The National Republican in Alexandria

Mr. J. T. Cox, news dealer, corner King and Washington streets, is authorized to solicit subscriptions and collect for the same in the city of Alexandria, Va. He will deliver the paper at as early an hour as it is delivered in Washington. Sunday REPUBLICAN always on hand.

THE Sunday NATIONAL REPUBLICAN is booming. It is the freshest, brightest, most readable and cheapest Sunday paper in the District. Every purchaser is sure to get his money's worth. Order it at once.

The epitaph for the Mills bill will be: "Died a-borning."

The Republican convention of Kansas has halt'ed. It indorsed both Plumb and Ingalls for the Presidency.

SECRETARY FAIRCHILD is a good clerk, but a poor financier. Civil service did not work well in this case after the resignation of Secretary Manning.

CONGRESSMAN HOCK's dialogue with Farmer "Jack" on the tariff was a volume of practical truths which cannot be controverted by the Cobden Club.

WHEN the Carlisle Democracy succeed in driving out of the party Randall and his associate protectionists they will find that their pole is not long enough to knock the persimmons.

REPUBLICAN candidates for the presidency will experience the truth of the remark of Abraham Lincoln regarding office-seekers—that the party has more pegs than holes.

THE refusal by the Democracy to reduce internal taxation and the conspiracy to increase the surplus in order to reduce the tariff has demoralized business and will defeat the Democratic party this fall.

IN twenty-six days Grover Cleveland will be renominated for the presidency by the St. Louis convention, as the President has failed to secure an amendment to the constitution forbidding a second term.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND by this time must have learned that when he was advised not to call an extra session of Congress, and accepted such advice against his own judgment, he committed the great blunder of the administration.

The soundest measure for the relief of labor that was ever introduced into any deliberative body is the bill of Senator Stanford for co-operation. No man who wishes to keep a seat in Congress or loves his country will vote against it.

IN closing the debate upon the tariff, Carlisle and Breckinridge will represent the Democrats, Reed and McKinley the Republicans. In this conflict of ideas by the leaders of the House of Representatives the spectators will experience a great treat.

THE Hill Democracy are sharpening their knives to take scalps, and will be heard from at an early day. Notwithstanding this, Brother Hill is under suspension for the present and is not considered in good and regular standing in the Democratic church—if they have any.

THE administration is getting hot in the collar. The order will be issued that any Democratic member of Congress who votes against the Mills bill votes against the President's policy. The offenders will be considered guilty of a mortal sin. Their names will be placed on the black list and their noses will be removed from the feed trough.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, it is said, is getting ready to take the reins of the Treasury Department and inaugurate a people's policy. That is to say, sell bonds to any one who wants to buy direct without compelling him to pay a commission to a middleman, and advance currency on national bonds as collateral to whoever may apply. If so, the President is not above taking a suggestion from an opposition journal upon the financial question, which never should be considered partisan.

THE newspapers and politicians of the south are abusing Senator Ingalls as a hater of everything southern. It is true that Senator Ingalls says some very sharp, and at the same time very true words about the men who led the south into rebellion, but he does not hold the people responsible for the acts of those men. In his speech last week Senator Ingalls paid a high compliment to the constancy and courage of the southern people in defence of the mistaken ideas of their leaders.

UNITED STATES bonds at 2½ per cent. interest are worth par. Consequently the holders of 4 per cents. claim that they are entitled to a bonus equal to the difference between 2½ and 4 per cent. for the unexpired term. Upon this basis, we understand, the administration fixed the price last fall at 124. Certainly as the time for maturity decreases the price of the bonds should not advance in premium, but be reduced, yet Secretary Fairchild and Brother Jordan, of the Western National Bank, don't figure that way. The national banks must be protected, you know. No free trade in this.

THE Democratic and Mugwump papers are in horrible distress. Their condition appeals to the heart and nerves of every sympathetic or nervous man, because they are squealing as loudly as a pig under a gate. The cause of this distress—this unearthly discord—is that the Republicans have failed to formulate and present a tariff bill to the House of Representatives. A child with stomach ache never made more contortions than do these demoninups or mugwonts over this failure on the part of the Republicans. Their distress would be pitiable if it were not farcical. To relieve them the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN will say "wait a time with patience." The Republicans know what is expected of them and they have never failed to respond to the call of duty, no matter in what form it comes.

Gov. Hill Vetoes High License.

Gov. Hill, of New York, has vetoed the Crosby high license bill, and if anything had been needed to relegate him to the domain of rejected and disappointed statesmen this act will supply the deficiency. The Crosby bill was a most conservative and reasonable measure. It was framed with a view to meet to objections set forth by Gov. Hill in his veto of the high license bill of the year before. It met with the sanction of the better elements of the state, though its active supporters in the legislature were Republicans. It became, through that means, a party measure, but was none the less a meritorious one. It placed liquor licences at $500 for the minimum and $1,000 for the maximum, and beer licenses at $100 and $400. This would certainly not be an unjust or burdensome tax. No reasonable man can deny the necessity of some form of regulation of the saloon business. The saloon keepers themselves admit it, and the enlightened sentiment of the country is approaching more nearly every day to the conclusion that high license is the best remedy that we can now apply to what is confessedly a great evil.

The veto of this measure by Gov. Hill is an act of shameful, humiliating cowardice. His own friends, or those who have until recently been his friends, feel this to be true. The New York World says he has made a "political blunder." The Sun is silent on the subject. The Herald says:

Gov. Hill's vetoes of the two radically different bills passed by the legislature at Albany, together with his veto of last year's bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in any state building, leave little ground to hope that any measure satisfactory to the general public will receive his approval.

Of course the Tribune and Times are severe in their condemnation of the veto. It has seldom occurred in the history of legislation in New York that any governor has exercised veto power in such direct contravention of the wishes of a great majority of the best elements of the state, and invited so unanimous a condemnation from the powerful press of New York city.

We must believe that while this base surrender of Gov. Hill to the most degraded, worst elements of society will operate as a temporary check to the accomplishment of a much needed reform, it will serve in the end to strengthen the Republican party in New York. It had the moral courage to take this commendable measure to the governor and force him to put himself and his party on record against it. The New York Republicans are sure to make it an issue in the approaching campaign in that state, and it is one in which they will have an honorable and decided advantage.

An Organ in Distress.

Readers of our neighbor, the Post, must have been a little startled yesterday morning when they observed the editorial headed "Information for the Innocent." In this there was an air of candor that betokened much more than candor, and that would do violence to any impression that the Post is being continued with admiration for Mr. Cleveland. It begins by saying that "Mr. Cleveland is a candidate for the renomination—an earnest, eager, anxious candidate, armed and equipped at all points, and possessed of all the advantages of a great number of friends and a powerful machine."

We are not surprised to hear that Mr. Cleveland is a candidate for renomination, but we are really shocked to hear from so dutiful a journal as the Post has heretofore been toward the President that he is an "earnest, eager, anxious candidate," and that he is being worked up by "a powerful machine." We are told further on that this "powerful machine" is "working as smoothly and effectively as a Corliss engine," and that "delegates are pouring out of the hopper at all hours of the day and night."

The Post is the first Democratic paper that has acknowledged for a long time that there is such a thing as a "machine" in the Democratic party, and it is really unkind of it now, since it has actually found one, to say that it is being operated in behalf of the champion of civil service and tariff "reform." The sole reason assigned for this sudden and unexpected outbreak is that it "being the truth, why not proclaim it?" But why is the Post so ready to tell "the truth" about it? What has happened?

This dropping back toward the rear, as it were, just at the moment when Mr. Cleveland is about to receive his second nomination indicates some distress of mind that excites our profound compassion. We shall now expect to see the Post congratulate the country the morning after Mr. Cleveland's nomination in very much the same strain as those other great Democratic papers, the New York Sun and New York World.

A Single Instance.

The Mills bill—"the first firm step toward free trade"—has begun to have its effect upon the industries of the country. The great business house of W. T. Coleman & Co. was one of the most liberal and progressive in the country. It did an extensive business in several lines of trade, and made heavy investments when there was a good prospect of profit. Among other properties this firm owned extensive borax mines and works. Borax was protected and the works and mines were valuable. Coleman & Co. having invested very heavily in other matters, and met with some serious losses, determined to sell out their borax mines and works. A trade for these properties at $2,000,000 had been arranged when the Mills bill was reported with borax on the free list. The trade fell through, because with borax on the free list neither the mines nor the works were valuable. Without protection from foreign competition both mines and works would have to be closed, the workmen employed in them dismissed, and the capital invested become a dead loss. The proposed purchasers knew this, and refused to buy while threatened by the Mills bill. The failure to make this sale has bankrupted W. T. Coleman & Co. Hundreds and thousands of other firms now prospering under the beneficent system of protection inaugurated by the Republican party, employing thousands and hundreds of thousands of workingmen and women, will become bankrupt should the free trade policy of this administration be carried into effect. Fortunately, the Republican party "stands like a stone wall" between the prosperity of the country and this free trade deluge.

THE mayor of Cincinnati is having a pretty hot time of it in his efforts to close up the saloons and beer gardens on Sunday. Most of the saloon keepers obeyed the law on the first Sunday it went into operation, and those who did not were arrested. The mayor has issued warrants for 147 persons this week who have disobeyed the law, and next Sunday it is expected he will arrest every man at once who opens a saloon. He is determined to make use of every means at his disposal to secure the observance of the law. In the meantime the Sunday closing question has been again precipitated on the St. Louis public. The supreme court of Missouri has just decided that there is no law giving the saloons and beer gardens the right to keep open on Sundays. The decision applies with equal force to base ball parks, theaters, and all places of amusement. The respectable public of St. Louis has long been scandalized by the utter disregard of Sunday by all these establishments, and now there is to be a very bitter and determined fight on an effort to enforce the common Sunday law of the state. There are about three thousand saloons and thirty breweries in St. Louis, and most of the breweries have vast beer gardens that are packed with great throngs on Sundays. The police board professes it will try to enforce the law, and will swear in 500 extra policemen for duty next Sunday, when the first struggle is to take place. The authorities of St. Louis are so poisoned with the influence of the saloon element that there is fear of the result. The theaters there are also very influential, and the same is true of the base ball organization.

DON PEDRO, the emperor of Brazil, is lying ill with a serious and probably fatal organic disease in one of the cities of Italy. He went to Europe early last winter mainly to seek medical advice, and take a rest from the cares and anxieties of his position. He is not a very old man, being not far beyond 60, but he has been suffering from some affection of the kidneys for a year or two, and it is not likely he will be taken back to Brazil alive. When he arrived in Europe last winter he first stopped in Paris, and was there at the same time Mr. Blaine was. Mr. Blaine receiving quite as much attention as the emperor. It is said that the emperor is very fond of a certain drink made from some species of tropical fruit, that he has used it in considerable quantities every day for several years, and that when a certain noted French physician called to see him he told him immediately he must cease the use of his favorite beverage. The emperor promptly declared that he would not do it, and that it his death followed this indulgence he would have to die. It is presumed he has kept his resolution, and that the prediction of the French physician is about to be verified. The emperor has always been a very plain, studious, practical sort of a man. He is, perhaps, the most unostentatious monarch living, and set a good example to others of his class. When he was in the United States in 1876 he went about like any ordinary gentleman of good position. He stopped at the Fifth Avenue Hotel while in New York, and some of the servants have not ceased to this day to tell of how he would rise early in the morning before any of the other guests and stroll about the corridors and through the halls wearing a white white hat such as is commonly worn by planters in Brazil. His reign has been a long, peaceful, and prosperous one. The Brazilian empire covers the vast valley of the Amazon, and in soil, products, navigable waters, lakes, game, and native fruits is the richest country in the world, but its climate is so hot, its forests so dense, and its overflows so frequent that the native population make but poor headway compared to that of the United States. Slavery has also been a great curse, but slavery is about to be abolished after a long struggle, in which the emperor himself has taken an active part, and always in behalf of emancipation. An article in the Rio News of April 5 states that the new ministry is in favor of immediate and unconditional emancipation, and that a majority of the chamber of deputies will likely favor it. If it is true, then, that the emperor has really come to his death-bed, he can look with great satisfaction on the work of his life, which has certainly not been in vain.

PUBLIC PRINTER BENEDICT.

He Fails to Carry Out His Testimony as to Settlements.

Public Printer Benedict testified before the investigation committee that his perfect system of keeping the accounts of his office would enable him to close up every account, pay off every claim and employe, and turn into the treasury the unexpended balances within twenty-four hours after receiving notice, and this without any undue strain on his clerical force. Every person who heard the great Ellenville statesman deliver himself of this piece of arrogant boasting knew its true value.

As as evidence of the utter incompetency and incapacity of this public officer it is only necessary to cite the fact that the law making the appropriation for the payment to the discharged employes the amount due for leaves of absence was signed by the President over six weeks ago, and yet but a very small number have received the amounts due them. The decision of the comptroller allowing these accounts was rendered nearly or quite a year ago, and the public printer has had months in which to prepare the vouchers. It was confidently expected that the so loudly proclaimed business methods inaugurated by Mr. Benedict would enable every beneficiary under the bill to receive the amount due him promptly and without any unnecessary delay. But such has not been the result. A comparatively few have received their checks, while many who signed and returned their vouchers to the printing office two weeks ago are still waiting for their money. When the fact is borne in mind that many of these ex-employes are and have been for many months out of work, the hardships entailed by Mr. Benedict's dereliction in this matter can be the better appreciated.

If his business methods were of the superior character which he on all occasions and to all comers so ostentatiously boasts—if, in fact, he was anything but an incompetent public officer—these accounts would have been adjusted and paid weeks ago. Further on it will appear that he did not estimate for sufficient funds to pay these claims by $10,000 or $15,000, and through this gross piece of neglect, or worse, hundreds of worthy men will be compelled to wait for several months longer before they can receive the money which, under a proper management of the office, they should have received weeks ago.

NO MORE HEARINGS.

The Senate Committee on Commerce Will Do All the Amending.

The Senate committee on commerce took up the river and harbor bill yesterday and informally discussed a plan of proceedure in regard to it. It was made known that some thirty or forty members of the House have asked to be heard in advocacy of appropriations which they failed to get into the measure when it was before that body. It was suggested that inasmuch as the House had the bill in its hands for three months, allowing no senators to make arguments before its committee, and had finally passed it under a suspension of the rules, it would be only right and fair for the House to rest satisfied with what the Senate does in the matter. It was also made known that delegations from many cities had asked for hearings in respect to the need of works in their localities. The committee concluded that to grant all the hearings asked would seriously embarrass and delay the committee's work, and it was, therefore, determined not to grant any hearings, either to congressmen or delegations, except to the one or two delegations for which arrangements have already been made.

The committee will begin active work on the bill to-morrow morning.

The Anti-Poverty Society.

Mr. Charles Newburgh addressed the Anti-Poverty Society on "The Malthusian and overproduction theories examined, and their apparent paradox solved by nationalization of rent." The speaker explained that the Malthusian and overproduction theories went to extremes in opposing each other as to the proper means of settling the great economical questions of the times. Nationalization of rent, an outgrowth of the land theories of Henry George, it was thought, would solve all difficulties as a happy medium between the two.

A Messenger's Runaway Pony.

One of the Australian ponies belonging to the Western Union Telegraph Company and ridden by a messenger boy ran away last evening from the corner of Fourteenth and Boundary streets. After going a short distance and knocking down two little children, happily, however, not injuring them, the animal was captured by a citizen and turned over to the messenger.

THE CHILDREN'S NIGHT.

Pretty Scenes at Prof. Sheldon's May Ball.

Prof. Sheldon's forty-first annual May ball took place at the National Rifles' Hall last evening, and the popular dancing master's many friends, patrons, and scholars were present to make it a memorable and gala closing event of the season. The class exercises opened with the "coronation of the queens." It was a charming sight to see the little ones perform the ceremonial of crowning their fair rulers.

The first to receive the floral crown was the queen of May, Miss Nellie Chaffee. Her attendants were the Misses Katie Littlewood, Nannie Lowe, Louise Williams, and Myra Whitney; crown bearer, Mabel Owens. The cane Miss Effie Smith as the juvenile May queen; maids, Misses Lou Tretler, Cora Rich, Bessie Sommers, and Edith Tappan; crown bearer, Irene Tappan. Miss Zoline Whitney was the queen of flowers, with the Misses Nina Manger, Mattie Gibson, Annie Forbes, Bertha Gibson, Allie Seitz, and E. Dieudonne; Miss Estelle Tappan crown bearer. Queen of seasons, Miss Ella Luckett; maids, spring, Georgie May Wunder; summer, Lizzie Widdicombe; autumn, Lillie Schaffer; winter, Louise Widdicombe. Fairy queen, Miss Nellie Martin; fairies, Misses Agnes E. Martin, Eva Shields, Rosa Deitz, and Lotta Deitz.

The coronation over, a grand march with intricate figures was executed by all the scholars, headed by the queen and her attendants. Miss Nellie Martin then tripped a Polish dance with charming grace, and equally as well did the Misses Nina Manger and Bertha Gibson dance the zingara. Miss Lou Tretler followed with the cracovienne, after which came the "May pole," in which a levy of pretty misses danced with rare grace.

The remainder of the interesting programme was as follows: "Little Mabel's Dance," Miss Mabel Owens; "Pas de Deux," Bertha Gibson and Nina Manger; "La Gitana," Louise Widdicombe; "Tarantella," "I Ariel," Bertha Gibson; "La Koska," "Highland Fling," Effie Smith, Mattie Gibson, Allie Seitz, Lou Tretler; "Hornpipe," Nina Manger; "Tambourine March and Queens' Set."

It was a remarkable fact that the whole of the programme of fancy dances was executed without a sign or word of command.

At the conclusion of the fancy dances, Master of Ceremonies Edward O. Asmussen assumed charge of the floor, and the regular ball programme was proceeded with, in which all joyfully participated.

AUCTION SALES.

AUCTION SALE.

SALE OF THE ALEXANDRIA CANAL PROPERTY.

By virtue of and under the authority of a decree rendered by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Virginia, dated on the 8th day of May, 1888, in a chancery cause entitled The United States of America vs. The Alexandria Canal Company and others, therein then and now pending, the undersigned, a commissioner appointed by said decree to make sale of the property in the said decree described, will expose for sale at public auction, in front of the Custom House Building, on St. Asaph street, in the city of Alexandria, Va., at 12 o'clock noon, on THURSDAY, THE 7TH DAY OF JUNE, 1888, all and singular the right, title, and interest of the Alexandria Canal Company in and to the real estate by said decree ordered to be sold, to wit:
