NOTICE OF ELECTION.

—o—

FUNDING RAILROAD BONDED INDEBTEDNESS

—o—

OF RAY COUNTY, MISSOURI.

—o—

WHEREAS the petition of fifty-five resident tax-payers of Ray county has been presented to this Court, asking the Court to submit to the qualified voters of said county, at a special election, a proposition to compromise and fund the bonded indebtedness of said county, for the bonds and interest coupons issued in the name of said county to the Saint Louis and Saint Joseph Railroad Company, and the indebtedness of the county on account of the judgements rendered against the county on said bonds and coupons.

It is therefore ordered by the Court that the following proposition to compromise and fund said bonds and the coupons thereof, and all judgments against the county on account of the said bonds or the coupons of said bonds, be submitted to the qualified voters of the county of Ray, at a special election to be held at the various voting precincts in said county on the 27th day of December, 1879, to-wit: Whether the county court shall compromise and fund all of the outstanding bonds, heretofore issued in the name of Ray county, to the Saint Louis & Saint Joseph Railroad Company, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of Three Hundred and Thirty-Seven Thousand and forty and ninety-six hundredths dollars, including coupons remaining unpaid, and all accrued interest on said bonds and coupons. Which said bonds were issued bearing interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, payable annually. The bonds by their tenor matured on the first day of January 1879. Said bonds coupons and judgments to be compromised and funded at the rate of sixty cents (60) on the dollar for the amount thereof, the same to be funded and paid in bonds of Ray county, to be issued therefor, with interest coupons attached thereto, which said bonds shall become payable at the end of ten (10) years from their date, and shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

A Short World.

This is a short world. We may praise it or despise it; but however we may esteem it, its course is brief, compared with the vastness of the world to come—the glory of the endless ages that stretch themselves before the saints of God. Compared with the mighty possibilities of the everlasting state, how brief, how transient, how uncertain is the state in which we live. Our life is a vapor that vanisheth away; our days are swift as an arrow's flight; time hastens on with restless strides; and the great, grand future of eternity rolls steadily onward to meet us as we pass the boundaries of this transient world.

Oh, that we who have been charmed by earth's beauties, and entangled amid its snares, could learn how brief its story is; how soon its pomp shall fade; how soon its joys shall pass away. "The life that now is," is like one grain of sand as compared with the wide stretching shore; and the joys and pleasures that have here engaged our thoughts are but motes in the sunbeam when compared with the enduring glory which shall fill the eternal existence of God's redeemed with brightness and gladness perpetual as the years of heaven.

This is a short world; whether it be filled with joy or sorrow, light or shade, it matters little. Here we are to work or wait, but soon all will be over; and the eternal day will dawn; the clouds and storms will pass, and oh, that we, when the morning breaks, may, as children of light, be found watching and waiting, prepared for the bright and everlasting day.

The Art of Talking.

If we notice closely, we shall find that the people who are most popular in social life are those who understand, not only how to talk themselves, but to make others talk. This is a very valuable gift. To be able so to direct conversation as to draw out the opinions and quicken the thoughts of those with whom you talk—this is an accomplishment indeed. It makes such a contributor to the enjoyment of all, and it leaves with each a pleasant sense of having said something which others were glad to hear. There is a good deal of this sort of conversational missionary work waiting to be done, and the time which we spend in chattering about the weather might be devoted to it. It should be borne in mind that there is scarcely anyone of average intelligence who cannot, if he is drawn out, talk interestingly and instructively about at least, one thing—the thing with which he is most familiar, or which is connected with his regular labor. Whoever talks much thus with specialists upon their chosen department of labor or thought, will get together a fund of valuable information not to be learned from books.—Ex.

Finding "Girl" in the Bible.

An English town missionary once found himself in the household of a very desperate looking family, and when the good man explained his mission the head of the house, a fierce looking man, replied:

"Sit down and hear what I am going to say. I will ask you a question out of the Bible. If you answer me right, you may call at this house and read and pray with us or our lodgers as often as you like; if you do not answer me right, we will tear your clothes off your back and tumble you neck and heels into the street.

"Is the word girl in any part of the Bible? If so, where is it to be found, and how often? That is my question."

"Well, sir, the word girl is in the Bible, but only once, and may be found in the words of the prophet Joel, iii 3. The words are, 'And sold a girl for wine, that they might drink."

"Well," replied the man, "I am dead beat; I durst to have bet five pounds you could not have told."

"And I could not have told yesterday," said the visitor, "For several days I have been praying that the Lord would open me a way into this house, and this very morning, when reading the scriptures in my family, I was surprised to find the word girl, and got the Concordance to see if it occurred again, and found it did not. And now, sir, I believe that God did know, and does know, what will come to pass, and surely His hand is in this for my protection and your good."

The whole of the inmates were greatly surprised, and the incident has been overruled to the conversion of the man, his wife, and two of the lodgers.

THOS. M. DEACY, C. P. DALRYMPLE, J. W. LONG. } Ex. Com.

Origin of "Teetotal"

This rather strange word has become a classic in our tongue. Its origin is thus given: In September, 1833, the notable word teetotal was first used. A certain Richard Turner, or as he was more generally called, "Dicky" Turner, a plasterer's laborer, who was much given to holding forth in the Lancashire dialect at the meetings of the then new total abstinence party, happened in a phillippic against moderate drinking to say: "I'll hev nowt to do wi' this moderation—botheration—pledge; I'll be teet down tee-tee-total forever." "Well done Dickey," said the president of the meeting, "this shall be the name of our pledge." Thus this stuttering laborer introduced this word which soon crossed from England to our shores and has become world-wide.

Dr. J. G. Holland, editor of Scribner's Monthly, talking to the assembled boatman of Alexandria Bay recently said: "I neither drink wine or give it to my guests. Strong drink is the curse of the country and the age. Sixty thousand men in America every year lie down in the grave of the drunkard. Drink has murdered my best friends, and I hate it. It burdens me with taxes, and I denounce it as a nuisance on which every honest man should put his heel. I do not ask you to put your heel on the drunkard, but to make your guild so strict and pure that no man of your number will dare to trifle with this your opinion and sentiments on the subject.

Dr. Osgood, who is the medical officer of the hospital at Foochow under the care of the American board for foreign missions, gives the following as the method which for sometime has been successfully pursued by him in the cure of the opium habit. 1. The total and absolute discontinuance of the use of opium from the beginning of treatment. 2. A trustworthy attendent to be with the patient day and night for the first three days. 3. Choral hydrate for the first three nights, if required. 4. Good food, mild, raw eggs, brandy (in some cases), and chicken broth in small quantities and frequently. 5. In case of diarrhoea, give two drachm dose of a mixture of equal parts of tincture of catechu and tincture of ginger.

The following from an exchange tells just what every country newspaper editor greatly desires. It is not only applicable to the town in which the paper is published, but to the surrounding towns were it circulates, and if our patrons in this vicinity will read and practice it they will do us a great favor:

"To make the paper what it should be we must have the co-operation of the good people of the town and vicinity. We want first, last and all the time local news—news of new enterprises, of changes, of accidents, of the arrival or departure of well known persons, of social gatherings, of church doings, political movements, &c. We want to know who comes into the world and when, who is married and by whom, and who leaves the world and when. We cannot be everywhere at once to learn of all these things, and therefore, persons desirous of making their neighborhood paper a credit to them will do a favor by handing in news items themselves personally, by postal card, by telegraph, or by a small boy with one suspender and torn pantaloons, or in any other way by which it can be properly vouched for. We shall never be found wanting in the endeavor to do our utmost to make our paper a complete representative of our town and vicinity, and to do it the aid of all our friends is very necessary."
