sections at Salonica. But the Serbian forces, which have been fortified this entire region are now in process of being surrounded and cut off by the Bulgarians approaching southward from Kruevo.

Little is known of the actual situation in the district of Uskub, notwithstanding the official news offered by the Serbians. Neither both Germans and Bulgarians have made no fresh gains of importance.

In southwestern Serbia [illegible] for the British and French are reported. The Bulgarians are said to have been compelled to retreat on the Vardar front and to have sustained a check at the hands of the British in the Babrovo section.

Both England and France have greeted with great enthusiasm the joint war conference held in Paris. It is regarded as marking greater solidarity and more concerted action among the allied armies. Although no official information has been received regarding the subjects discussed at the conference it is presumed the principal matter is the Balkan situation.

BELLNO, [illegible] Nov. 18.—An Austrian aeroplane threw five bombs on the city at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. Not only did all of them explode. Three persons were slightly injured. No material damage was done.

ATHENS, Nov. 18.—Five thousand Serbs who have been defending Bojana Pass against the attacks of 20,000 Bulgarians have been forced to abandon their positions and are retreating on Pilop according to a dispatch from Salonica.

active in Oklahoma City a year or two ago. In obtaining [illegible] payers for a wonderful money-making fruit land scheme only four hours ride from St. Louis. The fine rich land was to be parcelled off in parcels of 160, 80, 40, 30, 20 and 10 acre tracts, and a grand drawing or lottery was scheduled to be held Monday, November 22, 1915. The raffle was to be held at Fruit City, Mo. Those who were unfortunate enough not show or place on the lucky tracts were to be given 100 shares of non-assessable stock in a great 70,000 acre orchard. Pleasant anticipations of next Monday's lottery were nipped in the bud by the regrettable notice from the company headquarters.

Failure on the part of installment purchasers to make payments, and money stringency due to the European war, are the causes assigned by the company for its failure. "The apprehension of the receiver will, of necessity, interrupt the consummation of many for holding the opening on November 22, as was anticipated," is the polite manner in which the extinct company bids its stockholders to say goodbye to their money, at least for an indefinite period. The application for the dissolution of the corporation and the appointment of a receiver will be made in the superior court at Hannibal, Mo., November 20.

Blouses Are Reduced!

A Bouquet of Three Hundred Lovely Styles at Clipped Prices!

Manufacturers have contributed—finest, freshest of Blouses at lowered prices. We sent out a call to them, asking their help in the effort to make this the greatest Blouse event in the history of Oklahoma. The response was magnificent. Hundreds came into the sale by that channel, and hundreds of others are right from stock, reduced for the occasion. Do you know that it is a difficult task to pour an event of this kind into an advertisement? Yes, to present it adequately in all its interesting phases, is extremely difficult!

First the styles. The very flowers of the season's fashions, practically every Blouse style that has been confirmed, signed and ratified by the modes; an almost infinite variety!

Next, the materials—Flaxons, Organdies, Batistes, Linens, Tub Silks, Crepes de Chine, Georgette Crepes and Taffetas.

Now the economies, large, real savings, and at the very hey-day of the Blouse wearing season! Timeliness is the very salt of bargain anyhow.

There are dimes, quarters, half dollars and dollars to be made, literally made, in this Blouse Sale.

At 85c Values $1 to $1.25

[illegible] nation-wide attention be [illegible] of its ethical features.

"But understand," he added, "I do not condemn Dr. Haiselden for his action, for we surgeons are called upon to make just such decisions every day of our lives. They are commonplace with us. For instance, many times I have a patient lying on the operating table, suffering in the last stages of cancer. While standing over him with my instruments in my hand I must decide right there a question of life and death. I know if I make an extensive operation the chances are that the patient will die, but if he should live he will live out his allotted time in comfort and safety from suffering; on the other hand if I perform merely a minor or no operation the patient has a fair chance of recovery but will undoubtedly suffer the remaining weeks, perhaps, months, of his life in pain and misery to himself, family and friends.

Three Aspects

"In Dr. Haiselden's case there are three aspects, the economic, the humanitarian and moral. Morally speaking, I think he was right to refuse to perform the operation on the baby when he could have saved its life even if he did have the consent of the mother to do so.

"Economically he was right in his conclusion that the child lived it would in all probability have grown to maturity a helpless invalid or cripple. Its family would have been compelled to support it if they were poor, and, perhaps, the community—society—would have been called upon to take care of him. He might have committed crimes, he might have done many things that would have justified his death on the scaffold or electric chair. Thousands of dollars had been spent in feeding and clothing him until he reached manhood.

"From a humane standpoint Dr. Haiselden was right again. Had the child lived he would have caused untold trouble and suffering to himself, his family and friends and the community. Animals suffering and dying are no longer useful, and something of menace to their owners and community, are put to death—why not man?

"Of course, had the child been born in a wealthy family, amply able to care for him and to keep him secluded from contact with the world, and had the mother desired him to live, then the operation would have been justifiable.

"Thus there are, as you can see, two sides in favor of Dr. Haiselden to one against him. I believe the medical profession generally will support him in his action."

Human Derelicts

Dr. Blesh then likened such human infants to derelicts.

"When a derelict ship is reported adrift on the seas, what does the government do? Why, a gunboat is sent with ammunition to blow it to pieces and send it to the bottom. What are hospitals, detectives and criminals but human derelicts on the sea of life? And why should they, when they get into the paths of human commerce, be allowed to constitute a menace to the craft that plow them? Of course, I am speaking now strictly from the economic standpoint. But then there is the humane one to be considered. Would not many of these derelicts prefer being sunk? I and every other man in the profession have them actually beg to be put to death frequently.

"But this question of life and death is so deep a one that one man cannot handle it satisfactorily," continued Dr. Blesh. "There is always the question of human fallibility to consider. What one surgeon may consider a hopeless case may in reality not be so. 'Hopeless cases' have been known to recover with proper treatment. Therefore, I advocate the establishment of a state board of physicians to pass upon the human derelicts to decide whether or not dynamite should be used, or whether they should be taken to drydock and repaired. It is only in this way that the ethical problem of euthanasia, which has long troubled the profession, can, I believe, be adjusted. The decision of a body of competent men would be far more reliable than that of one, and personal reasons—or financial ones—for a decision one way or the other would be eliminated."

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.
