EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you — Drink lots of water

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightfully effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney diseases.

IN TULSA JAIL

Negroes Who Killed Muskogee Policeman Not Taken to McAlester: Will Be Tried in February

MUSKOGEE, Dec. 28.—Bill Williams, alias Green, and Homer Matthews the two negroes who escaped lynching at the hands of a mob here Sunday night, were taken to Tulsa, instead of McAlester, as stated by the authorities here to deceive those bent on lynching the blacks.

The funeral of Patrolman Neal, who was shot by the blacks, was held Monday.

Trial of the negroes will take place in February, and it is generally believed here that the two slayers will go to the electric chair before the expiration of 1916. A preliminary hearing probably will be given the negroes next week.

NOT A WOMAN ENTERS THERE

Mount Athos, Across From Saloniki, Is Seat of Queer Monastic Republic

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 28.—"Across the peninsula from the Allied forces in Salonika lies Mount Athos, today a Holy Mount [illegible] the dominant physical feature of the Greek land reaches [illegible] where the ancient gods [illegible] the mushroom [illegible] a wonderful military camp [illegible] ated a saintly monastic community peaceful, [illegible] a religious republic. He through the dark Ages of the Balkans," [illegible] just behind the National Geographic society, which tells of the Christian strongholds on Mount Athos that persisted in thriving for years [illegible] the boundaries of the Ottoman Empire.

"Legend makes the rugged mountain holy in the eyes of all Near Eastern Christians, and moreover, the same legend has to do with some of the present-day discomforts of life there high above the blue Aegean. It is recorded that the Blessed Virgin rescued the son of the Emperor Theodosius from shipwreck, and brought him safely through the violent seas to the mountain foot. As they touched upon the shore, the sacred companion of the prince commanded: 'Let no other woman's foot tread this soil after me.' And so it comes that no female beings are allowed upon the Holy Mount.

Disadvantage of Woman's Exclusion

"The strict exclusion of all female creatures from the Mount, however, has certain disadvantages. Thus, no fresh eggs may be had on Mount Athos, and no milk, for the cow and the hen, under the ban of the legend, are kept from its area. It is a place of masculine independence and supremacy; a land 'where all fowls are cocks, all sheep rams, all cats Toms, all housemaids men, and most men monks.'

"The ascent of the Holy Mount, to its realm of religious and masculine seclusion is a toilsome one. Above the monasteries and the hermit cells, the culminating, colossal, conical peak of the mount breaks into the clouds. This peak is so majestic that it is said to throw its evening shadow across distant Lemnos. Karyes, a city of quaint domes set in groves of hazel, is the capital of the community, and in Turkish times before the war of 1912, it was practically the capital of a monastic republic.

"On the lower slopes, the olive, the cypress, the lemon, and the orange form an outlying fringe of vegetation. The lower slopes are climbed by the oak, the beech, the chestnut, and mantled by the fir. All manner of vegetables and fruits are grown in the monasteries gardens, and the low, rumbling buildings accretive rather than planned are picturesque, homey surroundings within which to pass away a calm, reflective life.

Named, the Lotos-Eaters

"The monks and hermits of Mount Athos have been named the lotos-eaters. Nature around them is beautiful and impressive, and their ways are sheltered and through plenty. On the other hand, some writers find the lot of life upon the Holy Mount anything but enviable. One says: 'Nature and history have combined in making Mount Athos what it is: a nilless, nilthless seat of superstitious meditation, where sanctity is hatched in sable-feathered idleness, where the spirit slumbers rocked in the cradle of mediaeval faith. No breath of skepticism wafted from the outer world ever reaches these lotophagian retreats, no aspiration of those that agitate the "restless race of miserable men" ever quickens the pulse of these melancholy anchorites. The monks of Mount Athos, however, have deserved well of the world by preserving much of the wealth of old Greek culture to modern times.

"Athos swells the tip of the easternmost of the three Chalcidian peninsulas. The mountain reaches a crest 6,350 feet above the sea, and plunges precipitously into the water. Monasteries were founded upon the mount in the early middle ages, some say as early as the time of Constantine. They preserved their independence under Moslem rule, even after assisting in a struggle for Greek independence, and, for centuries, they were the center of Greek learning.

"The peninsula, on which Athos is situated, is forty miles long, and it is connected with the mainland by a neck hardly a mile and a half broad. The way around the peninsula was a dangerous one for sailors, and Xerxes, as part of his plan for invading Greece, ran a canal through the narrow neck, which can still be traced. In classic times, there were several smaller cities here. Now 6,000 monks, housed in twenty monasteries, constitute the life of Athos and its causeway to the mainland."

TIMES APPEAL GOT RESULTS

More Than $80 Was Given to Provident Association's Day Nursery

FROM cash contributions of ten cents to pledges of $25 money flowed into the coffers of the Provident Association Christmas week as a result of an appeal by The Times on behalf of the association's Day Nursery. A total amount of $[illegible] was donated by the people of Oklahoma City to this institution. Several hundred dollars also were given to the Christmas basket fund and to the permanent fund of the association.

With the money thus secured Miss E. Novella Gould, matron of the Provident Association, will begin immediately purchasing furniture and supplies badly needed in the meagrely equipped and chilly house on West Grand.

Few people were aware that such an institution as the Day Nursery existed in Oklahoma City, or, if they did know it, were not aware of the scope of its work. Many people expressed surprise at the fact that so many children were being cared for and that the institution was being run at a constant and consistent loss. The twenty-five kiddies at the nursery were entertained at a Christmas party by the members of the Cloverleaf Embroidery club. Last year that organization had a big Christmas tree and gave presents to the little unfortunates and early in the winter requested that they might do the same again.

ARKANSAS LEADS

Neighboring State to the East Now Has More Postoffice Robberies Than State of Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Oklahoma, which last year led all the states in the number of postoffice burglaries, is evidently no longer good picking for the gentlemen who ply the trade of burglary, or else they have reformed, for, according to the annual report of Postmaster General Burleson for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, there were but 41 postoffice robberies reported in Oklahoma, while over in Arkansas there were 47. The biggest haul made by Oklahoma postoffice robbers during the last fiscal year was the one at Pryor, Postmaster Keys having been allowed a claim of $2,675 for stamps, money orders and postal funds taken by the burglars. The next largest claim in Oklahoma was the one at Cherokee, Postmaster Walter Ferguson having been allowed $2,020.29 for losses sustained.

PLAN CO-OPERATION

EL RENO, Dec. 28.—At a conference of Canadian county farmers here today plans will be made for co-operative shipping of hogs to the Oklahoma City packeries over the interurban lines. The farmers purpose building stockyards here and making bi-weekly shipments.
