Largest Legitimate Morning Circulation in the District.

WASHINGTON, JUNE 4, 1880.

THE adoption of the new tenth rule by the Chicago convention will do away with a very bad feature of the republican party organization, viz.: the representation in nominating conventions of the territories and this District. The provision giving delegates to mere geographical sub-divisions of the country destitute of political power is anomalous and unjust. It began, we believe, in the hurrah over free Kansas in the convention of 1856, when the party was young. In the present convention there are eight territories and the District, represented by eighteen delegates. It is quite probable that the votes cast by them may nominate a candidate, and yet the men casting them do not represent any potent political body. It would be quite as proper to have Alaska represented, and nearly as sensible to give the women-rights delegates the privilege of a vote. The importance of these delegates is also seen in the composition of the important committees of the convention that on credentials [illegible] a justice of the peace, weighs as much as the state of New York, with its million of voters and its thirty-five electors in the college. The democratic party has wisely avoided such difficulties, only states being allowed votes in their conventions.

It is also certain that the action of the convention on the Illinois contest will settle for the future the method of appointing delegates to national conventions. There will be this good brought out of the evil of the fight in Cook county. Hereafter, state conventions will elect the senatorial delegates only. This will be generally more satisfactory and the preferences of the whole people will be more clearly and freely ascertained. We take it, also, that the state and district conventions will be more particular in selecting men to represent them. The dishonorable action of such men as WOODIN and ROBERTSON, of New York, has made it evident that the ordinary proprieties of political and personal conduct cannot be relied upon to bind men to the observance of their faith to their constituents.

HAVE patience.

NOW comes the tug of war.

O! FOR an hour of the other CHANDLER.

THE New York Tribune yesterday remarked: "So Mr. CAMERON subsides. It "was time." Should the Tribune's candidate be selected we will hear another cry in the fall: "Help me, CASSIUS, or I sink!"

ONE of the disgusted independent democrats of the South Carolina convention remarked at its close: "If this ticket is "elected, niggers and poor whites will have "to go home at 9 o'clock and stay there, "as they did before the war."

WE are afraid General HANCOCK has pricked his boom. An interviewer reports him as declaring that no man can be elected president who favors the old states rights theory or who would countenance the abrogation of the fifteenth amendment.

THE New York stock market has shown some improvement for the past few days. The secretary of the treasury purchased three millions of government bonds on Wednesday, among them four per cents., at 108.9. The capitalists who bought these bonds at par a few months ago have had a good thing.

A LONG letter is published in the Alexandria Gazette of Wednesday, signed by JOHN W. FAIRFAX, of Prince William county, Virginia. The writer urges all the good and true men in Virginia to unite in the support of General GRANT for the presidency. He shows the folly of a longer alliance with the democrats of the north, who deserted the south in her hours of distress, and advocates the wisdom of seeking friends who have the power, magnanimity and courage to benefit that section. The writer's ticket is GRANT for president, LONGSTREET for vice-president, "two as "gallant Americans as ever drew swords."

THE importance of the action of the New York legislature in authorizing the state to act as trustee in certain cases is attracting the attention of southern papers. The New York law allows parties holding delinquent or repudiated bonds of other states to transfer them to the state in order that suit may be brought in United States courts in the name of the state for the recovery of the debts. There are over $200,000,000 of such bonds owned by citizens of New York. New Hampshire had already adopted a proposition of similar character, but it failed when put to the test. The law of New York is carefully considered, and it is thought that it will stand fire in the courts. Under it suits are now being prepared against Virginia, South Carolina and Minnesota.

It is certainly to be hoped that the questions involved will be thoroughly considered and settled by the supreme court of the United States. There ought to be some power in the federal courts to enforce the payment of state debts, or the creation of such debts ought to be prohibited. As it is, we think the foreign holder of delinquent or repudiated state bonds has a fair claim against the general government either for aid to collect his money or for the payment of his claim by the United States.

THE London Lancet for February gives Dr. KELLY's lecture on Hygiene, in which he sets forth the lessening of the death rate in London and other cities, consequent on the improvements in the water-supply. Scurvy has almost disappeared from the navy, owing to better diet. Ague, which was once a dangerous disease, is now very mild in its effects. For the last fifteen years typhus fever has ceased to be the epidemic it once was; and the deaths from small-pox are one-quarter of the rate in the last century. The mortality of the English military service has been reduced one-half. The death-rate of prisons has been very much lessened, and infant mortality, which was 150 per thousand ten years ago, is now 145. In London the death-rate has in eight years been reduced from 24 per thousand to 22; and a similar reduction is found in Liverpool, Manchester and Glasgow. Among other changes for the better, Dr. KELLY mentioned the greater purity of the foods and drinks purchased by the people, resulting from the watchfulness of the health board.

THE supreme court of Louisiana decided on Monday last that the New Orleans municipal bonds, known as premium bonds, were legally issued and that they are binding upon the city. The pith of the decision is found in the closing words:

Inexorable necessity entirely beyond our control requires them (the people of New Orleans) to bear with patience the burden of antecedent contract obligations, relics of evil days, legacies in great part of extravagance and fraud, but now shaped into such forms of contract as to preclude investigation of their origin and consideration, and so protected by the paramount law of the land that neither state constitutions, state legislatures nor state courts can give relief against them, and all attempts to do so can end in nothing but failure and additional disaster.

It is something new to hear such doctrine as this from southern courts. We hope it is a sign of a general change for the better.

[illegible] little. It gives in plain language directions for the care of health in children, especially infants. The publication of these health primers shows that the minds of mothers are directed to the prevention of disease. They are doing a good work.

HEALTH AND HEALTHY HOMES. A guide to domestic hygiene. By GEORGE WILSON, M. D. Philadelphia: Presley Blakeston.

The above is specially addressed to parents and teachers, and it will prove a reliable and readable guide to all, whether young or old, who will peruse it. Technicalities are avoided, and yet every subject is treated with all attainable accuracy. The book does not infringe upon the art of the physician, but aims solely at the prevention of disease.

THE Pittsburg (Pa.) Commercial has a report that the Hon. S. R. MASON, who was the greenback-labor candidate for governor of that state two years ago, has abandoned that party and become a republican. He was a democrat before he joined the greenbackers.

POLITICAL NOTES.

ONE of the most surprising features of modern politics is the fact that Congressman Acklen has not counted himself in as a delegate to Chicago.

THE Boston Post says that Barnum pays Zazel, the young lady who permits herself to be discharged from a cannon in his show, $250 a day, or $78,000 a year. And here our nation only pays its congressmen $5,000 a year. But perhaps it would be willing to pay them $78,000 to allow themselves to be fired out of guns.

GENERAL GRANT may or may not be nominated at Chicago. He may or may not be the strongest candidate the republicans could nominate. But, one thing is certain: he cannot be defeated by the papers and the influences which are now opposing him. Most of these were arrayed against him in 1872, and they raised a much greater clatter then than they are doing now.

STORM centre at Chicago, with areas of high pressure, variable winds, increasing temperature and frequent local cyclones, followed by clearing and sunshiny sky, rising barometer and steady northerly winds to-day are the indications from the political signal-service bureau. Cautionary signals will be displayed at Washington, Gramercy park and Cincinnati.

GRANT is like his chief lieutenants; he is never defeated while he has an army in hand. It may be repulsed and shattered, but he never confesses defeat, and Cameron and Conkling are lieutenants after his own heart. They are moving now against the combined opposition as Grant moved upon Vicksburg, and his repulse is confidently expected; but those who are ready to shout when his lines fall back should remember that when he was driven from the front of Vicksburg he was next heard from at Jackson, and thereafter he waited for the beleaguered city to run up the white flag. Grant may be beaten at Chicago, but it will not be an assured fact when his first or his second line shall have been broken.
