Those in need of anything in the jewelry line should call on Otis W. Snyder, when they visit Lexington, or write to him. Mr. Snyder stands at the front in his line of business and all who have dealt with him heretofore have found both pleasure and profit in doing so. He has just established a spectacle manufactory in connection with his store, which is in charge of the finest optician in the country.

Mr. Napier Roasts Mr. Hogg.

EDITOR HERALD: I wish you to publish a letter in reference to a letter written by David Hogg, under date of September 15, in which he personally referred to me. I returned from Oklahoma on the 8th inst., and have not been able to write soonor. Mr. Hogg said I had let my tongue run unrestrained till my neighbors became scarce, and under that state of case I became discouraged and sold my claim. I will say right here that that is a posive lie, notwithstanding the statements of Dave Hogg, or any other man. All my close neighbors came in to see us the day before and the morning we left, and those who lived at a distance on our way came out and wished us good luck on our way. Now, if we had neighbors who were friendly to our face and talked about me behind my back, I am glad that I got out of that neighborhood. But this I don't believe, I think it a lie of Mr. Hogg, as it comes natural to him to tell such yarns. Mr. Hogg made reference to the team that I traded for. This was much better than Mr. Hogg said it was, and it was a low down stoop of Mr. Hogg to mention my private affairs, or any other man's. Mr. Hogg also referred to my pocket-book getting slim. This I think was another stoop for any man who claims to be a man. But my wife did not have to fry the grease out of meat skins to make my morning biscuit; I had no hand in sending any man out of the country after night for pulling a beef; nor loan my gun and knife to kill the same; nor have a quarter of the same beef hanging in my dugout. I believed Mr. Hogg, went to Oklahoma, lost all I had except my character, and when Mr. Hogg could no further dictate to me and I had started for my native home and hills, and was perhaps several hundred miles on my way, he wrote the above referred to letter, a low-down, cowardly stab in the back, and tried to filch from me and my family the last thing we had—our character. By his lying he caused us to lose all else we had. Mr. Hogg made no friends by what he wrote about me. I am here among a people that I have lived among for thirty years, and I am still willing to cast my lot among them.

With best wishes to THE HERALD and it many readers, I remain

Respectfully yours,

Oct. 29, 1892. S. P. NAPIER.

Struck a Spouting Stream.

He struck—water, which is just now more valuable than oil. Porter Lacy a short time ago dug a hole in a branch on his farm on Lacy creek to get stock water, which he found, but it went dry. On Monday he put Jim Gilly to digging it deeper, and after sinking the drill six inches, Jim heard water roaring and got out of the hole just in time to see the water burst through in volume sufficient to float a small steamboat. The water shot up fifteen or twenty feet for a while, and made a noise like distant thunder. Mr. Gilly, thinking it was the advent of another flood, made tracks for higher ground and showed speed that a sprinter would not be ashamed of. When the point up stream had spent its force he reluctantly returned, and it is said that George Nickell had in the meantime climbed to the top of a near by tree, while two ladies who witnessed the spouting stream thought the millenium was at hand sure. The stream is now a steadily flowing one, but it continues to be a gusher.

Death of Mrs. Margaret Wilson.

Mrs. Margaret Wilson, wife of Jackson R. Wilson, died at her home on Spencer, this morning, of chronic gastritis and bronchial catarrh. The family left this morning with the remains for Jackson, Breathitt county. The burial will take place to morrow, at the burying ground at her old home. Mr Wilson bought the White farm near this city and moved here from Breathitt only a few weeks ago. During the few weeks she lived in this county she made friends of all, and to the grief stricken family the sympathy of the entire community is extended.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

Judge Henry C. Lilly, Republican candidate for reelection to the office of circuit judge in this judicial district is in town, as I have been informed. My informant told me that he came to town yesterday, but has not been out to look up his friends yet. If there is any thing in what men say, a large number of his own party in this section will vote against him.

The meeting at this place is still in progress, with but little visible results The good seed, however, is being sown in the hearts of the people, and the harvest time will perhaps be hereafter. The brethren who are here from a distance seem to be very zealous and devoted men.

J. N. Vaughn has secured the services of Squire Kash, of Flatwoods, this county, as salesman in his store. Mr. Kash is a young man of exceptional business qualification, and will prove a valuable acquisition to Mr. Vaughn's business.

Hon. W. W. McGuire, of West Liberty, came to town yesterday, and will perhaps remain for a few days. Mr. McGuire is a true Democrat, and he seems to be confident of success for the whole Democratic ticket.

While on a visit to Blackwater, the 2nd inst., I passed four school-houses—two of these being in towns—and I had the pleasure of seeing only one flag floating out to the breeze. I know some teachers that even dismissed school on Thursday evening and went to their homes, no doubt leaving the young minds to guess why they dismissed. Is that the way to teach patriotism?

The singing class announced heretofore as in progress at this place closed Sunday, the 23rd. Another was immediately organized and is now in progress. The people here are interested in vocal music, and Messrs. Ratcliff and Lawson certainly know how to teach
