FRAUDULENT PENSION CLAIM.

A Soldier Without a Company or Regiment.

The attention of the criminal court was occupied yesterday with the case of George Bumbrey, a one-legged colored shoemaker, charged with violating section 5458 of the revised statutes of the United States in presenting a false pension claim. Assistant District Attorney Lipscomb represented the government, and Messrs. T. F. Miller, T. C. Taylor, and Ed Wright the defendant. The government claimed that Bumbrey, whose leg was amputated at Garfield Hospital in this city in 1885, fraudulently applied for a pension under the name of Wm. Ford, sergeant of Company D, second United States colored troops, and established the claim by the testimony of a number of false witnesses.

For the defense it was claimed that the defendant was in the service of the regiment named, and was wounded in battle, and was clearly entitled to a pension, but having been a slave he was in the regiment under a fictitious name. He claimed that if this is clearly shown, even though the name of Ford was used, that Bumbrey was entitled to a pension he could not be convicted.

Bumbrey took the stand in his own behalf and testified that he was a slave in Virginia when the war broke out, and escaped to this city. In 1863 he enlisted in company C, 24 United States colored troops, under the name of Taylor. He used that name, as he was a slave and was afraid of capture. At the battle of Natural Bridge, Fla., he was struck in the right leg by a piece of a shell, which wound, after causing him a good deal of trouble, resulted in the amputation of his leg in 1885. On his return to this city he resumed his own name of Bumbrey. He had made application for a pension under own name, but not under the name of Ford. On cross-examination his memory became poor, and "I don't remember" was his response to many questions. He could not tell the name of a member of his own company, and but one or two officers.

A number of witnesses corroborated Bumbrey's testimony as to his name, identity, &c. This closed the testimony and the court adjourned for the day.

Damages Wanted For Being Disabled.

Melville Blair Dorsey, by Messrs. Coleman and Offley, yesterday instituted suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for $10,000 damages for injuries received while a passenger on a train on that road. In his declaration the plaintiff avers that he was employed as a postal agent at $1,150 per annum, and was running between Grafton, W. Va., and Baltimore, Md.; that on June 22, 1887, the car in which he was riding was thrown from the track at or near Terra Alta, W. Va., and he was seriously and permanently disabled, and obliged thereby to resign his position as postal agent.

Prospecting for the Great Falls Narrow Gauge Road.

The bill which recently passed the House granting a charter to build a narrow gauge railroad from Georgetown to the Great Falls is a measure which greatly interests the people of this place. Several prominent citizens made a trip over the proposed route yesterday, and were thoroughly impressed with the advantages and needs of such a road. It would not only give us rapid transit to one of the most noted and beautiful resorts in this region, but would open up a fine area of country and contribute to the expansion and growth of Georgetown in a westerly direction.

The approaching ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new Catholic university is one in which all Catholics here are deeply interested. Arrangements are being made to secure a large attendance from Georgetown. With this view a meeting of the male members of Trinity parish was held last night at the Parish School Hall, and it was resolved to attend the ceremony in a body.

The Catholic Union also met at their hall, corner of Thirty-first and N streets, to take action in the matter. After the transaction of routine business and the election of several new members the union resolved to co-operate with the pastor of Trinity Church in the arrangements for the occasion, and to attend the laying of the cornerstone in a body.

The union propose to commence at an early day the work of improving and renovating their hall.

Mr. T. A. Newman, who has been dangerously ill at his residence, 3135 M street, was so much better last night that hopes are entertained of his recovery. Mr. Newman is one of the oldest residents of the town, and has been engaged in business here for fifty years.
