THE REPUBLICAN will be issued as usual in double-sheet form on Saturday, and will be up to its regular high standard in respect to local and political gossip, personal intelligence, fashion and stage notes, and book reviews.

THE interests of the country require that many of the bills before Congress shall "fall through" rather than go through.

SALT RIVER has so long been the sole theater of Democratic navigation that the venerable party has lost all interest in sea-going vessels for commerce or the Navy.

THE announcement that the genial John A. Cockerill, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, has been elected "captain of a horse cavalry company" is highly gratifying to his Washington friends, who had been led to fear that his command was only a mule cavalry company.

Latest from South Carolina.

A copy of the WEEKLY REPUBLICAN—probably one sent out as a sample—comes back to us with the following written upon the margin in violation of law:

BLACK STOCK, S. C.

The feeling & Politicks of this part of the country is to Hell with Mahone and the Stalwarts, so we Return you dam dirty sheet unread.

From one who fought with Mahone in a Righteous Cause. Pleas show this to Sam Melton the Ast U S Dist Attorney who is a Bright Light in the Radical party.

As to Pennsylvania and Reformers.

THE REPUBLICAN was not "previous" in its calculation of the motive, inspiration, and power for harm of the revolt in Pennsylvania against the Republican party of that State and of the whole Union. Its convention in Philadelphia was successful in revealing the deviltry of its conception and the impotence of its execution. It was a shallow contrivance. We all see its miserable failure and read the names of the personnel of the cheap and silly performance with contempt, softened by compassion. The marplots of Republican politics for nearly a decade contrived the convention. Who were its leaders? "Kickers and malcontents all" would accurately summarize the political status of men, who, while pretending a crusade for reform, yet display a hunger for office that decent ward politicians would be ashamed of. They can be safely left to the tender consideration of the Republican masses of Pennsylvania, who in nearly a quarter of a century have never lost their anchorage. The Republicans of the country will smile contemptuously at the base attempt to make of the citadel of Republicanism in the Middle States a scene of faction warfare, making possible Democratic restoration in the Union.

The Republican party of the country will soon know through the "fierce light" of inquiry the real authors of this wicked attempt—no less wicked because of its failure—to betray the Republican party in one of its strongholds. We dismiss them for the moment, and consider only the cheap parade of political virtue made at Philadelphia on Wednesday—the travesty upon the genuine article for which pinchbeck cannot be long successfully substituted. Pecksniffs and Joseph Surfaces thrive for a while in politics, even as weeds grow in gardens. "Patriots," said Walpole, "spring up like mushrooms. I could raise fifty of them within the twenty-four hours. I have raised many of them in a single night. It is but refusing an unreasonable or an insolent demand, and up starts a patriot." We commend to the engineers, officers, and rank and file of the Philadelphia fiasco the moral of Sir Robert Walpole's statement.

Regarding this alleged outbreak of alleged patriotism in Pennsylvania, it is well to observe that the leaders, being "patriots," despise in their public declarations the "bosses" who have denied them the offices they contemn when others than themselves are in possession of those offices. Being reformers, they are constrained to protest against any reformation that does not provide for themselves to a degree commensurate with their own estimate of their importance as individuals and as a collection of gushing optimists. "Where do I come in," said the legislator, who was besought to vote for a measure promising great advantages to his constituents. "Show me where I come in and I am with you," says the reformer in Pennsylvania or elsewhere.

This country stands now upon the threshold of an heroic period of politics in which men will stand shoulder to shoulder with other men. Such a period offers no chance for political dilettantism, and none for political traders.

Exeunt Pennsylvania Reformers. Their day has been brief and inglorious. Hereafter they shall typify fiasco in politics.

Stick.

The struggle in the House gives rise to the fear that if the Republicans should yield when the enemy resorts to filibustering encouragement will be given the Bourbons of the South to continue their villainous mode of carrying elections, and the result will be the discouragement of Republicans and anti-Bourbons from making efforts to secure a full vote in that section. This the Republican party cannot afford, as it is well known that when the Republicans and anti-Bourbons of the South become disheartened they will not be able to hold the districts already represented by them, much less make gains of other districts to which they are entitled.

Any want of courage or persistence on the part of the Republicans of the House at this time will be construed as an utter abandonment of the members of the party in the South, where it is no trifling matter to be known as a Republican. This is not all. The constitutional duty of the House is to decide contested election cases as soon as presented, and the Bourbons are striving hard to prevent the majority from performing that duty, which gives good cause for the belief that fear is entertained by them that to allow the contested cases to be discussed the infamous frauds and crimes perpetrated by them will be exposed and brought to light. The tactics of the Bourbons are revolutionary, and the country looks to the Republicans to perform their part. If the former persist in obstructing the proceedings, let the responsibility rest where it belongs.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE beginning of the nineteenth century was the beginning of 1801.—Bost. Post.

Thanks. Now will you kindly shake up your memory again and tell us when the eighteenth century began?

IT has been definitely ascertained that the foundation of Bunker Hill Monument is just as secure as it was before the recent change in the Boston collectorship.

IT is by no means a prima facie case of suicide to find a coat and a farewell note on the bank above Niagara Falls. But it is conclusive evidence that a man wants to be considered as dead.

IF murderers and robbers were as vigorously hunted down and as promptly suppressed as horse thieves in the great State of Missouri, that Commonwealth would not be considered so very desirable a place for emigrants to keep out of.

"WE will speak the truth if it kills the devil," remarks an Arkansas editor in a gush of lofty indignation. In a general way truth may be regarded as a desirable thing, but our Arkansas contemporary may not be justified in using it with deliberate parricidal intent.

SINCE Mr. Hutchins's sprightly newspaper described the Democratic party as "an old lady gathering up her skirts and taking refuge in a cellar," it is understood that Mr. Hendricks has invited Mr. English to "chip in" with him, and fit "the old lady" out with a new bustle for the summer campaign.

"OUR party's great need is more backbone," solemnly remarks an editor of the county printing in a rural Missouri shire. We think our able contemporary does his party injustice. It has plenty of backbone, but its cerebral lobes are, unfortunately, located at the wrong terminus of the vertebral column.

THERE is nothing original or very modern in the Democratic policy of ignoring the facts of the election cases and making a noise about trivial side issues. But the general public will look at the facts, and will find additional reasons for detesting Bourbon rascality as illustrated in methods for suppressing Republican majorities.

BAD as are the systematized frauds by which Bourbons are accustomed to carry elections in many localities, the mere existence of such outrages is far less deplorable than the fact that AVENE contemplated by the leading elements of those communities—men of wealth, education, and social influence—with no appearance of disapprobation.

IT would be well for Mr. Hueston, manager of the New York Associated Press, to place somebody in charge of the New York office who knows a piece of news when he sees it. There was not a line of the Charles Francis Adams case telegraphed to Washington from the New York office Wednesday night. It reached that point from Boston. What's the matter?

DECORATION DAY.

Preparations for Its Observance at Arlington and Soldiers' Home.

Rev. Rush R. Shippen, D. D., has been selected to officiate as chaplain at Arlington on Decoration Day, and Hon. Henry O'Connor has been chosen as the fourth orator. The German Veteran Union has decided to decorate the graves of their deceased comrades reposing at Prospect Hill cemetery, in the same manner as they have done during the last fourteen years. The decoration committee appointed consists of Messrs. Pfeil, Loeffler, Hartt, and Grupart.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

The preparations for Decoration Day at the Soldiers' Home will be more complete this year than on any recent occasion of the kind. Invitations have been issued, through the headquarters of the Army and Naval Secretary's office, to all the military and naval officers in Washington to be present, and it is known that most of them will attend. General Sherman and staff, General Ayres, with the officers, soldiers, and arsenal band from the barracks, and General Sturgis, with the officers and soldiers of the home, will be there, and Colonel W. W. Granger, who has charge of the arrangements there, has availed himself of the hearty co-operation of the generals above named in making ample provision for seating and otherwise accommodating visitors. The attendance is sure to be second to that at no other cemetery in or near Washington. This, with the oratorical, poetical, and musical talent he has secured for the occasion, not only insures a large auditory, but also that it will be most satisfactorily entertained.

THE CLAN-NA-GAEL.

A delegation of the Clan-na-Gael will visit, on Decoration Day, the graves of Devin Reilly and their dead comrades and friends at Mount Olivet, and those of young Wolfe Tone and his mother at the old Presbyterian Cemetery, Georgetown, proceeding thence to Arlington. Addresses appropriate to the occasion will be delivered by congressional and other speakers. The lamented Father Boyle, who was orator of the day last year, now lies in the sleep of death, and his grave will first receive the customary tribute of respect paid to the honored dead.

The Code, Out of New York.

On Sunday at Montgomery we were talking about duels, and when the names of several parties who had gone out in past years to satisfy their honor were mentioned, the judge knocked the ashes off his cigar and said: "Gentlemen, it may be mentioned right here that I have been there myself." "Were you challenged?" "I was. It was over in South Carolina, and I called a mana liar. He sent me a challenge, and I selected swords as the weapons. We met at 7 o'clock the next morning. It was just such a morning as this—bright, beautiful, and full of life." "And how did you feel?" "Very queer. I shall never forget my sensations as I saw my rival, and he seemed to be as visibly affected. We couldn't either one of us say a word." "Was it in a grove?" "Oh, no; it was at the depot." "The depot! Why, you didn't fight at the depot, did you?" "Well, no. The morning express trains passed there at 7, and he took one and I the other." —Sunday School Gazette.

Sad Finale of the Dog Story.

Dog stories should be written in purp-le ink.—Washington Critic. And if told verbally the tail should be related in a waggin'.—New Jersey Enterprise. Or, in a bark on the rolling deep.—Critic. Oh, cur-tail this dog story.—REPUBLICAN. That is not our of-fice.—Critic. Oh, go hence; go to a New-found-land.—REPUBLICAN. That's a good pointer; setter up on that.—Critic. Now, don't get too dog-matic, or the result may be a pug-nacious one.—REPUBLICAN. Oh! pooh, poodle on your pug-nacity; if you bother we'll terrier to pieces.—Critic. Then, by the great St. Bernard, that would end the story. For you shall be hanged like a hound at the head of the mast-if you do.

Settled.

It is settled. The assassin of President Garfield dies on the gallows. The higher court refuses to grant a new trial. And now let the beast be put in very solitary confinement, and let a much-enduring public hear no more from him till the welcome intelligence comes that he is hung!—Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

The Bourbons Delaying Business in the House—Senate Bills.

Mr. Conger reported favorably from the Commerce Committee the Senate bill appropriating $15,000 for a light-house and fog-signal at or near the entrance to Little Traverse harbor, Lake Michigan. Passed.

Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, introduced a bill to authorize terms of the United States district court at Martinsburg, W. Va.

Mr. Jackson, of the Pension Committee, responding to an inquiry by Mr. Williams as to the probability of an early report on the Mexican war pension bill, said that that and similar measures were now in the hands of a subcommittee, who expected to report upon them next week.

Mr. Harris called up the Senate bill to attach the county of Hardeman to the eastern division of the western district of Tennessee. Passed.

The Senate bill to reimburse the Creek orphan fund $251,055.97 was taken up on motion of Mr. Slater by a vote of 35 to 15. The committee report was read, setting forth that the reimbursement is necessitated because of illegal diversions from the fund in the purchase of $74,500 of depreciated bonds, and in the application of amounts exceeding $60,000 and $106,000 to the general purposes of the Creek nation and the support of loyal Creek refugees respectively.

The bill went over without action at the close of the morning hour.

The chair announced the appointment of Mr. Jackson to be a visitor to West Point in place of Mr. Lamar, excused.

After an informal discussion without action upon a bill called up by Mr. Sawyer, requiring bridge corporations to erect sheer booms or other appliances for the benefit of river navigation, the Senate took up as the regular order the Japanese indemnity fund bill.

It directs the President to pay to the government of Japan the $1,516,564 now held as such fund by the State Department; and further, to pay $254,000 of the fund, as prize money, to the officers and crew of the United States ship Wyoming for services in 1863.

Pending an executive session, the bill was laid over without action.

Mr. Gorman introduced a joint resolution granting the use of tents, &c., for the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Baltimore next June.

The Senate (at 4:40) went into executive session, and (at 4:50) adjourned until Friday.

House of Representatives.

No time was lost by the House this morning in renewing the struggle over the Mackey-Dibble contested election case, which was called up by Mr. Calkins immediately after the reading of the Journal.

Mr. Randall, as usual, raised the question of consideration, and Mr. Kenna interjected a motion to adjourn, on which Mr. Randall demanded the yeas and nays.

The motion to adjourn was lost—yeas, none; nays, 133.

The Speaker submitted the request of Mr. Curtin for leave of absence until Thursday next on account of important business.

Messrs. Horr and Randall objected, whereupon Mr. Randall demanded the yeas and nays. Leave was refused—yeas, 13; nays, 151.

Mr. Kenna then moved that when the House adjourn it be to meet on Saturday, while Mr. Randall moved to amend by substituting Monday.

Mr. Randall's motion was lost—yeas, 1 (Mr. Phelps); nays, 136—exactly a quorum.

The question then recurred on Mr. Kenna's motion and it was lost—yeas, 1 (Mr. Phelps); nays, 149.

Mr. Benjamin Wood voted with the Republicans on this motion.

A motion to adjourn was then voted down, and Mr. Kenna moved for a recess until 4:30. On this vote the Republicans lost their quorum, the result being—yeas, 1; nays, 138—and a call of the House was ordered.

Shortly before 3 o'clock further proceedings under the call were dispensed with, and the question recurred on the motion for a recess. This was lost—yeas, 3 (Hardenbergh, Phelps, and Benjamin Wood); nays, 144—the speaker casting his vote in order to make a quorum.

Roll call followed roll call upon dilatory motions until 4:45, when a quorum was again broken. Then after another call of the House, the hour of 5 o'clock having arrived, the House took a recess until 8 o'clock.

Pending the announcing of the recess, the speaker laid before the House a message from the President, transmitting a letter from the Secretary of State concerning the awards made against Venezuela by the mixed commission under the convention of April 25, 1866. The President says: "I earnestly invite the attention of Congress to this communication and the accompanying enclosures. In case neither House takes action on it during the present Congress, I shall feel it my duty to direct that this prolonged discussion be definitely terminated by recognizing the absolute validity of all the awards." Referred.

The Republicans were able to secure only 118 votes on this vote, and the point of no quorum having been made, the House, on motion of Mr. Calkins (at 10 o'clock) adjourned.

THE NIGHT SESSION.

When the House met at 8 o'clock the galleries were well filled, and on the floor there was a much larger attendance than usually is secured at night session. There was, however, evidently not a quorum of Republicans present, and a call of the House was ordered. This call was interrupted several times by other roll-calls on motions to excuse various members from the evening session, and was not concluded until 9:45, when further proceedings under the call were dispensed with, and the question recurred on the motion made prior to the recess that when the House adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

An adjournment was effected at 10 o'clock.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

They are Exercised over the Proposed Reduction—Afraid to go on Record.

A special meeting of the Board of School Trustees was held at the Franklin school building last night to consider the clause in the District bill now pending in the Senate, which provides for a reduction of the school board from nineteen, its present number, to nine members. There were present—Messrs. Matthews, in the chair, Sampson, Smith, Curtis, Dodge, Pearson, Brown, Fairley, Griswold, and Pope. The secretary, Mr. C. B. Rheem, read the call for the meeting and also letters from Tallmadge A. Lambert and Benjamin G. Lovejoy declining to attend the meeting and saying that it would be as a body upon a legislative proposition, whose passage would end its official career, and expressing the opinion that a smaller body, such as contemplated by Congress, would better answer the purposes of a school committee. A general discussion was then indulged in by the members of the board, each one saying that he individually was willing to become an ex-trustee, but there was quite a diversity of opinion upon the question of the reduction, the members being about equally divided for and against it. Mr. Pearson presented

THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

"That, in view of the fact that the proposed reduction of the Board of Trustees of public schools from its present number is a matter touching the tenure of office of all its present members, this board declines to take any action in the matter." Mr. Fairley also introduced a resolution which read, "That, in the opinion of this board, the interests of the schools of this District would not be subserved by a reduction of the present number of school trustees." A hearty disinclination to vote upon either resolution was exhibited, and, after some time had been spent in eulogizing the work of the board and criticising Representative Cobb, of Indiana (who introduced the amendment reducing the board), and the District Commissioners, the resolutions were referred to a select committee consisting of Messrs. Curtis, Fairley, and Pearson. A resolution was passed closing the schools on Decoration Day, and the board then adjourned.

Garfield Memorial Monument.

The committee of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, having in charge the raising of funds for the erection of a monument in this city to the memory of General Garfield, has prepared an address to the press of the United States, setting forth that there has been such a prompt and cheerful response to the appeal of the 5th instant, in which the press were asked to receive and acknowledge subscriptions, that the committee finds it wholly impracticable to attempt at this time, as intended, the publication through the Associated Press of a list of the papers that will aid the project by publishing the proposed address to the people on Decoration Day. The committee announces that the list will be published later in connection with the results of the alliance.

Washington as a Manufacturing City.

The census report of the manufactures of the city of Washington, which is included as one of the twenty principal cities of the country, represents that there are 961 manufacturing establishments here, with a capital of $5,381,226; employing on an average 5,405 males above 16 years of age, 1,261 females above 15 years of age, and 257 children and youths. The total amount paid in wages during the census year was $3,897,126; for materials, $5,234,611, and the products are valued at $11,041,185.

WEST WASHINGTON.

During the fishing season a report concerning the condition of the water at Great Falls will be published each day, as furnished by the Washington Aqueduct office, Georgetown, using the following scale of measurement: Very turbid, 0 to 8; turbid, 8 to 15; slightly turbid, 15 to 22; clear, 22 to 36. Condition of the water, Thursday, May 25: At Great Falls, 9; at receiving reservoir, 32; at distributing reservoir, 36.

Mr. John Trundle and Miss Lulie Spates, both of Montgomery County, Md., were married Wednesday afternoon, at the parsonage of the Presbyterian Church, on P street, by the Rev. Dr. Howe. Immediately after the ceremony was performed the happy pair left for Frederick, Md.

The river was fairly alive with pleasure boats yesterday afternoon and evening, quite a number of them containing ladies, who appear to manifest fully as much interest in boating matters as the gentlemen. It is quite a common thing now to see the fair sex pulling an oar, and many are becoming quite proficient.

The steamer Rotary, Captain Minter, from Plymouth, N. C., arrived with 100,000 feet of lumber and 60,000 shingles, and schooner Annie E. Clark, Captain Wheeler, from Norfolk, Va., with 20,000 feet of lumber; both cargoes for the Messrs. Libbey.

Canal-boat Mollie C. Waters arrived yesterday with 2,200 bushels of wheat, which sold for $1.43½.

Sale of fish—46,000 herring, at $5 to $6 per 1,000, and 300 shad, at $16 to $20 per 100.

High tide, May 26 (Friday), 2:11 a. m. and 2:36 p. m.
