THERE appears to be a southern clique who are at work to keep Senator Garland out of the cabinet. His bourbonism is not rank enough to suit them. They would prefer some one who never omits to plume himself on the part he took in the lost cause.

THE chances of defeating the river and harbor steal grow better as the session nears its close. Only ten days more remain for the consideration of that bill and the regular appropriation bills. It was forced yesterday to give the right of way to an appropriation bill, and if its opponents are as active as its friends, a number of millions may be saved to the country.

IT is about time for Elijah M. Haines to indicate to the Illinois democrats that they can elect a senator by uniting upon him. Their longer support of Mr. Morrison seems to be futile. As in the speakership contest, Mr. Haines holds the trump card. He votes for Mr. Morrison as long as there is no chance of electing him, but should Mr. Haines's vote be essential to give Mr. Morrison a majority he would probably have conscientious scruples about electing a free trade senator.

THE first blush of joy that came to the noses-nicks of the democratic party over accidental victory last fall has rapidly fled, and upon their faces can now be seen the lean, hungry, and distant look of old. It is dawning upon their minds that, perhaps, this is not to be the genuine, long-hoped-for democratic restoration ter all. The snub of Hendricks, the failure of the McDonald boom, and a general intimation from Mr. Cleveland that he has no use for the old, worn-out party hacks of the democracy confirm their apprehensions.

THE members of the Oregon legislature are paid for a limited session. If they desire to transact business after the expiration of this term they must do so without their per diem. Considering the importance attaching to the election of a republican successor to Senator Slater, the governor should reconvene the members in extra session, and there should be party fidelity enough among the republican members assembled at the capitol and remain their without compensation until this duty is performed. By this means they can repair their mistake.

WHY would it not be well to put Samuel J. Tilden in the cabinet? He is charged with making the selections, and he is about the only democratic statesman who is accused of having any opinions upon living questions. If Mr. Tilden is to run the next administration it would be a matter of convenience to have him a part of it and stationed in this city. It would save continual halts in the democratic march of reform that would ensue if he is to be consulted on all subjects, from the removal of a tide waiter to the construction of a party policy.

INSTEAD of adding a clause to the sundry civil bill giving to the president elect the power to suspend at will the coinage of silver, the amendment should provide for the summary restriction of the coinage of silver and the issue of silver certificates. It is the duty of congress to deal with this question, and the republicans are in nowise bound to aid the democrats in shirking responsibility. There is nothing in Mr. Cleveland's record to entitle him to more confidence in this respect than has been accorded republican presidents, and this power has been refused to his predecessors. Mr. Cleveland's cabinet is still an enigma. Mr. Manning, his probable secretary of the treasury, is not so well known in the financial world as to afford any guarantee of what his course upon matters of finance will be after he has accepted the treasury portfolio. There is an opportunity to meet the question fairly. Congress can and should fix a limit to the coinage of silver. The power is in its hands and should not be transferred to another. Let the republicans insist that the democrats shall face the music.

The Folly of Oregon Republicans.

The action of the republicans of the Oregon legislature in adjourning sine die without electing a successor to Senator Slater, whose term expires March 4, 1885, is inexcusable. The republican party of the whole country was interested in this result; and it was important, as affecting the political status of the senator of the fiftieth congress, that the republicans of Oregon should harmonize all personal differences and elect a senator for the term of six years commencing March 4, 1885. This they have failed to do. If all reports be true the Democrats, as soon as the pay of members of the legislature ceased, went home and left the republican members to elect a senator or not as they saw fit. Even their personal antagonisms held away and the republicans deliberately threw away their opportunity and trusted to the chance of electing a republican legislature next year.

Of course Gov. Zenas F. Moody, who is a republican, will appoint a senator to fill the vacancy, but, in addition to the objection that will probably be raised by the democrats to his admission, the delay that will consequently ensue, his appointment will only hold through the next congress at best. With the hope of securing a majority of the upper branch of congress, does any one suppose that the whole power of the next administration will not be thrown in the scale of the Oregon election to make it democratic in its results? The small republican majority in the senate will, for two years of Mr. Cleveland's administration, stand between its error, its pernicious doctrines, its mistakes, and the country. The anchor of security for protection to American industry was the prospect that the republicans would at least hold a majority in the senate for the next four years. Until the final adjournment of the Oregon legislature the outlook was certainly encouraging. And while we now believe that two years more of democratic rule, intensified by the inordinate greed of that party for spoils, will be sufficient to satisfy the country, and that the republicans will elect a majority of the members of the house in the fiftieth congress, there was no occasion for throwing away our opportunities. If the party is to win victories in the future there must be united action, and personal aspirations and antagonisms must give way to the prosperity and success of the whole party. Republicans in other states should profit by the lesson taught in the folly of the Oregon republicans.

IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

Des Moines Settlers' Title and Postoffice Appropriation Bills Passed by the Senate—Naval Appropriation Bill Passed by the House.

In the senate yesterday the Des Moines settlers' title bill was passed—yeas 31, nays 24.

The postoffice appropriation bill was then resumed.

Some debate arose on the committee's proposed amendment striking out the house provision that would require the secretary of the treasury to bid in competition with the private parties for the manufacture of postage stamps, stamped envelopes, and postal cards. Messrs. Gorman, Plumb, Hawley, Dawes, Beck, Morgan, and McPherson took part in the discussion.

On the question coming to a vote the provision was struck out as recommended by the senate committee—yeas 32, nays 28. The only democratic voting in the affirmative was Mr. Beck; the only republican in the negative was Mr. Sherman.

The senate also agreed to the committee's amendments striking on the provisions for an extra 10-cent postage rate on letters intended for special expedition in delivery.

Mr. Frye offered an amendment appropriating $800,000 for transportation of foreign mails, including transit across the Isthmus of Panama, and authorizing the postmaster general to contract with the lowest responsible bidder for the carriage of such mails, and not to exceed 30 cents a nautical mile on the trip each way actually traveled between terminal points; but providing that such mails shall be carried on American steamships, and the aggregate of such contracts shall not exceed one-half the sum appropriated by the amendment.

Mr. Bayard made the point of order that Mr. Frye's amendment was general legislation.

Mr. Beck supported the point made by Mr. Bayard.

Mr. Frye insisted that no appropriation bill had ever been submitted to congress that did not have more general legislation than was covered by his amendment. He took up the very bill under discussion and pointed out provisions of general legislation to which the senate had agreed, especially the provisions affecting the rates of postage, and Mr. Beck had voted for that legislation.

Mr. Beck said Mr. Frye's amendment was a subsidy to a certain small class of men. It was the old Pacific Mail subsidy—an unjust discrimination giving $800,000 out of the treasury to a few men now owning a few ships. There would be no time to build any new ships before this subsidy would expire, as it would expire with the appropriation bill. This would enrich a few pets of congress.

Mr. Frye said the amendment had several times been submitted to the senate and agreed to. But he had not intended to discuss the merits of the question, and since Mr. Beck had done so, Mr. Frye inquired whether it was not "subsidy" for a one-horse stage running through the back hills of Kentucky to get $800 a year—more than a dollar a year for every letter carried. He supposed it was not "subsidy" for the rest of the country to make up Kentucky's deficiency of half a million dollars a year on her mail service. But it became "subsidy" when any one proposed to help American steamships by paying a fair price for carrying the United States mails. The United States had made last year $1,500,000 out of their foreign mail—that is to say out of American ships. We paid last year $325,000 for carrying all our foreign mails. Italy in the same time paid $2,000,000; France, $4,500,000; England, over $3,000,000.

Mr. Frye said that the Pacific Mail Company was always brought up as a bugaboo whenever a proposition of this sort came up. That company had expended $10,000,000 in American shipyards among American mechanics, instead of expending the same amount of money in shipyards in England or on the Clyde, where the senator from Kentucky [Mr. Beck] would have it expended. Instead of $800,000 for the good of merchant shipping, if Mr. Frye could have his way, he would expend $4,000,000, so that the American flag may be seen in the ports of the world.

Messrs. Beck, Vest, Call, and Plumb continued the discussion.

On Mr. Bayard's point being brought to a vote, the amendment was held to be in order—yeas 35, nays 24.

After some remarks by Mr. Van Wyck, Mr. Frye's amendment was agreed to—yeas 35, nays 18. All of the republicans, except Mr. Hill, voted for the amendment, and all of the democrats except Messrs. Brown, Call, Morgan, and Pugh voted against it.

On motion of Mr. Brown the senate resumed the house proposition permitting newspaper articles to be marked without increase of postage.

The bill was then read a third time and passed without division. It now goes to the house of representatives for concurrence or non-concurrence in the senate amendments.

Mr. Mitchell said he would to-day call up the private pension bills on the senate calendar.

The senate then, at 5:25 p. m., on motion of Mr. Ingalls, went into executive session, and when, at 7:35, the doors were reopened the senate adjourned.

The house then proceeded to the consideration of business under the special rule.

The states were called for the introduction of bills, but very few were presented. The most important of these being one introduced by Mr. Perkins, of Kansas, to open up the Oklahoma lands to homestead settlement.

On motion of Mr. Randall, the consideration of business pertaining to the District of Columbia was postponed until the evening session. Mr. Randall then moved that the house go into committee for the further consideration of the naval appropriation bill, and though opposed by the supporters of the river and harbor bill, the motion was carried—yeas 136, nays 135; and at 1:20 the house went into committee as indicated.

A lengthy debate ensued, the substance of which will be found elsewhere in THE REPUBLICAN. At 6:15 the committee arose, and the house passed the bill.

A recess was then taken until 8 o'clock—the evening session to be for the consideration of business relating to the District of Columbia.

The Theaters.

"Falka" at Albaugh's, "Victor Durand" at the National, and "Fanchonette" at Ford's all drew good houses last night. At the first two places of amusement the same bills will be repeated to-night, while at Ford's the Ideals will appear in "Fra Diavolo."

A grand matinee concert was given yesterday afternoon at Willard hall, under the auspices of the National Homeopathic hospital. The performers were all members of the Boston Ideal Opera company, now performing at Ford's opera house. The programme was given under the direction of Mr. S. L. Studley, and nearly every number was encored.

The concert was in every respect a success and a handsome sum was realized for a deserving purpose.

Callender's colored minstrels open at Ford's Opera House on Thursday night. This company is well and favorably known in this city, having played here for many seasons. One of their great acts is the "canave drill," in which they are said to be unequaled by any body of men now on the road. There will be a grand street parade on the afternoon preceding the performance.

Special Agent Rathbone's Testimony.

Chief of Special Examiners of the Pension Office Rathbone was before the committee investigating the pension office yesterday, and testified that the work for the past year had increased 10 per cent over the previous year. He was asked what the quality of work, but the question was objected to. Commissioner Clarke testified that he did not know the whereabouts of the chief of the special examiners last September. Mr. Rathbone read telegrams to show where he was. He telegraphed for leave on Oct. 1 and until the 14th, which was granted. At the end of his leave he went to Chicago and other cities on business. He said: "I was at Cincinnati. I was while on my leave accountable in no way to the pension office."

G. A. R. Petition for Grant's Retirement.

Mr. Miller, of California, presented in the senate yesterday a petition received by telegraph from the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, now in session in San Francisco, Cal., praying the immediate passage by congress of a bill to place Gen. Grant on the retired list. The petition was, under the rule, laid on the table, the senate having already on its part passed a bill to carry out the purpose prayed for by the petition.

"The Boss Devil."

Rev. Dr. E. D. Huntley lectured last night at the Douglass Memorial M. E. Church, corner of Eleventh and H streets northeast, on the subject: "The Boss Devil." A large audience was present, and duly appreciated the lecturer's efforts by frequent applause. Intemperance proved to be the "Boss Devil," and the lecturer very forcibly pointed out the various means used to lead the youth of the day in that direction. He admonished parents for their neglect in properly training children.

Bible Work in Washington.

The board of managers of the Washington City Bible Society held their monthly meeting last evening at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms, Rev. A. W. Pitzer, president, in the chair. The committee appointed to confer with the Georgetown Bible Society, in reference to the exploration of that portion of the city, reported progress and were continued. The treasurer's report showed contributions in the month, $23.02; sales, $48.15; overdrawn, $61.58; total, $108.75. Disbursements, bibles to agent and colporteur, $43.66; expense of colportage, $32.61; overdrawn at last report, $22.74; bibles distributed from depository, $3.74; total, $102.75. One thousand and sixty-two families and business places were visited, 59 families found destitute, 59 families and 39 individuals supplied, 111 bibles and 102 testaments sold, 2 bibles and 44 testaments distributed. The secretary was directed to prepare a circular showing the work of the society in the year and its present financial status. Colporteur's work was ordered to be extended to the settled portions of the District. The following committees were appointed to prepare for the annual meeting in April: Committee on anniversary, Rev. Dr. Pitzer, Messrs. Eachy, Wight, and Thomas; committee on nominations, Messrs. Ballantyne, Meriwether, and Jones; committee on annual report, Messrs. Shields, Pitzer, and Ballantyne.

Union Veterans, Old Guard.

The "Fools' Session" of the Union Veteran Company, Old Guard, at Masonic Temple last night drew a good many people, attracted by the oddity of the entertainment. The hall was tastefully decorated with cypress trees, flags, bunting, and colored lights. A large booth, where flowers were dispensed to the guests, was in the center of the hall, and pretty young girls encouraged the young men to buy. The affair was opened by Hon. Simon Wolf, and Hon. George D. Scott as the chief fool, followed by a dozen brethren, went through a series of antics, and then half a dozen gentlemen were requested to speak, which they did with much embarrassment. To-night there will be a garden party at the hall.

Miss Detweiler's Concert.

The testimonial benefit concert tendered to Miss Emma Detweiler and Mr. D. G. Miller will take place this evening at Congregational Church. An excellent programme, including Misses Detweiller, Ewan, the St. Cecilia Quartette, Messrs. Miller and Waldecker, and Prof. Bischoff, will be presented. Aside from the merit of the programme, it is simply matter of justice that this lady and gentleman, who have freely given their services in aid of every cause that has asked, should receive a substantial recognition at the hands of those whom they have assisted, and it is predicted that a crowded house will greet them.

SPECIAL NOTICES.
