TO MAKE FIGHT ON STATE LAWS

Labor Unions Plan to Attack Compensation Law and New Garnishment Act

TWO laws passed by the last legislature will be attacked in the twelfth annual convention of the State Federation of Labor, now being held in this city. The first is the workmen's compensation act, which will go into effect in a few weeks.

Union labor men from over the state who are here as delegates to the convention have let it be known that this law is not at all satisfactory to them. They say it will put every mine operator in the state out of business and that it will have the effect of raising accident insurance rates in the state.

The workmen's compensation act provides a graded scale for the payment of laborers injured while at work, the minimum being 50 per cent of his earning capacity. As the bill was introduced in the legislature it was satisfactory to the labor unions, but they are disgusted with the way it was emasculated before it became a law.

A satisfactory commission for the enforcement of the law was promised at the time it was pending in the legislature and the fight of union labor against it was partially called off for that reason. The delegates here make no secret of the fact that the commission is not satisfactory to them.

Lawyers Barred From Appearing

One serious objection to the compensation act is that it deprives employes of being represented by attorneys when they have a claim for injuries against an employer. The matter goes into the hands of the commission and must be adjudicated there.

Another law that is not satisfactory to the labor unions is the garnishment act passed by the last legislature, if it was legally passed. At any rate it is now in force and hundreds of garnishments have been made under it. This act it is stated is unjust to the creditor as well as to the debtor. It exempts 75 per cent of a workman's wages and makes the other 25 per cent subject to garnishment.

Should a creditor garnish more than 25 per cent of the wages or salary of a workingman, the law provides that he shall lose the entire claim. This has been done in the court of Justice of the Peace Bradshaw in this city, who recently held that such a claim was void because the garnishment covered more than 25 per cent of the salary. The law will be attacked in the courts, on the ground that it did not receive the requisite number of votes in the house.

Delegates Are Welcomed

The labor unions will initiate another compensation act, it is stated by the delegates, and will not depend on the next legislature for a satisfactory law. The garnishment law, it is expected, will be wiped out of existence before the next legislature convenes.

The state convention met at 10 o'clock at the Overholser theater and was welcomed by Governor Williams and Mayor Overholser, on the part of the state and city governments. Mont R. Powell spoke in behalf of the Trades and Labor Council of Oklahoma City, and President Edgar Fenton responded on behalf of the State Federation of Labor.

Governor Williams spoke boastfully of the laws that had been enacted in the interest of labor by the state, but the response was not enthusiastic. Mayor Overholser, introduced by Powell as a friend of labor, confined his remarks to welcoming the delegates for the most part. He said he had found laws on the books when he took office and had enforced them to the letter, or as nearly so as possible.

The convention will remain in session several days and considerable entertainment has been provided for the delegates. The business sessions will be held at the Overholser theater.

Unpaid telephone bills for the month of Aug. are past due. If not paid by 5 p. m. of the 16th service will be discontinued. Pioneer Tel. & Tel. Co.—Adv.

IT'S ALL WRONG SAYS HY. STARR

Oklahoma Bank Robber Says Absconding Cashiers Should Be Punished, Too

THERE'S one thing on the subject of bank robbery I wish you would say for me," said Henry Starr Sunday, as he sat in a cell at the city jail with Louis Estes and two other prisoners from Chandler on the way to the penitentiary at McAlester, "and that is that the system of punishment is all wrong.

"It all depends upon which side of the wicket a man is on when he robs a bank. If he is a book-keeper and takes the money from the inside the chances are ten to one that he can make a compromise and get off without punishment or with a light sentence. If he has the nerve to stick up the officials and rob the bank from the outside he usually gets the limit of the law.

"I'm not saying that to treat these two classes of men alike would put a stop to bank robbery, but it would lessen that class of work from the outside. I have belonged to the outside class and I know what I'm talking about. Some of the bank robbing is done in a spirit of revenge. The injustice of letting an absconding cashier off without punishment and giving an outside bank robber the limit is resented.

"Two cases of that kind happened while the trials were going on in Chandler. An inside bank robber at Cedar Rapids and one at Little Rock were let off without punishment. One of them had restored half the money he had stolen."

Starr feels that the sentence of twenty-five years given him for the robbery of the Stroud bank was unjust, and he resents it out in this way. Recently a cashier was tried for taking much more than Starr took from the Stroud bank. He was caught and the money was recovered before he had spent any of it.

"On the same theory," said Starr, "I was entitled to clemency. The court held that the cashier should go free because he had not spent any of the money. After the robbery of the bank at Stroud I was shot down and the money taken out of my pocket. I didn't spend any of it, but I got a heavy sentence just the same."

Starr said he had no plans for the future, aside from the one he has in mind to have another book written. He wrote one book giving the details of his adventures while he was in the Colorado penitentiary and it was published at Tulsa about a year ago. The edition of ten thousand was sold out in a few months.

What plans could a man make when he has a sentence of twenty-five years hanging over him?" asked Starr. "Such a thing as a parole or pardon is out of the question for me. The feeling is too bitter in this state."

He'll Take His Medicine

"I've been foolish to get into anything of this kind," continued Starr. "but I'll take my medicine without complaining. I'm not the only one to feel the injustice of the sentence given me, though, and there are other bank robbers in Oklahoma. I'm not the only one."

The prisoners were brought here Sunday and quietly slipped into the city jail, where they were placed in charge of Chief of Police Nichols. Only a few visitors were admitted to the jail during the day. The officials taking Starr and Estes to McAlester did not say they feared an attempt at rescue, but they took the precaution to not let it be known when they would leave Chandler or when they would start from Oklahoma City to the penitentiary.

COLLEGE KEEPS FEDERAL FUND

Attorney General Refers to Opinion Given in February Relative to Handling of Morrill Fund

STATE TREASURER W. L. ALEXANDER today withdrew his request for an opinion from Attorney General Freeling as to whether the Morrill fund, coming from the federal government, should be controlled by the state board of agriculture.

He was informed by the attorney general that an affirmative opinion had been rendered in February last.

This gives first blood to the president of the agricultural board in the controversy relative to observance of the depository law.

The Morrill fund represents an annual donation of $50,000 to the agricultural colleges, of which amount $45,000 goes to the A. & M. college at Stillwater and $5,000 to the colored agricultural school at Langston.

Mr. Alexander has contended that this fund should go into the state treasury, while President Gault of the agricultural board has held to the contrary opinion.

CHESTINESS COSTS

Zealous Official Who Was Sheriff Unto Himself Will Receive No Fees as Result of too Much Independence.

Sans John, with an insanity charge lodged against him, lies in the county jail. And thereby hangs a tale, but not concerning the somewhat peculiar name given by the prisoner when brought in.

As told by denizens of the sheriff's office, a constable from Edmond swore to the complaint before Judge Zwick and was given a warrant. The county judge told the constable to take it to the sheriff's office, but the constable refused. "I'm a constable at Edmond and for that part of the country, and as far as this little matter is concerned, I'll be all the sheriff there is," he remarked as he departed to bring in Sans John.

As a result, the officer from the north part of the county will receive no fees for his trouble, as papers to be served must go through the sheriff's office before pay can be secured for executing them. All of which amuses the employes in said sheriff's office hugely.

Swapping Much Indian Acreage

Owing to the boom in oil leases around Bartlesville and in other wild-cat districts, several of the bigger companies are swapping much of their 4,800 acres of Indian leases these days. Such companies as the Prairie, McMan, Gypsy, Carter, White & Sinclair, et al, are betting legend to the land in this restricted Indian land, and whenever they want to take a block in other lease in some new territory, must release some of their oil. Some of the companies are releasing as much as a fourth of the 4,800 acres they have been holding for a year or two, in order to take new acreage elsewhere which looks better.

The head of one of the big companies in speaking of the matter estimates that the restricted Indian land half a million dollars annually in rentals and bonuses, because of the inability of the big companies to hold more than 4,800 acres of this land. This company holds altogether more than 100,000 acres of leases, of which about 95,000 acres are connected. "We would buy probably at least 20,000 acres more of restricted stuff, and pay $1 an acre rentals on it, to say nothing of bonuses, if we were permitted to," says this producer.

Oklahoma City Men Buy Cushing Lease

A bunch of Oklahoma City men, including C. F. Colcord, James Maney and a Mr. Wheatcroft are reported to have purchased the lease of the North Pool Oil company on a portion of the Chastron riverbed in S. E. U. north end of the Cushing district which is pretty good deep sand production. The chief stockholders of the North Pool company are Geo. T. Ames of Oklahoma City and Messrs. Greenstreet and Leacher of St. Louis.

Two Important Cushing Tests

White & Sinclair were down 2,400 feet in their test in 24-19-7, yesterday. This is immediately northeast of Cushing production.

East of the Cushing pool, in 24-17-8 the White & Sinclair test is down to 1,870 feet, and expecting the Layton at any time.

Northwest of Depew

The Gypsy Oil Co. is starting in the northeast of the southwest of 8-16-7, an offset to the Layton sand well in 9-16-7, which is promising a good pool north west of Depew. The well in 9-16-7 is reported still showing oil sand as when drilled in, 400 to 600 barrels daily.

The Sayre Oil Co. and the Mexia Oil Co. are both drilling in 4-16-7.

FOUR CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

Acceptance of Large Quantities of Liquor Held to Be Prima Faci Evidence of Intent

CHARGING "conspiracy to violate the prohibitory law" the county attorney's office Monday filed conspiracy charges against B. Amerman, J. Cook, D. Cook and D. Lake. One hundred and forty-eight different counts are included in the charge, which was filed in the county court by Harold Lee, special assistant county attorney.

This method of getting behind alleged bootleggers is an innovation in this county, at least. Records of the express companies were taken from December 8, 1914, to April 23, 1915, and carefully examined by Mr. Lee to ascertain the number of shipments received by them amounted to as much as 45 gallons, while on others the shipments declined down to more normal proportions.

This is the third case of its kind to be filed in the county. Charges of a like nature were filed some time ago against Ed Conely and Charley Cliff, and another charges were placed against bootleggers at Harrah. The latter parties pleaded guilty and were given six months in the county jail.

According to the county attorney's office, the acceptance of these large quantities of liquor from the express companies by these persons is prima facie evidence of their intent to violate the liquor laws. Proof of one of the 148 counts will be grounds for conviction, according to Mr. Lee, and the fact that receipts ran as high as 45 gallons a day, makes the prosecutors feel confident that the defendants will not be able to prove that they received the liquor for their own use.

FIXED GUILT OF ALL

"President Edwards has tried Hudson, Hope, Lane and myself and found us all guilty," said A. L. Welsh Monday. "He included Masters and some of the teachers for good measure, and acquitted Superintendent Buchanan without a hearing."

In a statement given to one of the newspapers President Edwards went over the entire school board trouble and said he did not consider the charges against President Buchanan worthy of consideration. He reviewed all the events of past weeks and gave all the blame to the socalled Hudson faction of the board. Some criticism of the court was included, in connection with the recent decisions in the Dixon case and the coal contract litigation.

ECHOES OF THE STREETS

The following marriage licenses were issued Monday: Johnnie S. Schafer, 23, and Miss Del Emma Turner, 18, of Kiel. Rick Thompson, 21, and Miss Jane Walton Hardenstein, 20, of Oklahoma City; Robert C. Gladden, 26, of Omaha, and Miss Mabelle Sly, 24, of Tulsa. M. C. Richards, 37, of Muskogee and Miss Lula D. Harris, 34, of Oklahoma City.

Plumbing Repairs. Hatch Wal. 1574. —Adv.

Petition for divorce from Charles A. Patterson was filed in the district court Monday by Mrs. Hattie Patterson. The petition alleges that defendant has been guilty of extreme cruelty, non-support and gross neglect of duty in that he is able to make a salary of $150 a month and refuses to provide for his family. The couple was married in 1885 and have two minor children. The custody of them Mrs. Patterson also asks.

Sensational Picture Narrates An Ex-Convict's Swift Romance

Scene from "Just Jim," to be pictured Tuesday and Wednesday at the Folly theater.

"Just Jim," to be exhibited Tuesday and Wednesday at the Folly theater, is a picture that probably will touch the human heart with as great magnetic power as the most appealing of those dramas which have dealt with sociological problems at any time. It is a story of an ex-convict who, having served his term of punishment, resolves to live a straight life but meets with rebuffs and adventures of sensational character. It is one continuously swift and absorbing series of startling climaxes in amazing action.

Preachers have preached and writers have editorialized for years upon the future of the reformed convict, but this picture in its five vivid reels delivers perhaps a more profound lesson than lips can recite or pen indite. For it shows definitely and sensationally the career of the really good man who has paid the penalty of a moral lapse and pleads that the memory of it be blotted out.

There are scenes in this picture that make an audience want to scream, and they follow each other in such marvelously rapid continuity as to maintain a high pitch of excitement throughout the exhibition.

Harry D. Carey, a Broadway star, noted for his character impersonations, enacts the part of the former convict. He is wonderful in this role, lending it a truthfulness and reality that compel spectators to watch eagerly for his return to the scene whenever he happens to be momentarily absent.

"Just Jim" will prove to be one of Oklahoma City's photoplay sensations. It has never been publicly produced before.
