convince as strongly as they prove that woman's influence over the world and society lies in the use of her own rights, not in the clamoring for others' rights, and that true woman can touch the fruit of woman's rights, by one reach, as did Mrs. Agassiz and her co-workers; without having once soiled her fingers or garments by brushing through the slush of politics.

Our rights, God said, and we hope woman's life will not contradict, are in our intellects and in our hearts, through which shines the light of the world's homes.

If these rights are used, in them springs forth the archimedean lever that has power to uplift the lowliest of women to an exalted station and influence. Woman's higher education cannot come by woman's dissension. Parody, in fact, cannot make parallels in action. She has no need of votes to cast away that which she possesses; nor to exchange all that is good in her for much that can and will thus be made evil.

There are modest homes too long ennobled and beautified by woman to admit of any frivolous reflections. The purest daisies of chastity, the sweetest scents of roses modest, the clinging tendrils of ivy, true and faithful, have too long adorned and hung about the holy altars of honored mothers and sisters, for the thorns and briers of the rough-hewn woodland to add any beauty or charm to its chancel. A divine hand, incapable of injustice, has drawn a full length picture of a noble and true woman—in that sense a perfect and ideal one—and holy lips, prone to all gentleness and charity and love, have addressed their sharpest rebukes to the pride and arrogance, the ambition and hypocrisy, that lead woman away from womanhood. Disraeli has said truly and rebukingly, "Woman can rise no higher than womanhood, whatever be her title." He who rejected the emptiness of a title, and as if to prove his proud appreciation of a noble woman, desired it bestowed upon the wife of his affections, that through her nobility it might receive its royalty, and that through the charm of her beaut
