Address NATIONAL REPUBLICAN, Washington, D. C.

[Entered at the post-office at Washington, D. C., as second-class matter.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., OCTOBER 28, 1881.

Population of the National Capital....180,000.

Amusements To-Night.

NATIONAL THEATRE—Keene as "Macbeth."

THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN will be issued on Saturday in a double-sheet form of eight pages and fifty-six columns. The pressure of advertisements and the unprecedented increase in the circulation of the Stalwart REPUBLICAN is so great that it is not unlikely the management will soon find it necessary to issue double sheets on Wednesdays as well as Saturdays. THE REPUBLICAN will be found equal to the demands of the public, and will keep pace with the progress of events at the National Capital, and maintain its reputation as the liveliest, brightest, and best newspaper published in Washington.

THE Virginia Bourbons will feel better after their defeat on the 8th proximo. They know it is coming, and of course it worries them.

THE conduct of the Ninth Massachusetts Regiment during its journey to and from and its stay at Yorktown was as good as that of any other regiment. A few unfriendly persons have been able to create a contrary impression to some extent, but it is exceedingly unfair. General Hancock and Governor Long both expressed themselves as highly gratified at the soldierly bearing and good conduct of the Ninth. The opinion of these two ought to outweigh that of any number of enemies.

SENATOR VOORHEES is out in a letter on the tariff, which has good sense for its foundation. He prefers going along with the living present rather than tarrying in the graveyard of dead theories. All of which is respectfully referred to Harry Watterson, who caused the Democratic party to say in its platform last year that the tariff must be "for revenue only." Query: Did Watterson mean by this to actually deprecate and apologize for the protective element in a revenue tariff? If not why the word "only?"

THE Republicans can carry the State of New York. The wounds of the past are healing. The Stalwarts will, as they have always done, discharge their whole duty. It is not for them to lead or manage this year; but they never smite the party in retaliation for injustice done by individuals. The people of New York will by-and-bye inquire for themselves as to the merits of a controversy of which they now know very little. Then they will decide it without passion, and the party will be harmonized on the basis of truth and justice.

THE Springfield Republican wants to know "what is what" under the Arthur administration. What is what about what? What does the Republican desire should be "what?" It is a reform paper, and therefore promptly runs to the subject of the whey-trough. It wants to know if the men it blackguards year in and year out are to be "set up." The plain meaning of which is that the ravenous and hungry crew which is not blackguarded by the Springfield Republican and such papers want themselves to be "set up," and that immediately. When they say "set up" they mean they want to be let into the pen where the whey-trough is, and where they can fight each other for the chance to stand in it lengthwise in order to keep the feeders as few as possible. Whoever heard of these fellows on any subject while they could bury their snouts in the feed up to their eyes, and whoever knew one of them to stop squealing after his snout was out until it again went in? The simile is admittedly inelegant, but none can say it is inapt.

Vice-President Davis.

The Chaplain of the Senate insists upon including the Vice-President in his petitions to the Throne of Grace. The supposition is that he means Senator David Davis, but as neither the Senator from Illinois nor any other person is the Vice-President of the United States there is really no necessity for asking a blessing upon a "barren ideality" non-existent in law or fact.—Washington Post.

Yes, Mr. Post, Senator Davis, of Illinois, is actually our Vice-President. That is precisely what he is! Thus:

VICE [L. vi-ce, in the place of]. A prefix denoting, in the words compounded with it, one who acts in place of another, or one who is second in rank, AS VICE-PRESIDENT, vice-chancellor, &c.—Worcester's Dictionary.

In case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, the President of the Senate, or, if there is none, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the time being shall act as President until the disability is removed or a President elected.—Revised Statutes, sec. 146.

The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.—Sec. 3, Art. I., Constitution of the United States.

Judge Davis is President pro tempore of the Senate. If the presidential office should become vacant he would under the law "act as President." He is therefore "an officer next in rank below the President," which is the precise definition of the term vice-president, as above quoted.

The learned editor of the Post is confused by the fact that Judge Davis is only Vice-President by virtue of his office of President pro tempore of the Senate, instead of holding that office by virtue of an election by the people. Our Constitution and laws provide for choosing a Vice-President by several methods, but only calls him that when chosen by the people. President pro tempore of the Senate Davis is just as much our Vice-President as President Arthur is our Chief Magistrate. It is not in either case the title given by the Constitution, but it is unquestionably correct. It is from the whole vocabulary of the language that we are at liberty to select when we speak and write, even upon constitutional subjects.

MR. CYRUS W. FIELD reports that the total amount subscribed toward the fund for Mrs. Garfield and her children to this date is $361,791.72. The amount paid by the United States Trust Company for $311,000 United States 4 per cent. bonds is $361,770.75, leaving balance of cash at the credit of the fund in the hands of the United States Trust Company, $20.97.

T. W. Phillips, of New Castle.

MR. T. W. Phillips, of New Castle, Pa., has written a long and very forcible letter to the Pittsburg Dispatch, in which, while eloquently extolling the principles of the Republican party, he is equally eloquent in his denunciation of "Boss" rule, not alone in Pennsylvania, but wherever it prevails. In fact, he predicates the continued existence of the Republican party as a dominant organization in American politics upon the utter overthrow and confusion of "Bossism" in all its shapes. Therefore he declares himself unequivocally in favor of the election of Charles S. Wolfe, the Independent candidate for State treasurer, as a fitting rebuke and final extinction of the Stalwart influences which combined to secure the nomination of Baily, the ring candidate. He calls upon the Republicans of Pennsylvania, a large majority of whom he claims to be at heart opposed to Stalwartism—a name that has been forever "polluted by assassination"—to join him in this protest against misrule. In no other way can they hope for deliverance from the odious captivity to which they are now subjected. Mr. Phillips speaks in this matter for the late President. He is said to have been the closest personal and political friend whom Mr. Garfield had in Western Pennsylvania, as Mr. Wharton Barker was in the eastern part of the State. His voice is really the surviving voice of an administration that fell when Garfield fell; and there is every reason to believe that thousands of Republicans who hold the memory of the dead in honor will heed this admonition from the gravest of the coming election.—Washington Post.

Mr. Phillips was very industrious in the presidential campaign, spending most of his time in the State of Indiana. Whenever he was introduced to anybody it was always announced that he was "the great standard oil man of Pennsylvania." The impression prevailed that he was bent upon spending a few hundred thousand dollars in behalf of the Republican candidate, and that his means were as boundless as his liberality. He figured subsequently on a different scale and not as an extravagant contributor.

Mr. Phillips was at Harrisburg last winter, washing his hands with invisible soap in invisible water as he mingled with the crowds at the hotels. He declared that as it was already evident that Oliver could not be elected, he had reason to know that if he could be substituted as the candidate it would be most pleasing to the President-elect. He had tramped all the way to Mentor, which fact gave plausibility to his tale that General Garfield wanted him. The President-elect was written to and informed that Phillips was endeavoring to insert himself into the senatorial contest in his name. He replied by saying that no one had any authority to use his name in any such connection.

And so ended the relation of Phillips to politics. President Garfield did not appear to require "the great standard oil man" in his administration, and he subsided. He had played a brief and not over brilliant engagement as the stage manager of so much of the drama of the last campaign as introduced upon the stage the church of which he is a member. He had "organized" and had "disbursed." He had rubbed his hands and wheedled in his (standard) oilest terms to be made a compromise candidate for the Senate, and all to no purpose.

Upon the principle that a worm will turn if trodden upon, "the great standard oil man" now proposes to make it lively for the "Bossism" which he vainly endeavored to share. He has thrown off the patient shrug which is the badge of all his tribe in their more cringing mood, and with vengeance in his heart he declares war. He travels like a buzzard with dead flesh in his beak. He is for revenge in the name of the dead President. He is a perfect representative of his class. His rage at the Stalwarts of whom last winter he begged the Senatorship finds expression in the fiendish malignity with which he hisses out the declaration that the name has been forever "polluted by assassination." He would rob the tomb of the mouldering remains of its illustrious tenant, and make the coffin-plate his oriflamme of war, if with them he could make more sure of the defeat of those he hates. He is no representative of the dead President. He merely uses his wounds as a trade-mark under which to sell his own cheap political wares, and only regrets that he cannot paint thereon the martyr's dying groans in order to make infringements more difficult. His letter should be scattered broadcast throughout Pennsylvania. It cannot fail to weaken the Walsh cause.

The Next New State.

The question of annexing Northern Idaho to Washington Territory accompanies the other question of our admission to the Union as a State, and both will be agitated more or less vigorously from this on. Joined to our Territory as at present constituted, the new Territory or State would have an area exceeding eighty thousand square miles, or as great as that of New York and Ohio combined. The new State must be a grand one, and we hope to see it admitted to the sisterhood inside of a twelvemonth.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

An Easy One.

It was a Boston girl who asked: "Why is it that two souls, united in the impenetrable mystery of their nativity, float by each other on the ocean currents of existence without being instinctively drawn together, blended and beautified in the assimilated alembic of eternal love?" That is an easy one. It is because butter is forty-five cents a pound and a good scalskin sacque as high as $200. The necessaries of life must experience a fall in price before two souls will readily blend in the assimilated alembic and so forth.

Looking at "Brutus."

Mr. Spotted Horse, boss of the Pawnees, witnessed the performance of Brutus by John McCullough at St. Louis the other evening. Mr. Horse surveyed the stage through an opera glass, and expressed himself as being particularly well pleased with the representation of a tragedy. He thought it "heap fine." The Indian boss treated the audience with stoical indifference.

Rough on "Jube."

The Troy Enquirer says: "General Jubal A. Early has been trying to ride into popular favor with the Virginia Democrats by abuse of Mahone. General Early has too vulnerable a record to assail anybody. A soldier who sought and succeeded in being captured to prevent being outflanked ought to keep silence.

A Suspicion.

There is a lingering suspicion in the minds of the Washington correspondents that the conduct of William A. Cook in the star-route cases will prove to be such as to justify the comments made upon his character by the Inter-Ocean when his appointment was announced.—Inter-Ocean.

Who He Is.

Who is "Congressman" Strobach, of Alabama? He figures in a New York Tribune dispatch as one of the "Nation's guests" at Yorktown.—Post. Wait until the Elections Committee of the next House is heard from. Then you will learn.

Chestnuts.

When you chance to meet a man walking along in a stooped condition, with his head bowed down, his back humped like that of a cat, and his hands crossed over his vest-pockets, it is safe to bet he has been eating chestnuts.

Will Be Forgiven.

Pa always has to come down. A Chicago father advertises: "If Moses and Aaron Hoffin will inform their father of their whereabouts he will send their winter clothes; or, if they want to come home, all will be forgiven."

Funny.

It sounds funny to read that several city aldermen were drunk at the dedication of the city water-works. Some fiend in human shape must have poured a barrel of whisky in the reservoir.—Norristown Herald.

Confederate Bonds.

There may be something behind the confederate-bond speculation more than appears upon the surface. But one thing is sure, they will not be redeemed by the men on guard now.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

PERSONALITIES.

REPRESENTATIVE KETCHAM, of New York, is in the city.

MRS. KATE CHASE SPRAGUE has returned to Washington.

JUDGE TOURGEE has a new lecture ready, called "Give Us a Rest."

MR. PETER CAMPBELL has returned from a four months' visit to Colorado.

EX-COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS BENTLEY has entered upon the practice of law in Denver.

The Chicago Tribune calls Mr. Arthur "the Acting President." This is fearfully crushing.

GENERAL E. D. TOWNSEND, U. S. A., retired, has returned to the city for the winter with his family.

MR. H. V. REDFIELD, of the Cincinnati Commercial, is in town from his sojourn in the Pennsylvania mountain region, considerably improved in health.

MONDAY last was the twenty-ninth anniversary of Daniel Webster's death. It is proposed in Boston to celebrate the centennial of his birth on the 18th of January next.

MR. JAMES STEELE MACKAYE took the part of John Burleson, ex-confederate, in the dramatization of "The Fool's Errand" brought out in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

B. H. RICHARDSON, city editor of the Savannah News, was in the city yesterday, looking at the sights, in company with his distinguished brother Frank, of the Baltimore Sun.

SUPERVISING ARCHITECT HILL has returned to the city from Syracuse, N. Y., and Hartford, Conn., where he has been inspecting public buildings under course of construction.

THE late Governor Wiltz, of Louisiana, left his widow and five children in poverty, and a committee of leading citizens has appealed to the people of the State to provide a fund for them.

JOHN HENRY's wife picked up a good-sized pink elastic in the hall, and just because John Henry said it looked like the chambermaid's there is trouble in the house.—Silkwater Lumberman.

ARTEMAS HALE, of Bridgewater, Mass., "the oldest living ex-member of Congress," passed his ninety-eighth birthday last week. He expects to round out his century, with a few years to spare.

THE Hon. Daniel Voorhees is disposed to "explain" his protection speech at Atlanta. The Hon. Daniel is attempting to get through a very small hole, considering his size.—Atlanta Constitution.

MR. J. C. S. RICHARDSON, formerly of this city, has just been admitted to the bar of Wyoming Territory, and is spoken of by the Cheyenne papers as a young man of high promise in the legal profession.

MAJOR CHARLES W. SMITH, who is the well-known humorist "Bill Arp" of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution, lives at Cartersville, sixty miles north of Atlanta, on a plantation. He is under thirty years of age.

BOY-PREACHER HARRISON expects to get off without any funeral. Says he: "Sometimes I think I shall not die. But when my time comes angels will come and place me under their wings and bear me gently away."

ARCHIBALD FORBES, the famous British war correspondent, saw the Connecticut troops parade at Charleston, and says they equaled the best-trained troops of Europe, and with such militia the country needs no standing army.

Potomac Ferry Company.

A short time ago the name of the Potomac Ferry Company, running a line of steamers between Alexandria and Washington, was changed to the "Washington Steamboat Company, limited," and this "limit" having (or nearly) run out, another change has been made, this time in the management of the company. Mr. Henry Remsen, the president, has appointed Mr. Ridley, of New York, to supersede Mr. George R. Phillips as superintendent of the company. The company is reported to have been running down for some time past, and it is said that debts to a large amount have been contracted with nothing to show for them, the boats of the line all being out of order. The new superintendent was here yesterday. He made a thorough examination of the wharf of the company, and is said to have been severe in his condemnation of the way things have been conducted. The debts of the company have been cancled in, and for two days the proper parties have been busy executing bills for labor and supplies. This, it is needless to say, has caused general rejoicing among the creditors. The repairs to the steamer City of Washington, which has been lying at the ship-yard for months past, have been ordered, and it is understood work will be commenced on the steamer in a few days. It is predicted that the company will be run in the future on an entirely different plan than that pursued in the past, and that Alexandria will be greatly benefited thereby by reason of the increased facilities for travel between this city and Washington.—Alexandria Gazette, 25th.

Tenth Anniversary of a Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fought celebrated their tin wedding at their residence, 924 Twenty-second street, Wednesday evening. Their hospitable parlors were filled with their friends, and the presents were many and unique. Tin in every conceivable form was to be seen everywhere. In fact, for one night they had plenty of tin. The occasion was made interesting by the presence of the same bridesmaids and groomsmen who attended Mr. and Mrs. Fought ten years ago. Music was given by Miss Clara Baker, Messrs. Newman, Sunting, and Whipple, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, the retiring guests wishing long life and many similar reunions to their genial host and hostess. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax, Mr. and Miss Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Selectman, Mr. and Mrs. Freer, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Lamphere, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Billings, Misses Clara Baker, Washington, Snyder, Lillie Byrnes, Mary Emmert, Blackiston, Lane, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Moore, Messrs. S. K. Broom, Fred S. Newman, J. E. Bristol, E. W. Upton, Fred Weyber, W. N. Ash, E. J. Whipple, Dr. Norris and Drinkhouse, Colonel T. F. Barr and Captain B. W. Sunsay.

The Watson-Fisher Nuptials.

The many friends of Mr. William F. Fisher and Miss Mattie Watson assembled Wednesday night to witness the wedding of these popular young people, who were joined in holy wedlock at the Fourth Street M. E. Church by the Rev. Dr. Leesh. The following gentlemen acted as ushers: Messrs. E. E. Womersley, F. J. Woodman, J. R. Keech, and Francis Bender. The bride was attired in a handsome satin dress, high corsage, with trimmings of orange blossoms. The happy couple left on the 9:50 train for New York and Philadelphia. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lamereich, Mr. and Mrs. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. Simons, Mr. and Mrs. Ryon, Mr. and Mrs. Henry, Misses Lammond, Griffin, Whyte, McCauley, Jones, Andrews, Hutchinson, Barbour, Hunt, Mead, Morgan, Wright, Miller, Tilbett, Emmerica, Boisean, Mr. and Mrs. Bright, Misses Fisher, and Messrs. C. and Fred Griffin and Edward Franck.

The Debt Due to the Soldier.

Twelve times each year the Treasury Department issues a statement of the public debt, which, among other things, shows the reductions made during the month preceding. The debt due to the ex-soldiers and sailors of the country cannot be stated. It is beyond computation. Nor can its immensity be conceived without the most careful thought. Were it not for the sacrifices, sufferings, and achievements of those who made up our armies during the great rebellion the bonds of the Government would to-day be valueless, save as mementoes to be placed under the corner-stones of monuments to be erected to signalize some great victory of the past, like the victory over Cornwallis at Yorktown, for instance. We hope the time may yet come when the Nation will pay more heed to its solemn obligations to those who preserved its life, and be as ready and prompt to do justice to them as it now is to those who loaned it money to carry on the war in which the others did the fighting.—National Tribune.

Indian Schools.

One day, soon after President Garfield's inauguration, President Hinsdale, of Hiram, Marshal, and some other old acquaintances were dining with him at the White House, and the subject of the Indian schools came up. Incidentally the President remarked: "I was the originator of that law." "Is that so? Why didn't you tell us that last fall, during the campaign? I should have been pleased to put that in my book," replied President Hinsdale, alluding to his life of the Republican nominee. The President smiled, and, after thinking a moment, said: "Well, you can put it in my obituary."—Exchange.

The Sourkraut Season.

The season of the fragrant sourkraut is here. The crop in the West is a failure, and in consequence St. Louis canners of kraut are transferring their work to the East. A large factory has just been started at Albany, which is supplied by cabbage from the immense fields below that city on both sides of the Hudson. Fifty barrels of kraut are daily sent from Albany to St. Louis, in addition to hundreds of crates of cabbage shipped both from Troy and Albany.

A Reform.

A much-needed reform has been accomplished in the State of Connecticut. A constitutional amendment has been ratified providing that hereafter all judges of the Supreme and Superior Courts shall be nominated by the Governor and confirmed by both houses of the General Assembly. Heretofore the judges have been joined in nomination by party caucuses and elected by the Legislature.
