The Game This Evening.

The contestants among the twenties will be between the Armas and the Illinois, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Armas will be the strongest team they have put up against any bowlers, though the Armas will have their hard fight with some of the twenty teams in the tourney. Illinois will be the strongest team they have put up against any twenty team so far. It will be pretty to the Grand alleys.

SMOKER OF THE FENCIBLES.

A Big and Interesting Programme Entertained a Crowd at the Armory Last Night.

The smoker of the Kansas City Fencibles given at the armory in Carrollton on Tuesday night was a decided success. The attendance was good and the sport furnished was calculated to the merits of those who had gathered to the smoker. The programme was good throughout, and included a number of good boxing bouts, wrestling matches and other athletic sports. The boxing bouts were the best of the programme, the wrestling matches being rather tame affairs. The programme was as follows: Football scrimmage, A. L. Smith and baseball manager, Hugh McGee; track athletic manager, A. A. Ewert; secretary of the association, Thomas Wozelski.

WILL DISCUSS IMMIGRATION.

The President of the Oklahoma Immigration Bureau to Meet Railroad Men.

J. V. Morris, of El Reno, O. T., president of the Oklahoma Immigration Bureau, is in the city for the purpose of meeting with members of the immigration bureaus of Kansas and Nebraska and the transportation agents of the railroads of the city. Mr. Morris is one of the leading men of the territory at the Southwest and he is pushing his work of bringing people to the "Garden of the Mississippi." In Oklahoma there are to be four or more land offices opened up, the Cherokee strip, the Kickapoo and Comanche, the Wichita and Caddo reservations, the Iowa, Sac and Fox and Pottawatomie reservations. Mr. Morris is anxious to confer with the railroad men of this city and with the immigration bureaus of the city, that he may be able to be on the ground when the opening proclamation is made, and that he may be able to do all in his power to assist the railroads in bringing people to the territory. The work of the immigration bureaus in this city has not been in any way with the immigration bureau of the territory, but Mr. Morris is in the city for the purpose of bringing about a union of the bureaus in this city with the bureau of the territory.

A DESPERATE ENCOUNTER.

BLOODY BATTLE BETWEEN AN OFFICER AND AN ALLEGED THIEF.

Both Men Were Game and the Fight Resulted in Injury to Both, but the Officer Conquered His Man by Beating Him into Insensibility.

A desperate and bloody battle between a police officer and a man suspected of stealing another man's chickens took place in a West Ninth street saloon last night. Just now the combatants are in the city hospital, with one, perhaps two, of them very badly injured, and the other, who is in the main, while the other is in a critical state.

At about 8 o'clock Police Officer Morley received a call that chickens belonging to Charles Wilkins, living in the rear of his residence, 1[illegible] West Ninth street, had been stolen. Officer Morley went to the place and found the chicken house had been broken open and the chickens taken. There were two men in the back part of the house when the officer came in, and they made their escape before he could get to them. Officer Morley ran out the alley and tried to stop a hack, which he thought the thieves had taken, but the driver of the hack did not stop. The officer then went back to the house and tried to find the thieves, who he thought had taken refuge in some place in the neighborhood. He went to the house of a man named Bennett, who he had been informed was a friend of the thieves, but could not find them there. He then went back to the house of Wilkins, and while there he heard a noise in the back yard. He went back there and found the man he had been looking for, who he thought had stolen the chickens, in the act of throwing over the fence to some person on the other side a sack which he had just taken from the chicken house. The officer ordered the man to stop and he ran. The officer ran after him and caught him in the back yard of a house on the south side of Ninth street, between Wyandotte and Minnesota avenue. The officer had his man by the collar when the man turned and struck the officer a heavy blow on the face with his fist. The officer then drew his club and struck the man a blow on the head, which knocked him down. The man then got up and ran into the house, the officer following him. The man then got a knife and made a rush at the officer, who drew his revolver and ordered the man to throw up his hands. The man then made a rush for the door, but the officer had his club and was too quick for him. The man then made a rush for the officer, who
