Facts and Figures in Connection with this GREAT SALE

The Husseman Music Company has been identified with commercial enterprises for years. During that time the Husseman Music Company has made it a point to handle nothing but the best of goods. There are nearly 400 Piano factories in the United States. About forty of these Pianos are now handled in Oklahoma City. Thus we have had the choice of practically 300 different makes of these Pianos—quality has been the sole consideration. Money talks in all lines of business. When we said cash to piano manufacturers their hats practically stood straight on top of their heads. We have the pianos. We bought them right. And we propose to sell them right. We do not belong to a piano dealers' association or any other combination that would regulate prices.

A HINT TO TIME BUYERS

We have twenty-five Pianos that we must sell within twenty-four hours. We will not mention the prices and terms on these. They are so ridiculous that it would seem impossible to you. Come in early and come prepared to buy. If you fail to buy one of these it is safe to predict that the lucky ones will have a piano.

CLEVER COUNTERFEIT

Maker of Spurious 5 Dollar Gold Piece Actually Put $4 of Gold in Coin,—But Failed in Matter of Die

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 13.—The dropping fall of a gold piece with the eagle engraved on it caused a crowd and the stability of the counterfeit coin at Post Le Roy's jewelry emporium, the opposite side of the coin led to the discovery of the most perfect counterfeit gold coin ever seen here, say they have seen it. A. Connell is in charge of the secret service here. Gold of the coins. He has several which have come through the banks and the local subtreasury, and he declares the fake $5 gold piece is the most dangerous counterfeit that has come into his hands.

The coin contains $4 worth of gold, which is about [illegible] for a genuine coin at the time. The good gold coin contains $5 worth of gold, but the counterfeit contains but two grains.

TAFT; 'ABOLISH POSTMASTERS'

Former President Asserts Nation Could Save $4,000,000 Annually by Using Deputies

(From [illegible])

William H. Taft [illegible] the field with a proposal to abolish postmasters. As a class, the former president contends, they are [illegible] uneconomic. He asserts the general government could save $4,000,000 annually to start with if his program were adopted.

"Why devil a president [illegible] trying to pick an honest postmaster in [illegible] Falls, N. Y.?" exclaimed [illegible] president, in a speech here [illegible] and later he apologized for the [illegible] vile epithet. [illegible] energy were [illegible] in the end [illegible] this [illegible] of the office.

"I want the [illegible] department managed by the Postmaster General as any big going business is managed privately," he said. "The deputy postmaster, named under civil service, could and should be the executive and we would have a good [illegible] interminable politics and moral waste."

As to Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Taft concluded his speech [illegible] story:

"He (Col. Roosevelt) has been belaboring Mr. W[illegible] and I do not know that I [illegible] any better than to remain [illegible] my father used to [illegible] a dog house back as his [illegible] to be like a roaring lion [illegible] seeking whom he may devour. He said: 'I shall simply say [illegible] parts. In the first place I know exactly who the devil he is [illegible]. I shall [illegible] where he [illegible] going, and third, I [illegible] remarks with the [illegible] what the devil he is [illegible]."

RISK NECKS TO GET MISTLETOE

Oklahoma Citians Will Attempt to Grab Off Greenery From Trees Sunday

NOTWITHSTANDING the warning of the weather man that Sunday would be one of the most bitterly cold days of the year, and despite the difficulties attached to its gathering, scores of Oklahoma City small boys and grown men, all well bundled up on that day in sweaters and overcoats and [illegible] to the woods in search of the much-sought mistletoe.

During the early part of this week small boys were seen on the street corners selling small bunches of the Christmas decoration, but the first real attempt at anything like a wholesale merchandising locally was made Friday when a wagon, piled high with the sacred perfectly fruited and formed branches, stood all day on Broadway. The mistletoe was sold at very good prices.

Those who have sought the parasite in this vicinity, declare it far scarcer than in several seasons, but Bartlesville reports a good crop, which annually buys many hundreds of pounds for shipment to Chicago and other eastern markets. Gradually it has grown in abundance near Purcell and Lexington.

There are many, however, who are dismayed with a very human disinclination to purchase any product which cost nothing and which can be had for the taking, so these sturdy, and, perhaps, somewhat reckless, men and boys will either get their chandelier embellishment free of charge or break a neck or limb in the attempt. Mistletoe grows only on the tiptop limbs of the tallest oaks and elms.

At the Theaters

THE MET.

"At Bay," which continues at the Met Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is big with the bigness of a real drama. Florence Reed, the girl with the wonderful eyes, is the heroine. This same play in stage form stood a test of eighteen months on Broadway, New York, which is a pretty good recommendation as to its merit. "At Bay" abounds in thrilling scenes. It bristles with the atmosphere of everyday life. It tells a simple, easy story. The play is splendidly acted. The [illegible] reveals a bunch of gamblers [illegible] a reform district [illegible] and how his daughter is [illegible] in the scheme, and how she [illegible] them. After many [illegible] thrilling adventures all turns [illegible] and they live happily ever after. THE OVERHOLSER

[illegible] of friends and admirers of Harry D. Clay, better known as "Whitey," who for a long [illegible] associated with the Overholser theater, will on Wednesday and Thursday have opportunity [illegible] his histrionic ability as [illegible] on the screen in a Mutual film company's picture, "Mistress Ranchman," in which he assumes the chief comedy [illegible]. It is notable that in this picture [illegible] one hundred Oklahoma [illegible] chosen by different towns [illegible] their physical grace and their popularity, also [illegible] excellence [illegible] while having this picture [illegible] with his acting. In one [illegible] he suffered quite a painful injury but continued his work without [illegible] the scene was finished, after which he was bathed in arnica [illegible] and swathed in bandages. [illegible] accident occurred after Mr. Clay had suffered a cold plunge in [illegible] and was trying to escape, [illegible] from a gang of pursuing [illegible]. The mule he was riding [illegible] without warning and Mr. Clay [illegible] on his back on the sward. The [illegible] couldn't check their [illegible] in time and the comedian [illegible] mother earth for the hoofs of [illegible] than one dashing animal. He [illegible] bruised, but has recovered [illegible] himself Wednesday and Thursday on the film.

"The Millionaire Ranchman" is a [illegible] production, which was staged amid the natural scenic beauties of Montezuma Park and with an exquisitely beautiful cast of feminine players, features this picture the Mid-Western will present the Editors' Animated [illegible] and the Kansas-Oklahoma football game. This week's program will mark the debut of this home company in the film producing field.

The more sincerely one enjoys the thrills of genuine, double-barrelled melodrama, the more surely and keenly will one realize the frank, fearless and hilarious fun of Geo. M. Cohan's delightful farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," which will be the attraction here Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 17-18-19, matinees Saturday and Sunday.

In this the author, Geo. M. Cohan, feeds his audience to the top of his bent. At the opening of the play the audience learns that William Hallowell Magee, a novelist of the third rank, has made a wager of $10,000 that he can write a few thousand words in twenty-four hours, the only stipulation being that the work be done in "the lonesomest spot on earth."

Seven Keys to Baldpate is a most unusual play. It [illegible] you right out of your seat, it is chock full of thrills and surprises. In it Mr. Cohan runs the gamut of human emotions, beginning with the sweet incident of introducing his characters, who, one after another, pop themselves in on the scene, each making the impression that theirs is the only Key to Baldpate.

THE EMPRESS

William Farnum, a strong favorite in Oklahoma City and one of the greatest actors in the films, will be screened Tuesday and Wednesday at the Empress theater in "The Broken Law," a vivid, dashing, romantic love drama which is packed with thrills and climaxing almost any Mr. Farnum is said to have a part which exactly suits his character and his temperament and he has scored a tremendous success in it thus far. "The Broken Law" is strictly new in theme and action and is reported to be absorbingly interesting. Monday the Empress is showing "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," in which Charles Cherry is featured.

THE LYRIC

Naturally Col. J. A. Fairbairn and his company of "Old Soldier Fiddlers" are given the nod of merit because of patriotic sentiment and appreciation which every loyal American holds for the men who fought the battles of the '60's, whether they wore the blue or the gray. The old soldiers were here before. Col. Fairbairn briefly relates the story of a [illegible] so vividly painted on the [illegible] that forms the background of the fiddlers and confederate camp, and then the young old men [illegible] violins and tambourines [illegible] old-time dance music [illegible] "Virginia Reel," "Money Musk," "Dixie" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me" for good measure.

Two other vaudeville acts are on the bill at the Lyric. The Alexander Brothers present a [illegible] ball-juggling feature and Bell Oliver offers a splendid series of songs, with some great character work.

Substitute Fruit for Butter and Fat

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—The unusually large crop of fruit throughout Germany this fall has made necessary the existance of a conservation organization known as the War Committee of the Fruit Manufacturing industry." This, composed of manufacturers of preserves and marmalades, was formed when it was feared that large quantities of fruit would go to waste unless some step was taken to make it into substitute for butter and fat.
