Approaching the End.

To-day the vote of each county of the state of New York will be canvassed by the persons and in the manner prescribed by law. Both of the great parties have arranged to be represented be counsel in all the counties. It may be relied upon that all proceedings had will be jealously scrutinized. This is as it should be, for it will lend weight and authority to the decision of the boards, and satisfy the people as to the fairness and legality of their acts. Each precinct return will be scrutinized, and if found to be in conformity with the law of the state will be recorded in accordance with its face. If any returns are invalid under the terms of the state law they will no doubt be rejected, as is done in canvassing the returns of every election held in New York. When the county boards have finished their labors the result in each county will be given to the world, and must stand. Not until then will any man know whether Blaine or Cleveland has carried New York. After that all men will know which of the two candidates has the only right to its electoral vote. In the meantime all good citizens will be patient and prepared to cheerfully bow to the lawful declaration of the result, whether it runs with their wishes or contrary to them.

WE are supremely confident that the official returns will show who is elected.

THE trouble with a majority of those who will want office should Cleveland be elected is that they cannot read.

FALSE claims of democrats and the beating of bourbon tom-toms will not deter the republicans from having a fair count.

WASHINGTON has never failed to appreciate its militia organizations. It has now another cause to be proud of its Light Infantry.

WE are advised by the highest authority that neither of the shrieking proclamations by the democratic committees will be counted in the official returns.

BARNUM and Gorman and Manning should try for admission to the "deadshot" brigade. They have been doing a deal of shooting of late—with their mouths.

THE Light Infantry has discovered that Washington is a city, and handsomely taken advantage of the discovery. The public can well afford to give its enterprise a handsome support.

THE newspapers of the "rowdy west" are disposed to regard with contempt and scorn the vaporings of the Barnum-Gorman-Manning crowd. "What are you bellyaching about?" is the way they address the hysterical shriekers.

THE new Albaugh opera house was opened last evening, and a splendid audience honored the event. Washington now has one house of amusement that will compare favorably with any in the country. Now let us have an elegant hotel or two and other fine buildings.

IF the count should disclose the unpleasant fact that Cleveland has received a majority of the votes of New York, Smith, who got up on his hind legs and howled with fear lest the "thieving republicans" were going to rob somebody of something, will go down to his grave thinking that he did it. Smith will forevermore be a great man in his own estimation.

WE are requested to state that the Post's rooster is still alive and that there are some slight hopes of his ultimate recovery. He has been freely dosed with proclamations and claims during the last few days, and the effect has been stimulating, though not very strengthening. An infusion of "official count" will be given him to-day, and if that don't save him he's gone.

IT is a great crime for republicans to consult together, and we would suggest that all republicans who consult be indicted for conspiracy forthwith. The law is clear. Republicans have no right whatever to consult in view of the abundant proof that democrats universally "concede" the election of Cleveland and Hendricks, and they should stop it right away. A good plan would be for them not to speak as they pass by.

MANY sections of the south are "agin the government" because the government insists on collecting internal revenue taxes. They will speedily turn against the democrats in the event of a change of administration for the same reason, and that may result in a smashing of the solid south. The moonshiners will not be counted out. They are on the shoot, and, besides, they are adepts themselves in that line of politics peculiar to southern states.

THE Charleston News and Courier is "surprised and humiliated" that there should be

"Difficulty in carrying such a state as New York, when the good people of South Carolina can secure a victory under circumstances far more onerous and trying than those which surround any northern or western state."

We venture to suggest to the foreign editor of the News and Courier that the shooting matinees through which the South Carolina bourbons carry their state in the face of an overwhelming adverse majority would be attended by remarkably unpleasant drawbacks if attempted in New York or any other northern state. It would be "onerous and trying" indeed to any party that would attempt to carry a northern state by the infamous means employed in South Carolina. The bourbons who would attempt such a game in the north would speedily discover a vast difference in the fighting qualities of the northern republicans and the unarmed blacks of South Carolina. If the aforesaid foreign editor would reflect for a moment it might occur to him that a large section of the men who voted the republican ticket in New York but a few years back marched roughshod over South Carolina soil, and he can obtain abundant evidence from his neighbors to the general effect that if the South Carolina republicans were made of such stuff as the New York republicans are no South Carolina bourbon would dream of undertaking the "onerous and trying" task of carrying the state by shotgun and rifle. The shooting back would be certain, effective, and too awfully "trying" for expression.

The Future of Washington.

Some of our business men are fearful that the material interests of the city will suffer in the event of the election of Cleveland and Hendricks. Men who are of that way of thinking might as well relieve their minds of all apprehensions on the subject at once. Washington is too large a city to seriously feel the effects of a change in the administration of the general government. The money that is earned by employes of the government, in and about the departments, and spent on the ground, enters very largely into the calculations of our merchants and business men generally, but if they stop to consider the matter they will find comfort in the knowledge that this money will continue to be earned and spent here until the end of time, or, at least, until the end of the republic, and none of us have any need to lay plans beyond its dissolution.

We have no desire to raise false hopes in the hearts of department clerks that they will be permitted to remain in undisturbed possession of their desks should the next administration be democratic. We have no faith whatever in the honesty of democratic professions of admiration for civil service reform, and firmly believe that they will override the existing law and make a clean sweep of republican clerks at the earliest possible moment. For every place in the gift of the administration there will be a thousand clamorous democratic applicants. The pressure from the ravenous horde will be overwhelming and irresistible. Neither Cleveland nor any other man, however honest might be his desire to protect faithful public servants in their positions, can withstand it.

It is not our purpose to excite unnecessary alarm in the minds of any of our readers who may be in the service of the government, but to all such we have only to say that common prudence, founded on an acquaintance with democratic instincts, will warn them to put their houses in order for a moving should the democratic party come out ahead in the contest that is now about at an end. They might as well prepare to face the music and accept what we think will be the inevitable consequence of the election of Cleveland and Hendricks, viz., a revolution in the departments within a twelvemonth of the inauguration of a democratic president.

That there will be a great many cases of individual suffering and hardship consequent upon a restoration of the party of spoils to power we have no doubt, but we do not believe that the interests of the city as a city will be injured thereby. Considerable property that has been partially paid for by government employes may be thrown on the market, but the demand will be stimulated, and it is not probable that much of it will be sacrificed. For every person who moves away or is forced out, another will be ready to move in. For a long time the city will be full of hungry strangers who must be fed and cared for, and the presence of this throng will more than make up for the loss to our merchants that will naturally result from closer economy on the part of those who will feel that they must curtail expenses and provide against an impending rainy day.

Washington, as the most beautiful city in America, and as the capital of the greatest nation in the world, must expand and increase in wealth, population, and business year by year.

In this connection it will be well to remember that Cleveland and Hendricks are not yet in.

A Possible Cabinet.

If Mr. Cleveland is elected—which is yet a matter of grave doubt—he will have been chosen by 153 electoral votes from the "solid south," a fact which our democratic contemporaries, for some purpose best known to themselves, keep constantly before our eyes and exult over most unanimously. He needs, therefore, but 48 votes from northern states to secure control of the government, although if New York is counted in his favor he will have 219. As a matter of fact then, three-fourths of the votes necessary for his election come from southern states, and as a matter of fairness three-fourths of the favors he will have to bestow will be demanded and should perhaps be given to this section. It will be difficult for Mr. Cleveland to divide his seven cabinet officers in this ratio, as three-fourths would be a small fraction more than five and a larger fraction less than six. He can, however, make things even by appointing the lesser number and disbursing the lesser favors with a more generous hand.

The south will undoubtedly demand the appointment of those it most warmly admires and highly honors. How, then, would something like this suit the country?

Jefferson Davis, of Mississippi, president of the late southern confederacy, secretary of state.

Dan Manning, of New York, secretary of the treasury.

Fitz-John Porter, of New Jersey, court-martialled for betraying the union army at the second battle of Bull Run, secretary of war.

Henry Watterson, of Kentucky, secretary of the navy.

Jacob Thompson, of Mississippi, secretary of the interior under Buchanan, and later a confederate commissioner to Canada, secretary of the interior.

John H. Reagan, of Texas, postmaster general in Jeff Davis's cabinet, postmaster general.

Gen. Robert Toombs, of Georgia, of the late confederacy, attorney general.

For some of the most important diplomatic and bureau positions the following possibilities may be contemplated:

Richelieu Robinson, minister to the court of St. James.

Lieut. Gen. John B. Gordon, of Georgia, of the late confederacy, minister to France.

Joseph Pulitzer, minister to Germany.

Abram S. Hewitt, consul at Cork.

Senator Benjamin F. Jonas, of Louisiana, minister to Russia.

Gen. Jubal Early, of the late confederacy, minister to Hayti or Liberia.

Gen. Basil Duke, of Kentucky, and late of the confederacy, commissioner of pensions.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, late of the confederacy, quartermaster general—a position deserted by him when the war broke out.

Frank James, one of the first citizens of Missouri, commissioner of education.

W. H. Barnum, of Connecticut, Indian commissioner.

Gen. P. G. T. Beauregard, of Louisiana, late of the confederacy, assistant commissioner of pensions.

Joseph W. Harper, jr., chief of the bureau of printing and engraving.

George William Curtis, government printer.

Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee, late of the confederacy, commissioner of agriculture.

Gen. Epps Hunton, late of the confederacy, commissioner of patents.

Carl Schurz, captain of the watch of the treasury department.

W. H. Vanderbilt, chief of the bureau of labor statistics.

Gen. George B. McClellan, commissioner of internal revenue.

Richard T. Merrick, pardon clerk of the attorney general's department.

Mr. Trenholm, fiscal agent of the late confederacy, assistant secretary of the treasury.

Gen. Rosecrans, chief of fire brigade of the war department.

John Kelly, outside sentinel.

Timothy Sullivan and Patrick Rooney, district commissioners.

Joseph E. McDonald, first assistant postmaster general; E. John Ellis, second assistant.

THE democratic national committee is in receipt of a telegram from New Mexico to the effect that "five thousand dead shots are ready to come on to help out Cleveland." The "five thousand dead shots" should come on by all means. They should join the one thousand Kentucky dead shots that have volunteered for a similar duty, and the Maryland dead shots and the dead shots from other states of the solid south who want to march on Washington and install Gov. Cleveland without waiting for the official count. If it should turn out that Blaine has received a majority of the votes of New York there wouldn't be enough of these dead shots to wad a gun with. Dead shot bluffs don't count.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE NATIONAL.

There was no performance at the National theater last night, much to the disappointment of a large number of people who had expected to listen to the Milan opera troupe in Verdi's "Aida." The musical score did not reach this city until too late for a rehearsal of the orchestra, and rather than run the risk of an incomplete performance the management decided to postpone the opening until to-night. The same number of performances will be given, however, the programme being moved forward one night and the season concluding on Saturday night instead of with a matinee, as was at first intended. The interest felt in this company, which has been so successful in New York, is evidenced from the fact that, although the option was presented to those who went to the theater last night either to exchange their seats for some other night or have their money refunded, less than $20 was returned at the box office. To-night "Aida" will be given with Giannani, Wilmant, Serbolini, Rologna, Mestress, and Damarini in the cast. The repertoire for the balance of the week is as follows: Wednesday, "Rigoletto;" Thursday, "Norma;" Friday, "Il Trovatore;" Saturday matinee, "Aida," and Saturday night, "Barbiere." In view of the change in the plans of the company it was determined by the management to drop the new opera, "Il Guarany." Fugazza, the new tenor, will make his first appearance in America to-morrow night, in "Rigoletto," he having arrived in New York last Saturday.

Next week at the National the Madison Square company will produce "Called Back," a dramatization of the novel of that name, by the author, Mr. Hugh Conway, and Mr. Comyns Carr.

THE HOOP OF GOLD.

The sensational melodrama "Hoop of Gold" was presented for the first time in this city at Ford's Opera house last evening. It is a story of English domestic life, with unlimited suffering, ending in the conventional happy way. It had a run in London of over 700 nights. The play is full of thrilling incidents and exciting situations, and furnishes full scope for scenic display and mechanical effects. The scene showing the Thames embankment was particularly fine and effective and elicited hearty applause. The plot of the piece is an ingenious romance of the fortunes and misfortunes of a young girl who left her father's house to wed the one she loved.

Miss Georgia Tyler, as Ruth Bullion, gave to that character so lifelike an impersonation as to call forth frequent and hearty applause. Mr. Fred. Lennox, as Scotty; Mr. Morton, as Richard Wrench, and Walter Lennox, as Sammy Wetherwick, acted with a conscientiousness of their individual parts, and were more than acceptable. The company is a very good one indeed, and the play fresh and interesting.

ANTOINETTE JANISH—COUNTESS 'ARCO.

The Washington debut of this eminent foreign actress follows the Abbott inauguration of Albaugh's opera house, and will be the first dramatic engagement in the new theater. Her American debut occurred in New York Sept. 29, when she essayed the English drama for the first time. Her complete mastery of English and her consummate art proved a genuine revelation and won the enthusiastic admiration of the press and public. The superior artistic accomplishments of Mme. Janish, the attractions of youth and beauty, will rapidly win her favor on the American stage.

The Postoffice and Pension Bureau.

The President yesterday appointed Gov. Schuyler Crosby, of Montana, to be first assistant postmaster general. It is understood that Gen. Beaver, of Pennsylvania, is to be appointed commissioner of pensions. He is a lawyer, with a large practice, and ran for governor of the state, but was defeated by Pattison during the democratic tidal wave.

A Soft Answer.

A prominent hotel proprietor received a dispatch Saturday morning, from a friend, asking: "Who is president this morning? Answer." The answer was: "Chester Allan Arthur, of New York, is still President of the United States."

ABOUT PEOPLE.

SARAH BERNHARDT is rehearsing "Theodora."

ADA CAVENDISH, the actress, is recovering from her recent illness.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH'S snuff box has been recently discovered in England. There was nothing in it.

SECRETARY CHANDLER left Warren, N. H., yesterday on the way to Washington, where he expects to arrive Thursday.

SECRETARY MCCULLOCH has returned from a short visit to his country seat, and resumed his duties at the treasury department.

PARISIANS are bothered more about the illness of Sara Bernhardt that they are about affairs in the east or the increased taxation.

SECRETARY TELLER, Postmaster General Hatton, and Chief Clerk Walker, of the postoffice department, have returned to Washington.

MRS. M. D. LINCOLN, who was taken suddenly ill Aug. 23, is slowly regaining her health, and will resume her literary works when fully recovered.

GEN. DUMONT, supervising inspector general of steam vessels, whose headquarters were in Albany, N. Y., during the month of October, has commenced his official duties in Washington.

DOM PEDRO, when recently starting on a pleasure trip on a small steam yacht down the Bahia et Todos Santos, from Rio de Janeiro, fell overboard, and was hauled out of the briny by a naval engineer officer and an army officer. Both were made barons.

MRS. EMILY F. HOUT has a novel entitled "From Gray to Gold" in the publishers' hands. The scenes are laid in Bombay, Egypt, Ireland, England, France, and Washington. Mrs. Hart has traveled extensively, and has now ready for the press three short stories, two English in style.

IN Boston they tell a really shocking story to the effect that Miss Georgie Cayvan, while praying there, happened one day to be in a florist's shop, pointed out a certain wire form, and requested that it be used the next time one of her admirers left an order for a floral tribute. It is to be hoped that no one will believe the tale.

GOV. CLEVELAND has received the elaborate gavel made last winter for presentation to the democratic candidate for the presidency. It is composed of palmetto wood from South Carolina, a bit of the Charter Oak, and fragments of wood from Lincoln's log cabin, from the old elm of Boston Common, and from the torch Gen. Putnam carried into the wolf's den, petrified wood from Washington's tomb, and marble from the Roman temple of Julius Cesar.

A Profitable Investment!
EACH $5 DOUBLED MONTHLY, AND LOSS RENDERED IMPOSSIBLE.
A NEW CITY, BEAUTIFULLY LOCATED
Hinsdale City, adjoining beautiful Garden City—the "loveliest village of the plain"—and Creedmoor Rifle Range, N. Y. Several thousand building lots, surrounding Hinsdale depot, $190 each, selling on monthly payments of $5 per 100; four lots, $10 per month. Prices advanced $5 per lot monthly until present prices are at least doubled. Cottages $10 monthly for each $1,000 of cost. Nuisances and shanties prohibited; no malaria, chills, fevers, or mosquitoes; climate, soil, drives, and surroundings unsurpassed. Building optional with purchaser; fair dealing guaranteed; nothing overcolored. Buy for investment, residence, or summer home. New York will be
THE FUTURE CITY OF THE WORLD.
Property around it is rapidly increasing in value and must continue to do so. You enter no uncertain venture by investing in Hinsdale. Prices are low compared with all other New York surrounding; increase certain; prospective value greater than any property equidistant. Hinsdale is 13 miles from New York—35 minutes by rail, and 5 minutes additional by Brooklyn bridge or ferry; and the commutation averages 10 cents per trip. It is on the main line of the Long Island Railroad, and is the junction for both Garden City and Creedmoor Rifle Ranges. Improvements proposed, &c., will render Hinsdale an attractive place of abode. Agents wanted of either sex. Circulars, &c., of
