IN THE SENATE.

FRIDAY'S REGULAR PROCEEDINGS.

Important Resolutions and Bills Offered—Mr. Sherman's Three Per Cent. Bond Bill—An Explanation from Mr. Hoar—Senator Logan's Remarks.

President pro tempore Davis, a few minutes after the assembling of the Senate Friday, vacated the chair for the day to Mr. Garland.

Memorials were presented by Mr. Morrill for the relief of destitute colored women and children in the District of Columbia, and by Mr. Pendleton, from the census supervisors of Ohio, for an increase of compensation.

Resolutions, offered as follows, were disposed of as stated:

By Mr. McPherson: Requesting the Secretary of the Treasury to communicate any information which the Light-House Board may have in regard to the lighted buoy which has been in operation at the entrance to the harbor of New York during the past summer, and any recommendations which the said board may desire to make in regard thereto. Adopted.

By Mr. Maxey: Instructing the Secretary of the Interior to furnish the report, if any, of the survey of the United States and Texas boundary commission, made under the act of June 5, 1858; and, if no final report of said commission was made, he will report that fact, together with the maps, surveys, and report of work so far as it was prosecuted. He explained that the purpose of the act of 1858 was to ascertain the true Northern Texas boundary; that is to say, what is the main Red River line as laid down on the Mellish map of January 1, 1818, by which the boundary was fixed between the United States and Mexico under the treaty of 1828. The work of the commission showed nothing definite on the point. Texas claimed the North Fork and the Interior Department the South Fork of the Red River to be the true Red River, according to the Mellish map. The resolution was adopted.

By Mr. Edmunds: Directing the District Commissioners to transmit a statement of the amounts charged, in the revision of assessments, against the several street railroad companies in Washington and Georgetown for the pavement of the carriageway, and also a copy of the report of William Oscar Roome, chief of the special assessment division, made February 24, 1880, together with a copy of all correspondence, &c., relating to the subject. Adopted.

By Mr. Jones, of Florida: Calling on the Secretary of the Interior for information relating to selections of swamp lands in Florida in violation of law; whether or not any investigation of the subject has been had under his authority; whether any of the State officers are involved and have been notified of the fact; and also whether, upon the facts, the whole matter ought not to be investigated by Congress.

Mr. Jones said he had seen it stated in the public press, and in one paper as if coming from the Secretary of the Interior, that the State officers of Florida had been connected with "a ring" which was engaged in making selections of land in that State unlawfully. He knew nothing of the facts, but from his knowledge of the persons referred to he believed there was no foundation for the statement. In justice to them, he would favor an investigation of the matter. The resolution was adopted.

By Mr. Beck: Directing the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the Senate at once what reason, if any, he has for failing to comply with the Senate resolution of December 21, 1881, relative to the tariff dues imposed on English and American goods by France, Germany, and Mexico.

Mr. Hoar asked that the resolution lie over one day under the rule. So ordered.

Bills were introduced:

By Mr. Rollins: To fix the term of office of collectors of internal revenue.

By Mr. Groome: Granting the right of way to the County of Anne Arundel, Maryland, through the United States Government grounds in the city of Annapolis.

By Mr. Logan: Amendatory of the pension laws.

By Mr. Windom: Appropriating money for the erection of a site and location of Government buildings in Minneapolis, Minn.

Upon the conclusion of routine business twenty-five minutes of the morning hour remained to be occupied.

Mr. Sherman moved to take up his bill for the issue of 3 per centum bonds.

Objection was made by Mr. McPherson and Mr. Beck, of the Finance Committee, from which the bill was reported, the former desiring, in advance of the discussion of the bill, to have printed several amendments he had prepared, and the latter giving notice of his intention to claim priority of consideration for the tariff commission bill, which had been reported twice in the absence of Mr. Bayard, of the Finance Committee, to whom the bill had been given, and who expected to report it on Monday.

Mr. Sherman said that his motion having accomplished its purpose as a notification of his intention to call up his bill on Monday, he would not now insist upon it.

The bill, therefore, was not taken up, and a reprint of the bill was ordered, to contain the proposed amendments in brackets.

The modifications proposed by the amendments of Mr. McPherson make the bonds redeemable after January 1, 1891, instead of payable after January 1, 1897, and extend time of payment to thirty years from date of issue.

Mr. Plumb gave notice of an amendment directing the use of all the fund now held in the Treasury for the redemption of United States notes in excess of $100,000,000 in the redemption of the 3½ per cents.

Mr. Hoar, claiming leave to make a statement, had read a newspaper cutting, which he had received in the letter of a correspondent. It asserted that, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Claims, Senator Hoar was sending out letters to the representatives of Southern claims which had been presented to Congress, stating that the Republicans in Congress are not opposed to the payment of Southern claims, but, on the contrary, favor payment where the claims are just; that he invited the sending on of proofs, and that his course was an unusual one for even a conservative Republican. He said he had not thus far in his political life felt compelled to contradict or explain any ridiculous statement in regard to himself, but he had received so many letters from interested parties concerning these claims he would now say he was not chairman of the Committee on Claims; that he had written no letter to warrant any such statement, and, so far as he knew, had written none on the subject. It was possible that, in reply to a correspondent, he had stated that claims from any quarter would receive due consideration by the proper committee, and that, as the committees were in the habit of acting on such filings judicially, the claimants had better send their proofs; but he had written nothing of the kind described in the article.

The calendar was then taken up and occupied the day, the morning hour being extended for its consideration. Several resolutions, including the one for a woman suffrage committee, were passed over, because of the absence of Senators interested in them.

Mr. Hale's resolution for a special committee on the mode of electing the President and Vice-President, of counting and certifying the vote, was disposed of by a reference to the Committee on Privileges and Elections after a statement by Mr. Hale that the subject-matter had already been committed to that committee and that a subcommittee appointed by them had been considering it and would report at an early day.

The resolution, of December 13, offered by Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, relating to pension frauds; calling for statements of their nature and character, what amount of arrears has been paid, the number of cases added to the pension roll under the "arrears act," the number of applications thereunder, the estimated annual expenditure required, the estimated total cost of the arrearages paid and to be paid, and total of regular pension roll after the arrearages have been determined, came up next on the calendar.

Some discussion ensued upon an amendment by Mr. Edmunds, striking out the direction to the Secretary of the Interior to report his opinion upon such legislation as he thought advisable.

Mr. Edmunds argued that the President alone was empowered to recommend legislation, and Mr. Hill, of Georgia, contended that while it was the duty of the President to do this there was no limitation on the power of Congress to get opinions from others.

Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, in the course of the debate, said the Secretary had estimated that $100,000,000 would be required for this year to pay the pension roll, and this estimate, he learned, had been increased by the Commissioner to $120,000,000. Nobody knew where the increase would stop, and next year, for aught we knew, it would reach $150,000,000. He (Mr. Davis) had stated last year that the arrears of pensions bill would cost the Government a sum greater than the National debt, and the statement was laughed at. Present indications seemed to fully justify the statement he then made.

Mr. Logan, replying to Mr. Davis, said that statements not based on accurate information should not be allowed to go to the country uncontradicted. The assertion that the pension arrearages would be larger than the national debt was certainly not based upon any reliable basis. The inference from what had been stated would be that our pension roll would continue to cost $100,000,000 per year right along, with a probable increase. Yet the report of the Commissioner showed that, with a certain force at his command, the arrears of pensions could be paid in two years, and that after these were paid the roll would be reduced to $40,000,000 or not over $50,000,000. The Senator from West Virginia could not help knowing this, for the report was before him. There was, therefore, no reason to alarm the country by a statement such as the one that Senator had just made.

The resolution, as modified by Mr. Edmunds' amendment, was adopted.

The Senate (at 1:45) went into executive session, and (at 1:50) adjourned until Monday.

Hon. R. T. Merrick on the Constitution.

The preliminary lecture in a course upon the Constitution of the United States at the Georgetown Law School was delivered by Hon. R. T. Merrick. He referred to the three grand divisions of government—the despotic, the limited monarchy, and the republic—and then alluded to the different classes of people who settled the original colonies in this country, and the different ideas they had of government at first, although their position as colonies of the mother country guaranteed them certain rights. It was the violation of these rights which caused the revolution which overcame the differences and cemented the entire states. He spoke of the articles of confederation which were first formed, which, though imperfect, served the purpose at the time, and were the foundation of our present Constitution. In subsequent lectures each Article of the Constitution will be taken up and separately discussed.

The First Bachelors' German.

The first german of the Bachelors' Club was given at Marini's, about fifty couples from the élite of the West End participating in its enjoyment. The german was led by Mr. John Foor, and untiring couples of graceful dancers glided through the hall to the sweet strains of music from Weber's full orchestra, while the hours swept swiftly by. The affair, though very elegant, was intended to be informal, and no programme were provided, the committee on arrangements kindly assuming all the duties usually devolving upon the various subcommittees.

BIOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

Second Annual Meeting—Election of Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The second annual meeting of the Biological Society of Washington was held Friday evening, January 6, in the archive room of the National Museum. Professor W. K. Brooks, of Johns Hopkins University, was elected a corresponding member and the following gentlemen to resident membership: Mr. H. W. Henshaw, of the Bureau of Ethnology; Mr. W. R. Smith, superintendent of the Botanic Garden; Mr. E. T. Sperr, of the National Museum, and Mr. Anton Zumbrock, of the Coast Survey. It was announced by the president that the society enters upon its second year with 104 regular members, 4 corresponding members, and 1 honorary member. The following officers were elected: President, Professor Theodore Gill; vice-presidents, Professors C. V. Riley, J. W. Chickering, jr., L. F. Ward, and Mr. Henry Ulke; secretaries, Professors G. Brown Goode and Richard Rathbun; treasurer, Mr. Robert Ridgway; members of council, Surgeon J. H. Kidder, U. S. N., Professors O. T. Mason, George Vasey, Drs. D. W. Prentiss, and T. H. Bean.

A Talk With Dr. Mary Walker.

Dr. Mary Walker has returned to the city for the season and has been around calling upon her friends. She has been away since March last and has been visiting her mother in New York State. Her masculine appearance is a little more so this season on account of a natty elk hat, which is balanced on her head with considerable care. She wears a long black overcoat and the bifurcated garments are also black and of the latest cut, differing in no slight, as every one knows. The genial Doctor is in very good spirits, and said, in response to a question of how long she would favor the Capital City with her presence: "I shall stay all winter. I don't think, you know, that Washington could get along without me," and she smiled pleasantly.

"Are you interested in legislation before Congress this year?"

"No, not especially. I have not been up to the Capitol yet, but expect to go to-morrow, and shall be on hand. I always look after the interests of our cotee—woman's suffrage, you know."

"What do you think of Guiteau?"

"I think that it would be a burning disgrace to this country," was the vehement reply, "if that man should be hung. He is a monomaniac on that subject, and has shown himself to be insane throughout the trial. His hanging would disgrace me and all other citizens."

"But you are not a citizen," put in THE REPUBLICAN.

"Oh, yes I am. I voted at the last school election in New York."

The reporter subsided and the Doctor gracefully moved away.

The Italian Tragedian, Rossi.

On Monday the famous Italian tragedian, who has been so successful in every city where he has appeared, will commence an engagement at Ford's Opera-House, appearing in "Hamlet." A reference to his performance of this character in the Baltimore American says: "The first impression which Rossi makes is that of majestic repose. He does not, as so many of our tragedians do, make points that are so points, and await the applause of the galleries. There was never, from beginning to end, a moment of rant, and only in the moments of intensest interest did he reveal the vast reserve of power that every pose and gesture hints that he possesses. Power—very grand power—is there, but given forth only in flashes, as if bursting from the calm of a reflective nature. Rossi conveys also the idea of the princely character of Hamlet, and this has a great dramatic value. Booth gives us Hamlet the student—refined, but not princely. There are at least two other Hamlets on our tragic stage who make the Prince of Denmark seem like a fresh graduate from a butcher shop. But there is in Rossi's personation a dignity, a gentleness, and a ceaseless grace that realize the highest ideals of royalty."

Robson and Crane.

Robson and Crane were received at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Monday evening by a very large and enthusiastic audience. The comedy selected for their opening was "Our Bachelors," which we believe is the work of Mr. Joseph Bradford, of Boston. In the hands of commonplace comedians "Our Bachelors" would become a very uninteresting story. Mr. W. H. Crane, however, is an actor whose humor is at all times contagious. And what is more, his personal liberty is never forced into sight through every part which he is called upon to play. So many comedians, who are now popular, rely solely upon their own personality that an actor of Mr. Crane's ability to convey his humor into other characters rather than carry their humor into himself should be a higher recognition than is usually accorded players of his line. Mr. Stuart Robson, his partner, is always funny. The coupling of these actors is fortunate in its financial results, chiefly for the reason that it ensobles the two methods of comic acting which are supported by the largest constituencies in this country.—New York Dramatic Times.

Register Ramsdell's Suit.

The suit of Mr. H. J. Ramsdell against the District of Columbia, the particulars of which were given in yesterday's issue, was resumed in the Circuit Court yesterday. The witnesses for the plaintiff were called to the stand and testified to the severe bodily injury sustained by the accident. Dr. J. Ford Thompson stated that Mr. Ramsdell was permanently disabled and rendered a cripple for life. The cost incurred by the accident (some $2,000) was also testified to. The defense put in testimony tending to prove that the snow and ice had been cleaned off the sidewalk on the 15th of January, and between that date and the 18th no snow had fallen, only a little rain. The meteorological report of the weather bureau was offered in evidence. The defense further allege that being without authority to levy taxes or expend money except on the direction of Congress, they are not liable and are not required to clear the sidewalks of ice, and offer several other prayers on the same subject. The arguments will be submitted to-day.

The Theatres To-Day.

"Humpty Dumpty" will be seen for the last time this afternoon and to-night, and those who have not taken their little ones to see the funny antics of the prince of clowns, Mr. George H. Adams, should avail themselves of the opportunities now presented. In the specialty performances the trained dogs are the most wonderful, and their leaping is rewarded with immense applause. Professor Davis, the ventriloquist, and the gymnastic feats of the Leslies and the Martinettes were also loudly applauded.

Mr. Denman Thompson will give his final performance sat the matinee to-day and to-night. The kindly face of Uncle Joshua Whitcomb should be seen by all who are fond of honest, conscientious characters. It is a character that will live in the memory like Rip Van Winkle, Lord Dundreary, Salem Scudder, Asa Trenchard, or any of the characters made famous by the genius of eminent actors, living or dead.

Willard Hall.

A very delightful entertainment is to prospect for next Monday evening at Willard Hall. The occasion is a musicale, interspersed with readings and character sketches, and the object is a benefit for St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, corner of Fourteenth and Corcoran streets. The following is the interesting programme: Piano solo, selected, Mr. John Lawrence; recitation, "Last Hope," Miss Ida Hinds; song, "What Shall I Do?" (Bischoff), Miss Birdie Harvey; recitation, "How Rubenstein Played," Miss Belle Bacon; song, "Lo Scapato" (Mattei), Mr. Warren Young; piano solo, ballad No. 3 (Chopin); recitation, portion scene, "Romeo and Juliet," Miss Ida Hinds; song, "Esmeralda" (Levey), Miss Jessie Harvey; recitation, "Briar Rose," Miss Belle Bacon; duet, "Cheerfulness" (Gumbert), Misses Harvey; recitation, selected, Mr. E. B. Hay. Professor Bischoff and Mr. J. P. Lawrence, accompanists.

The Christiancy Case.

Justice Wylie yesterday delivered his opinion on the motion made by counsel in the Christiancy case Thursday, being the motion to appoint a commission to take interrogatories in behalf of complainant of his sons at Lansing, Mich. After hearing counsel on the motion Judge Wylie said that the interrogatories might be taken, but objected to the form of them as being too leading and dealing with collateral matters which in no way affects the issue. In referring to this testimony, he said that he did not think such evidence should be received to show family obloquy, and cited in support of this a case in the Supreme Court. Judge Wylie, however, said he had no power to refuse the order, and directed counsel to amend the interrogatories, when the commission would be issued.

Improvement of the River Front.

The work of dredging out the river channel progressed without interruption up to Wednesday last, when the workmen of the National Dredging Company were furloughed to permit some repairs to the machinery used. The intention is to make the channel eight hundred feet wide and sixteen feet deep all the way from the Eastern Branch to the Long Bridge. Colonel George Ruhlen has immediate charge of the operations, and is making a good job of it. The dump now made is at the southern end of the new tramway, and the weight of the mud has spread out to the causeway on the north side, and is also spreading southward.

What Paymaster Larcombe Says.

In reference to a paragraph which appeared in THE REPUBLICAN of Thursday Mr. John Larcombe, of the Government Printing Office, says: "In making out that portion of the office pay-roll which I had hoped to be able to pay on Wednesday last I found that the amount obtained upon the last requisition was not sufficient by some $1,400 to complete the payment of the binders' portion of it. I regretted this, because the end of that roll contained the names of more than one hundred females, who I believed needed their month's pay. To pay them I borrowed the money from other employees in the office."

Garfield Council of Chosen Friends.

At the regular meeting of Garfield Council, No. 1, of the Order of Chosen Friends of the District of Columbia, held at St. Cloud's Hall, the following officers were installed for the ensuing year by Deputy Supreme Councillor N. Demongeot: Chief councillor, W. Z. Partello; vice-councillor, Dr. S. C. Bancroft; secretary, A. W. Hoff; treasurer, J. Rich; prelate, Mary E. Dow; marshal, Dr. C. A. Prentiss; warden, Harriet A. Emery; guard, Rosa L. Partello; sentry, Louis Hellbrun; past councillor, W. G. Newton.

Georgetown Building Associations.

At the ninth regular monthly meeting of the Thirteenth Building Association, at Goddard's Hall, $2,975 was sold, being twenty shares at an average rate of $148.50 per share.

At the eighty-fourth regular meeting of the Tenth Building Association, at the same place, $742 was disposed of, being seven shares at the stock value rates of $106 per share.

The Will of a Constable.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—The will of the late Alida Van Rensselaer, constable, of this city, which was admitted to probate to-day, contains, among others, the following bequests: To the Union Theological Seminary, of New York, $4,000 to found a scholarship; to the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, the American Sunday-School Union, and the Presbyterian Committee of Home Missions, of New York, $2,000 each; to the Seamen's Friend Society, of New York, and the American Bible Society, of New York, $1,000 each. Bequests of $1,000 and $1,500 each are also made to various religious and charitable institutions in this city.
