SAYS 50,000 DROPPED DEAD IN SERB RETREAT

ran at the Albanian frontier. The Albanians have in times past been badly treated by the Serbs, and they took this chance to square old scores. They shot, killed, robbed, and murdered us at every step of the way. For instance, at Lissa, some Serb officers and a company of stragglers on horseback were met in the middle of the road by a few peasants and ordered to give up their horses and their money. It was plain highway robbery and they refused. The peasants ran away and within a couple of minutes more than a thousand shots were fired out of the nearby hillside, killing most of the Serbs.

Food Problem Frightful.

The food problem was terrible even in Scutari. A half pound of bread was sold at ten dinars, about 180 dollars. As I had a little money at that, I bought two pounds of old beans. Had I not been able to eat these beans, I would today be a dead man. I had just said to myself, 'I can't go any further,' when I persuaded a peasant woman to sell me the beans. I ate beans twice a day, making a sort of soup out of them, putting in a little salt. At that I was far luckier than the fellows who had to boil harness leather for five or six hours in order to make the hot water taste like soup. I saw men act like savages, eating pieces of brown paper.

"There were perhaps not more than two thousand women among the retreating hordes with us and it is a fact worth recording that they were kindly treated and all a whatever comforts were available by soldiers who were otherwise dead to every feeling. I have seen such men, tunnel, stagger along, half naked, with a few pieces of cloth for shoes, unable to speak, with barely strength left to stop near a dying horse and cut a stringy steak from its flank, straighten up for a moment near one of the women's carts and sullenly render their last mouthful of food to some of the women.

"The treatment of the women on this dreadful retreat was to me the most wonderful, the most moving, the most heroic part of the whole retreat. These poor women in their flight from their homes had in many cases been unable to bring enough clothes to cover them. Often they were without stockings or underskirts, or hats, or shawls or cloaks. I have seen time and time again some freezing soldier take off his overcoat and force it upon some one of these women and seem almost ashamed to look upon her shivering body as he made the offer. Then he would march along the road for hours until he was able to strip some dead man of his clothes to replace that which he had so freely given."

What Haller regarded as his most remarkable experience was the sight of a mad soldier dying from starvation. "Clothed only in a ragged undershirt he was running barefoot down a snow-covered Albanian road straight as an arrow, bellowing as he ran," he said. "He ran on and on down that road, seeing nothing, yet wonderfully avoiding stumbling over the bodies of other dead and dying soldiers and the frost-stripped carcasses of the army horses which blocked the way. Suffering intensely as I myself was, I turned and watched this strange figure. At last a half mile down the road he pitched forward and as I passed him then I saw he was stone dead."

Seen Mother Hanged.

"Other than that incident there is one other that will stick in my memory so long as I live," said Haller. "This was the hanging of a Serb mother by the Austrian troops before I was made a prisoner. We were marching across a rough country near Lechnitsa when we stopped near a gigantic fir at the spring to get a drink. Colonel Reill of our regiment also went to get a drink. As he stooped from the spring a shot came from the fort. That shot was fired by a woman. She stood at the door, an old shotgun in one hand, a baby in the other.

"One of the captains ordered her hung. There was nothing else to do but execute her. An a rope was placed about her neck and she was led to the nearest tree all she said was this, in a hard, cold voice: 'My husband is a soldier. I too die for Serbia.' She made no appeal. She did not cry out. We left her body hanging there in the wind. The baby was picked up and sent to the nearest prison camp, to be cared for."

Through the efforts of Robert Haverlick, representing the United States among the Austrian prisoners, Haller was rescued from starvation at Durazzo and later Ambassador Page in Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War.

No sooner had Newton D. He started the machinery which has resulted in the hunt for the Mexican bandit leader.

Some interested himself in the case. "I am going back home the best American citizen you ever saw," declared Haller. "I wish I had words to express my feelings for the kind of people that are given in the United States.

NEW STRENGTH FOR LAME BACKS AND WORN OUT CONDITIONS

Dear Mr. Editor:

I suffered from lame back and a tired, worn out feeling. Was unable to stand erect and scarcely able to get around. It would usually come on at first with pain in small of my back. I took one box of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and my back commenced to get better soon after starting to take them. I did not have to walk doubled over as I did before using the "Anuric." It is the best medicine I have ever taken for what it is intended to relieve. I think those who are in need of such remedy will give these Tablets or Dr. Pierce a trial. Yours truly,

N. O. DRAKE.

Note.—When your kidneys are sluggish and slow you suffer from backache, dizziness, dull headache, dark broken sleep, or the fatigue and pains of incipient rheumatism and gout. The urine is often cloudy full of sediment, scanty and painful. Sometimes you get none and sleep is disturbed two or three times a night. This is the time you should consult some physician of wide experience—such as Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Send him 10 cents for large trial package of his new discovery—"Anuric." Write him your symptoms and send a sample of urine for test. Experience has taught Dr. Pierce that "Anuric" is the most powerful agent in dissolving uric acid, as hot water melts sugar. Being as many times more active than lithia, it clears the urine within of any sands substances which may clog them and checks the degeneration of the blood-vessels, as well as regulating blood pressure. "Anuric" is a regular insurance and insurance for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints. Are you troubled for "Anuric" put up in Dr. Pierce, in 50-cent packages.

BRITAIN DEPORTS HER AND TOD SLOAN

"When you hear the facts you will find that I have been very unjustly persecuted. I'm a sharp. I should resent it this way. I may return to racing in America."
