Dolls Donated to Empty Stocking Cause, On Display in High School

A TRANSFORMATION

So Cleverly Have Some Been Repaired That They Look Almost Like New

IT is not at all unusual for a little girl to give a tea party to the dolls of her friends with her own girl as the guest of honor but when the boys take matters into their own hands and give a housewarming to really and truly, honest-to-goodness, flesh and blood grown ups, the incident is worth more than passing comment.

But when in addition to dolls, toy bears, dogs, horses and kitty cats to speak of lions and tigers, join in the festivities, it is extraordinary. Moreover that is exactly what the members of the woodwork class of the manual training department of the high school for the past week will do next Monday when every one in the city is invited to come to the basement in the afternoon and review them. Of course, H. F. Roach, manual training instructor, is spokesman for the occasion and assures any prospective visitors that the hosts and hostesses are perfectly well behaved little animals and will not bite or claw one—that is, not seriously.

On Tuesday the members of the Professional clubs of Oklahoma City will begin the room to wrap up the toys in parcels. On Christmas night they will distribute them to the poor of Oklahoma City.

NO QUARREL WITH ENGLAND

Not While Wilson Is President—For He and Majority of Cabinet Are Committed in Mind to Lasting Amity

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18.—There will be no quarrel between the United States and Great Britain over the blockade and contraband interferences on American commerce, so long as Woodrow Wilson is president.

Mr. Wilson believes that the [illegible] ship of Great Britain will be a valuable asset of the United States after the war. For example, he believes that after the war Great Britain and the United States if on friendly terms will amicably divide the trade of the world between them."

This was the statement made by a member of the president's cabinet who has helped in the formulation of the administration policies of dealing with the European belligerents. He said that this is the view held by himself and a majority of the cabinet.

URGES BONUS ON MATERNITY

Sir John Cockburn Says England Needs More Babies—Sterility a Curse

MANY TAKE OTHER VIEW

"Parental Prudence" Should Be Encouraged Among the Poor, War Considered

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Strikingly contradictory opinions were expressed at a recent meeting of the Royal Military Institute concerning whether the threatened decrease of babies, as a result of the war, should be regarded as a calamity or a blessing.

The subject discussed was labelled, "The National and Social Aspects of the Lowered Birth Rate." Some of the speakers demanded that the government should take the matter in hand and do everything possible to encourage and popularize maternity, others, though it should be stated they were in a minority, held that the fewer babies born, for a time, to come at least, the better it would be for the country. Two speakers may be cited as representative of these divergent views.

Cockburn's Views

Sir John Cockburn urged the need of greater inducements to raise the birth rate. Maternity, he said, was taxed too heavy a tax on the poorer classes. He would have the government provide bonuses on a liberal scale of maternity and make a substantial reduction in the income tax for each child born. "We need," he declared, to revive the mediaeval view which regarded sterility as a curse."

The Malthusian Opinion

Dr. Dunlop boldly took the Malthusian view. He looked forward, he declared, with cheerfulness to a further reduction of the birthrate. The encouragement of "parental prudence" among the poor was urgently needed at the present moment. He foretold a serious rise in the death rate and great poverty in the next year or two, and if the thoughtful scientific people were so blind that they did not speak out, it would be far better for many children that they had never been born. The only hope of avoiding great hardship in the first few years after the war was by a very sharp fall in the birthrate now.

Buy It In Oklahoma City

An Editorial By Advertising Manager "B & M."

There is a growing conviction that people who get their beefsteak in Oklahoma City ought to support it; that the man who takes from Oklahoma City, and does not give all he can to it, is putting it mighty unappreciative.

Do we meet her Fifty-Fifty in this reciprocity game?

We cannot blame the man from spending his money in the vague and unappreciative elsewhere if he can buy more with it.

It just so happens though that Oklahoma City is an excellent market for most things.

The cost of production is not quite so high here.

The class of labor is higher.

In most lines you get somewhat better goods in Oklahoma City.

Even if values were merely equal we really ought to support the town that supports us—purely as a matter of principle.

For, after all, it's we folks who live at home and buy at home who pay the whole burden of Oklahoma City taxes.

The money we spend at the corner grocery builds our schoolhouses, pavements, streets, manns our fire department, and maintains our police force—besides getting us our groceries.

But the dollar spent out of Oklahoma City enriches some other community at our expense.

The out-of-town label doesn't get you anything. Does it?

We are suggesting that insofar as you can, you buy your lots, your house, your ties, your clothes, your motor cars, carpets and everything else you wear or use of some reputable, reliable Oklahoma City jobber or merchant.

That sounds fair, doesn't it? And buy it now!
