SOME FACTS ABOUT INSURANCE.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Columbia Fire Insurance Company.

In accordance with a special notice, appearing in THE REPUBLICAN, the first annual meeting of the stockholders of the Columbia Fire Insurance Company took place at the company's well-appointed office, in the Columbia Insurance building, No. 1334 F street northwest, from twelve to two, yesterday. The vote resulted in the election of the following gentlemen, large and well-known property owners and foremost in business enterprises affecting the welfare of this city, as trustees for the ensuing year: John A. Baker, Thomas J. Fisher, Robert I. Fleming, William M. Galt, C. C. Glover, F. B. McGuire, B. H. Warner, G. H. B. White, and H. A. Willard. The inspectors of election were Commodore John Lee Davis, U. S. N., and Mr. Thomas Russell. THE REPUBLICAN reporter ran across one of the trustees and began to ply this gentleman with questions, thus wise:

"Your annual report shows an unprecedented run of business for the first year. How is it that one company—the Citizen's—which started about the same time with the Columbia has been compelled to wind up its affairs, while your company has a larger number of policies for the first year than even the most sanguine anticipated, and a constantly increasing business?"

"Well, the secret of the matter is just this. We don't allow any drones in our company. Each trustee, each officer and every stockholder is a working member of the company. Every one who is connected with the company is expected to take an active interest in its success, and we don't want any one to buy stock who can't turn in a large number of policies. This is the time appointed for the annual meeting, but we have actually only been in operation ten months."

"Are your rates as reasonable as those of other companies?"

"Yes, sir; but we do not merely for the sake of getting policies cut under the rates established by first-class home companies, nor underbid the same."

"Dont you apprehend a decrease in business on account of the great competition?

"No sir; the secretary of an older established company prophesied that we would wind up our affairs in six months, and that with the low rates existing in Washington we could not succeed. Another secretary said we would do well if we wrote 250 policies the first year, but in ten months we have written over six hundred. Our report shows you that, though there are about seventy foreign companies represented here, and a dozen local companies, competition has not killed us yet, and we fear nothing of the kind. We cannot publish a flaming advertisement which sets forth being established in 1830 or 1840, but we have been established long enough to show that we mean business, and the gentlemen who are connected with our home enterprise are a guarantee that in case of loss there will be a speedy adjustment and prompt payment."

The scribe left feeling thoroughly convinced that he could conscientiously recommend to those desiring to effect insurance this safe and reliable home company.

ELECTIONS OF OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Corcoran Fire Insurance Company, held yesterday, the following gentlemen were elected a board for the ensuing year: John T. Lenman, A. H. Herr, H. Clay Stewart, Charles A. James, Edward Droop, J. D. Clary, James L. Barbour, George A. Mellhenny, and Joseph R. Cassin.

THE TELEPHONE COMPANY.

The stockholders of the National Telephone Company elected directors as follows: D. E. Cumming, John W. Thompson, J. D. Edmunds, Henry D. Cooke, jr., Henry A. Willard, Charles C. Glover, and G. G. Hubbard. The reports showed that there had been a decided increase in the demands for telephone service and that the affairs of the company were upon a sound and prosperous basis.

PHARMACY.

The regular annual meeting of the National College of Pharmacy was held yesterday at the college rooms, in Colonization building, corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Four-and-a-half street. The reports of officers and committees show the college to be in a flourishing condition. After the reports had been read officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: W. G. Duckett, president; Charles Becker, first vice-president; Karl Kulberg, second vice-president; J. R. Walton, secretary, and John A. Milburn, treasurer; additional trustees, Messrs. W. S. Thompson, G. G. C. Simms, R. B. Ferguson, J. D. O'Donnell, R. K. Helphenstine, and C. H. Nourse.

Forepaugh's Great Show.

The small boy is luxuriating in juvenile hopes and the minister of the gospel in turning over in his mind the question of carrying his young ones out to see the elephants. Forepaugh's great show is billed for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, on the famous old circus grounds, corner of Ninth and S streets northwest, and to say that the truly good Washingtonians will flock to the tents would be superfluous. Forepaugh, like wine, increases in value as he grows older, and this spring he presents to the public a most remarkable collection of attractions. Twenty-two elephants will lend their ponderous efforts to make the show a success. The circus, which is so huge that four rings are necessary to give the performers room to perform, will interest every one, and every specialty under the sun will be exposed to those having tickets of admission. There will be a street pageant on Thursday if the weather is fair. There will be two performances each day. The afternoon performance at two o'clock is intended especially for ladies and children. At night the ball will open at eight o'clock. Doors will open, if tents have doors, at one o'clock and seven o'clock each afternoon and night.
