BALTIMORE boasts of a big boom in the banana business.

THE last day of the week finds Cutting still unable to make close connection with the $50,000 which he claims from Mexico.

THE chairman of the Pan-Electric white-washing committee fairly Boyles with rage because of his involuntary retirement to the somber shades of unofficial life.

THE proprieties, not to say necessities, of the situation demand that more money should be expended in cleaning the streets of Washington. Some of the streets should be swept three times as often as they are under the present contract.

THE Mobile Register, the leading Democratic paper in Alabama, and one of the strongest of southern journals, urges the farmers of that state to look at the matter in a sensible light and see that protection for American industries is for their interest.

THE Pall Mall Gazette makes the odd statement that Queen Victoria owns the finest set in existence of the autographs of the signers of the American declaration of independence.—Exchange.

It is not so odd when one stops to consider that the declaration had a very direct official and personal application to a member of her majesty's family.

OUR new Brooklyn contemporary, the Citizen, is starting well. Though only two days old, it already complains that its press facilities are inadequate for its unexpectedly large circulation. It saves much trouble for a new paper to begin with a big circulation.—Baltimore Herald.

It is merely a question of dollars and cents—mostly the former—whether a new paper begins with a hundred or a hundred thousand "circulation."

THERE are Democrats enough to run the primaries and conventions without trespassing on the valuable time of the officials.—Galveston News.

That is true; but the wicked partisans will retort that there were Democrats enough in the state of New York in 1882 to run the state convention without trespassing on the valuable time of the mayor of Buffalo. These "perniciously active" fellows have a cavity where the bump of veneration is supposed to be located.

JOHN B. GORDON is the second man in history who has had a "walk-over" in Georgia. The first was William Tecumseh Sherman.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Our contemporary forgets that Gen. Gordon secured his nomination—equivalent to an election—as the result of the hardest fought and most bitter campaign known to the political annals of the United States. It is probable that one more campaign of the same sort would hopelessly disrupt the Democratic party in Georgia. We hope they will have one more.

THE Inter Ocean is authority for the statement that there are about 1,000 Chinese in the city of Chicago. There are five Sabbath schools of Chinese pupils, with an average attendance of 225. One of these schools holds sessions five evenings in each week. Eighteen Chinese are members of "The Chinese Christian Association," and eight of these are preparing for missionary work. Several of them are preparing to return to their Chinese homes to engage in labor there. The Inter Ocean is fully justified in claiming that this is not a bad record.

THE Irish Republican and Free Lance, a new paper, says:

After thirty years' experience in American and English politics, and watching both from an Irish-American national standpoint, we have come to the matured conclusion that England is the United States' only enemy among the nations of the world, and that the so-called Democratic party of this country, by its truckling and traitorous conspiracy with the Cobden Club and kindred associations, is the unnatural ally of that insidious government.

The writer of that brief paragraph has certainly studied the Democratic party and its relations to England to some purpose.

ACCORDING to the New York Evening Post Mr. Troup, internal revenue collector in Connecticut, is an "offensive" and "perniciously active" partisan, whose official head should part company with his official shoulders at once. The N. Y. E. P. says:

The President has come to a parting of the ways. He cannot consistently uphold Troup in Connecticut and Magone in New York, since they represent opposing principles, in this—that the one obeys the rules laid down or his guidance and the other does not. If a single head is sent to the basket for violation of the President's order, not another one will disobey it to the end of his term.

It is admitted—indeed, it is notorious—and has been for months, that hundreds of federal officials have been and still are openly boosing local campaigns. What justice can there be in "sending a single head to the basket" for an offense which has been committed by so great a number?

THE Cincinnati Enquirer makes this very ridiculous reference to Mr. Carlisle and the free trade, or strictly revenue tariff, platform, upon which he accepts renomination for Congress:

But the chief point of eagerness with which the country has awaited Mr. Carlisle's declaration of policy relates to economic questions—to the public revenues and to the tariff in relation thereto.

There was no "eagerness" on the part of "the country," or any portion thereof, to know how Mr. Carlisle stood on the tariff question. He has, for a number of years, been the recognized head of the free trade wing of his party; as such he has been elected and re-elected to the speakership. The remark of the Enquirer is far from complimentary to its subject. We shall next be told that the country is waiting in feverish anxiety for a tariff policy declaration from Mr. Randall or his antipodes, Frank Hurd and Roger Q. Mills.

Is It War?

When the Berlin treaty was signed in 1878 the representatives of Austria-Hungary, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Russia, and Turkey returned to their homes with many misgivings about the permanence of the hastily patched-up compact. It was necessary that some European agreement should stop the march of a successful Russian army upon Constantinople, but the domestic affairs of every single nation represented at the congress caused the respective rulers more serious apprehension than even the spread of Panslavism. Disraeli made a triumphal procession through London, and boasted about the "peace with honor" which he and Lord Salisbury had procured for England. But their lordships quickly found that however they might have succeeded in stopping off territory of the Turks, and the rights of the Christians in southern Russia, there were difficulties before them in Ireland which were not to be charmed, coerced, or educated out of existence. Russia returned to her "Ireland" in the form of a triple Poland and an indomitable nihilism. Austria-Hungary took away some small change in the shape of Bosnia, Herzegovina, and the Sanjak of Novi Bazar, only to experience in its eastern portion an intensified hatred of Russia, which had crushed the hopes of Hungary in 1848, and on the Austrian side to find the memories of Sadowa more bitter than before. But Germany, powerful as she had appeared at the international congress under the presidency and domination of Bismarck, derived only ephemeral comfort from this superiority in the council chamber. Emperor William and the chancellor found their more than Irish difficulty in the organized socialism which was not to be appeased by the humiliation of Austria and France, or to be diverted by any political concessions. In fact, the self-same social movement which appears in Chicago as anarchy, in Richmond as Knights of Labor convention, in New York as the canvass of Henry George, in Ireland as the Land League, in Scotland as the crofter rising, in Wales as the tithe disturbance, in England as the offer of Mr. Gladstone to buy out the landlords, or the modified peasant proprietary suggested by Lord Salisbury—this same movement exhibited manifestations at the Berlin congress which brought international deliberations to a conclusion long before the questions involved had been fully considered, and only in submission to the earnest request of Emperor William. The sores which were then only half healed have broken out again with all the force of long accumulating virus. Europe is a great powder barrel, of which Bulgaria happens at present to be the bung-hole. It does not matter much who supplies the fuse. Gen. Kaulbars may have the honor, or young Alexander, or little Churchill, or peradventure the German chancellor himself. And, as the English Spectator says, if this terrible explosion should occur "it is no adventure, no short and sharp campaign, of which the nations are dreaming, but that gigantic calamity, a European war, in which whole nations will be engaged, and first class armies almost as large as peoples will slaughter one another, and the industry of a quarter of the globe will be mortgaged for half a century."

The Drill Boom.

No public movement to advantage Washington has caught the public taste so completely and so generally for many a long day as has the proposed collection here next May of the flower of the citizen soldiery, followed by the crowds of curious and interested civilians from every section of the Union. Men of energy and of good judgment in every department of business and of trade indorse the idea warmly, and most of them have shown that faith by works which induces the prompt insertion of the hand into the breeches pocket.

Only last Monday the finance committee appointed by Chairman Wheatley received the blanks on which to take subscriptions for the drill fund. On Tuesday evening that committee met for consultation; and reports showed that some $18,000 had been pledged in the forty-eight hours just passed; and the public temper on the drill was stated to be such that the emphatic and unanimous decision of the committee was, "Go ahead!"

From unofficial statements since made there is every reason to suppose that the entire amount of subscription asked for ($50,000, with 50 per cent. paid up on or before Jan. 5, 1887) will be booked before the close of business this week.

The reasons for this confidence and for this response so promptly made are simple. They are found in the perfectly practical and reliable composition of the committee, and in the experience of other cities, which have recently asked congregations of strangers within their gates, and then given them something worth coming to see.

This latter Washington offers largely, even without a drill; and her position, with the active co-operation of the railroad lines, insures beyond all peradventure such a gathering of "crack" regiments, battalions, companies, and bands as no other city has yet seen.

The NATIONAL REPUBLICAN holds to its original figures—a million of strangers in ten days, and the representative soldiers of the world, to witness the national drill.

That Conference in New York.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World refers to the frequency of Senator Gibson's visits to the white house, and asserts that the senator has been discussing with the President the alleged violations of the civil service order by Federal office holders in Louisiana. Senator Gibson, the correspondent says, defended the action of Collector Jonas's subordinates, and that of the assistant postmaster and others who participated in the congressional conventions. The President declared that if he found there had been any violation of his order immediate removals would follow, no matter what may have been the provocation. The senator said he thought the President's action inconsistent, for while he insisted on "persecuting" Louisiana officeholders, he encouraged participation of officeholders in politics in the state of New York. The senator laid particular stress on the conference held by Secretary Manning, Collector Magone, and Private Secretary Lamont, and intimated to the President that he believed that Private Secretary Lamont had been dispatched to New York for no other purpose than to assist in bringing about, if possible, a reconciliation between the different political factions. The senator was of the impression that Secretary Manning and Private Secretary Lamont should be governed by the President's order as much as any other person in the government service.

The New York Tribune, being moved to discourse on this suggestive theme, remarks that the spectacle of the private secretary of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, the governor of New York, the mayor of New York, and the chairman of the ruling committee of the County Democracy holding a secret meeting to arrange a truce between the Democratic factions is one that bodes no good to an ill-governed municipality.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent explains that Col. Lamont was sent to New York to inquire about Secretary Manning's health. Of course he was, and it is strange that so simple an explanation did not occur to Senator Gibson, the World, and the Tribune.

What could be more natural and proper than for the President to send Col. Lamont to New York to call the Democratic magnates together when he wants to say "How d'ye do?" to Mr. Manning?

TESTIMONIALS from the New York press commending a new departure in life insurance by the Citizens' Mutual Life Association are published in our columns to-day. They are well worthy of perusal, and are both interesting and instructive to those who desire to obtain life insurance. The president of the company, Levi M. Bates, esq., is one of the solid, successful business men of New York city, but recently retired from the head of a large jobbing dry goods business, several times a millionaire, to take the presidency and practical supervision of the Citizens' Mutual Life Association. The methods and the system of this association must be honest and sound, or Levi M. Bates, whose portrait we print this morning, would not give it the benefit of his name.

THE Shellabarger Live Stock Car Company will have one of their patent apartment cars loaded with cattle in Virginia arrive here to-day or on Monday. It is proposed to have the car remain in this city with its live freight one day for examination by railroad men and others interested in the invention. The limited amount of stock offered by the company for the purpose of extending its business has nearly all been taken by some of our leading citizens, which fully justifies the opinions heretofore expressed by the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN that it would prove a great financial success.

WE invite attention to the lecture delivered by John B. Hamilton, M. D., professor of surgery, at the thirty-eighth annual course of Georgetown Medical College, published in another column of this issue.

Breakfast Table Letter to the President.

MR. PRESIDENT: In political circles the probabilities of your re-election to the presidency in 1888 are freely discussed. It is generally conceded, except among the Tammany Democrats, that you will be the nominee of the Democracy. Your success in the coming contest will much depend upon the candidate of the Republican party. It seems to be well understood that Mr. Logan will not take the second place. But for the purpose of analyzing the situation, admit that the Republican party puts the old ticket in the field, what then would be the result, New York being the battle ground?

Many of the elements that contributed to your success cannot be duplicated.

First. You were a new star in the political horizon, the novelty of the situation excited the curiosity of the people, and they voted for a change, hoping for reform.

Second. The Democratic platform humbugged the people on the tariff issue. Those who voted for you as a protectionist will not do so again, because they know now that you indorse Secretary Manning's policy as laid down in his letter of resignation, a policy that recommends a tariff simply for revenue on a few score of articles and free trade on nearly 4,000 articles. This is English, you know, and in direct opposition to the policy of Brother Jonathan as founded by Washington and clearly declared in the first tariff act in 1789.

Third. Free trade Republicans are Mugwumps, and voted for you under an assurance that you thought as they did, consequently you had the vote of the free traders and the vote of the Democratic protectionists. This is illegical, and will not occur again.

Fourth. Irish-Americans are organizing to wield a powerful influence in 1888.

If the contest is not satisfactorily settled in the British parliament in favor of home rule for Ireland, Irish-Americans who have heretofore voted the Democratic ticket will vote for an experienced statesman and leader, like Blaine, in preference to any Democrat.

Fifth. The present administration has made but little progress in reform or in economy, or given evidence of genius in the management of our foreign policy, consequently it is not safe to calculate any gain from the people who voted against Cleveland and Hendricks in 1884.

Sixth. Republicans who favor manhood suffrage and equality of all before the law will not hereafter vote a prohibition ticket in the presidential election year. It is not safe to calculate that Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion will be repeated by Dr. Burchard.

Seventh. Tammany was loyal to the Democratic ticket in 1884. They have not received their reward from this administration.

Eighth. The victors who want the spoils constitute a majority of the Democratic party, and will be slow to support a presidential nominee who takes eight years to unlock the treasury to them.

In conclusion, Mr. President, you are pledged to a constitutional amendment limiting a President to one term.

This small enumeration of political forces is supposed to be sufficient to wipe out your eleven hundred majority in the Empire State in a second race for the presidency, against such statesmen as Blaine, Sherman, Logan, and Allison, the latter being a dangerous dark horse in the coming contest, as well as the transfer of many colored citizens to states where they will be permitted to vote against the supporters of free trade on the one side, and servile labor on the other.

Notwithstanding all this, there is a growing opinion that you are honest and safe.

THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN.

A Congressional "Freak."

[Chicago Mail.]

The Republicans of the sixth Pennsylvania congressional district have repudiated Mr. J. B. Everhart, who represented that district for two terms in Congress. This is not surprising. A more conceited ass never succeeded in getting into the House of Representatives, and it is surprising that he was ever allowed to get a second term. Everhart belongs to that class of men who, having inherited fortunes, imagine that they inherit brains. Aside from circulating sentimentally written poems among his friends while a member of the House, he made no reputation that would cause him to be remembered one week after his term expires. He is a combination of arrogance, self-conceit, and downright silliness. These attributes probably account for the fact of his having been repudiated by his Republican constituents. He announces himself as an independent candidate, utterly ignoring the obligations of all honorable men who submit their claims to a convention to abide by its result. But as the district he misrepresented has a Republican majority of 5,000, it is incredible that such a freak should be elected; or, what is more probably his purpose, defeat the regularly nominated Republican and secure the election of a Democrat.

A COMMODIOUS BAKERY.

Supplied With the Latest Improvements and Equal to All Demands.

The successful merchant or tradesman is he who constantly keeps abreast of the times in regard to all improvements that look to facilitating his business and enabling him the better to serve his customers. One of the most prosperous business men of this city, and deservedly so, because of the industry and skill which he has brought to bear upon his business, is Mr. John L. Vogt, baker and confectioner, 429 Seventh street northwest, and 927 Pennsylvania avenue. For more than thirty years he has been engaged in furnishing this city with bread, that most necessary of all articles of food, and by attention to the wants of his patrons, and by supplying the finest bread that could be made from the purest and best flour, he has had the satisfaction of seeing his business grow year by year. Several months ago, finding that his facilities were not such as the growing demands of his business required, he determined to erect a new and more commodious bakery, and to fill it with all the latest improvements, regardless of expense. The contemplated new building has been erected, and on yesterday a reporter of the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN was shown through by Mr. Vogt, and was surprised to find so complete and thoroughly-equipped establishment. Three new ovens of the most approved pattern have been put up, and are in splendid working order. In the work room, where the bread is kneaded, the tables and troughs are of the best, and all are kept most scrupulously clean and sweet. The capacity of the ovens is such as to enable Mr. Vogt to fill all his orders easily, and to meet any extraordinary demand that may be made upon him.

On the second floor are sleeping rooms for the single men working in the bakery; also a bath and wash room fitted up for the convenience of the employes of the establishment, and on the same story is a large warероom, which is used to store flour, with a capacity of several hundred barrels. Adjoining the bakery on the ground floor is a very complete, well-arranged stable for the horses which are used to the wagons in delivering the bread, cakes, &c., to the customers in every section of the city. The wagons in use are handsome vehicles, kept in good condition, and when not in use are carefully housed in a building near the stable, which has been erected for that special purpose. In a word, it can be said that Mr. Vogt has the most complete and well-equipped bakery in Washington, and that his already large business will increase to an extent commensurate with his facilities is a fact that scarcely needs to be stated. Mr. Vogt gives employment to eleven bakers, and by working day and night the demands of the trade are supplied.

COL. SWALLOW PLEADS GUILTY

He is Let Off With the Mild Sentence of Two Years.

The regular term of the corporation court opened at Fredericksburg yesterday, Judge Montgomery Slaughter presiding. Col. W. H. Swallow, who was arrested in this city on the charge of forgery, which he had practiced with considerable success, was arraigned for trial. The commonwealth was represented by Mr. John G. Mason and the accused by Col. Jack Brown and Thomas F. Miller, of this city. The prisoner, by consent, was allowed to withdraw his plea of "not guilty" and enter a plea of "guilty" to the indictment for forgery. The jury, after hearing the evidence of Father Donahoe and Capt. T. McCracken, found the prisoner guilty as charged in the indictment and fixed his punishment at two years' confinement in the penitentiary, that being the minimum. By consent of the court, nolle prosequis were entered in the two remaining cases, after which the court sentenced the prisoner in accordance with the verdict rendered. The colonel seemed very happy in escaping with so light a sentence, and has gone to the state prison feeling that he was generously dealt with.

How He Feels.

He feels well—he couldn't feel better. It was even more satisfactory than he anticipated. And his expectations are always lofty, for such is the character of his efforts. But A. Kaufman's Fall Opening this year is unprecedented. His card, "Fulfilling," in another column, will show the reader what variety of goods is offered, and at what attractive prices.

Mr. Mills Gains a Victory.

Wm. H. Mills, the Treasury Department clerk charged with selling flour without a license, was tried in the police court yesterday. There being no violation of the law, and Mr. Mills having shown that his business was legitimate, the case was dismissed
