FAMILIES COMING HERE

Excellent School System in Oklahoma City Attracts Legislators—Renting Homes For Session.

Members of the 1915 legislature are beginning to arrive in the city looking for quarters for themselves and families during the coming session.

Several members are seeking residences which they expect to rent during the legislative session, bringing their families here. Because of superior school system some of these have announced their intention of placing their children in school in Oklahoma City and retaining their residence here until the end of the school year at least.

Senator Ben Franklin of Purcell and Senator Clarence Davis of Sapulpa are among members of the senate who are expecting to bring their families here and rent homes. Other members of the legislature are engaging quarters at the various hotels of the city.

The Drug Store With the Christmas Spirit

"Good Will Toward Men."

THIS is not a seasonable spirit in this store. It dominates our actions through the year. It finds expression peculiarly in our prescription department where we devote careful conscientious attention and the utmost skill in preparing the doctor's orders to the end that the patient will recover as rapidly as circumstances permit.

OUR first thought is of rendering the best service we can to our fellow man. In a word, sympathy for the ailing transcends all thought of pecuniary profit. This, we believe is the spirit which should control the motives of every good druggist.

LISTENED TO LECTURE

Brotherhood of First Methodist Church Entertained Men From St. Luke's Church Last Night.

The Brotherhood of the First Methodist church entertained the like organization of St. Luke's church last night at dinner in the basement of the church. Following the dinner was given a program of special worth by members of the brotherhood and church and Dr. A. C. Scott's master lecture on Charles Dickens.

In discussing his subject Dr. Scott emphasized as the main characteristic of Dickens his democracy and his creative genius. The poverty of the great novelist's early life was contrasted with the heights of popularity and fame to which he attained as an author and the fact was emphasized that had Dickens not lived this life of privation and had he been granted his early ambition of a college education, we probably should not have had many of the grotesque and lifelike figures he has furnished us.

Dr. Scott said: "We are always putting someone next to Shakespearre, but I want to say that in the matter of creative genius, at least, Charles Dickens is second only to him. Fourteen hundred men, women and children live before us in the pages of Dickens and if I could summon before you these characters we would have the most distinguished assemblage the world has ever seen."

Judge Samuel W. Hayes addressed briefly the company on behalf of the Brotherhood of St. Luke's of which he is president. Misses Lucie Neal and Eunice Parks rendered piano music, and were followed by a male quartette.

The next meeting is called for Monday night, January 18. A. L. McRill, president, announced that at that time the Junior Brotherhood would give a burlesque representation of the First church Sunday school with C. C. Carrol as superintendent as the evening's entertainment.

CONWAY'S CALLED BACK A STORY IN PICTURES

"Called Back," the famous novel by Hugh Conway, has been produced by the Universal at its Pacific coast studios, and was released on the company's regular program, December 1 as a four-reel special. "The Ghost of Smiling Jim," a two-reel drama, was originally scheduled for release on that date. A telegram from President Carl Laemmle, who is at present on the Pacific coast, was responsible for the change. On his arrival there the picture was shown to him. He was impressed so deeply with it that he immediately wired to the New York offices, declaring it to be in his opinion one of the most noteworthy pictures from an artistic and dramatic standpoint ever done and instructing the program department to have it released as quickly as possible.

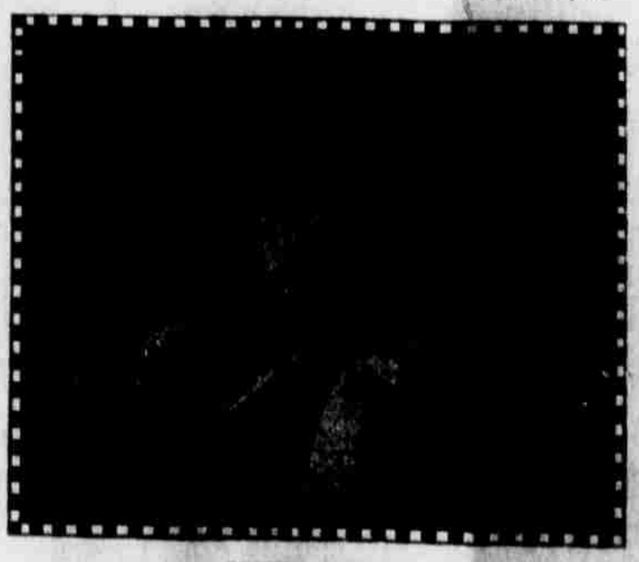
"It is too good to keep," was the way he expressed his reasons for having the change made.

The players under the direction of Otis Turner, and with Herbert Rawlinson, William Worthington and Miss Anna Little in the lead roles, made the picture. It was put into scenario form by James Dayton, scenario department at Hollywood, Cal.

Laid in London, as many of the scenes of the story are, the carpenters and "prop" makers were busy for several weeks constructing one of the little courts so common to certain sections of London during the period of the story. These scenes are a noteworthy feature of the film. Rows and rows of brick, wooden and stone buildings have been erected with the customary gas street lamps standing about at intervals along the sidewalks. Green grocers' shops, chemists' shops, markets, stables, and tenements line the narrow, crowded streets and together make up one of the most elaborate and typically English scenes ever reproduced on this side of the Atlantic.

TALENTED JANE COWL IS TO BE SEEN IN MOVIES

An announcement that should create the greatest interest in film circles is that the great stage beauty, Jane Cowl, will appear in a forthcoming Alco release, "The Garden of Lies."



DOROTHY DONNELLY

Miss Cowl not only ranks as a great stage beauty, but has done some of the most effective work seen in the modern legitimate theater. She began her career under the direction of David Belasco in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," the starring vehicle of Henrietta Crossman. Engagements in a number of Belasco comedies followed. Miss Cowl received sound dramatic instruction, which is one of the rewards Belasco players anticipate.

Her work with Belasco began gradually to attract widespread attention. After she had created a number of leading roles she was offered the principal feminine lead in "The Gamblers." Her success in this was instantaneous and widespread.

Her next important part was that of Mary Turner in "Within the Law." She made a country-wide impression—so great that a number of road companies started within a few months of the Manhattan first night, each with an actress selected because of some resemblance to Miss Cowl.

"The Garden of Lies," which is the vehicle for Miss Cowl's screen debut is from the pen of Justus Miles Forman. It is believed by those responsible for Miss Cowl's screen appearance, and her critics and friends, that the Forman work is admirably suited to Miss Cowl's personality.

THE FOLLY.

"The Mystery of The Haunted Hills," the fourth episode of the serial picture, Zudora, will be shown at the Folly tonight for the last time. The picture will be shown at 7, 8:30 and 10 o'clock. Patrons of this theater who have seen this wonderful picture declare it to be the most sensational yet shown. It is truly the wonder picture of the age. Margaret Snow, who appears in the role of Zudora, performs wonderful dramatic work as a detective in this picture. There are other splendid pictures and a first-class vaudeville bill of four acts.

THE EMPRESS.

"Ready Money," one of the most popular of the big theatrical productions presented in the season two years ago at the Overholser, will be seen again in Oklahoma City, this time in motion pictures at the Empress. It is the feature attraction for Wednesday. Jesse L. Lasky presents W. Edward Abeles in this Paramount feature which depicts "Ready Money" as "what everybody struggles for" and the "cause of our joys and sorrows." Thursday and Friday the big attraction of the season will be the nine part photoplay of Rex Beach's masterpiece novel, "The Spoilers," the greatest and best picture of the year. On the vaudeville bill appears Lee and Pearl, character singers and The Sidonias, comedy novelty artists.

MANY JOIN BRITISH FORCES FROM ST. JOHNS

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 15.—From this city with a population of 120,000 about 1250 men have enlisted for service in the British army and navy, 1,000 as soldiers and 250 as sailors. This is an average of one in every twenty-five of population—an average that, so far has been exceeded only at Liverpool, where one person in every fifteen has enlisted.

The ability of St. Johns to put so large a force in the field is ascribed by recruiting officers to the fact that for twenty years denominational schools and colleges have been maintaining boys' brigades.
