HERE'S THE OLDEST AMERICAN ANTIQUITY

It looks like a mud god. Bullock, for the collections of the United States Museum in Washington, says that it used to be worshipped as a god by the people who lived near Vera Cruz, Mexico, 700 years before Christ and that it is the oldest dated American antiquity.

The statuette was uncovered 6 feet below scale ago by the plow of a Mexican peon. But the secret of the inscriptions on it have only just been solved by the savants in the museum of Uncle Sam. The scientists say that in the strange characters in the picture there is a hint to further buried evidences of the life of the ancient civilization and they hope to uncover new secrets of this ancient race of people.

German sharpshooters equipped with snow shoes in Vosges Mountains.

The mountain fighting in which the Germans are engaged has made it necessary to draw on these German soldiers who are snow shoe adepts. The photograph shows a patrol of these men garbed in white uniforms to make them almost invisible against the white background and equipped with their new snow shoes, taking a bead on the enemy in the Vosges Mountains.
