ANOTHER BONANZA.

Cheering Reports from the Mines of Alaska—Richest in the West.

San Francisco, Cal., January 14.—Wm. Guderew Meyers, collector of customs at Sitka, Alaska, has just arrived from the north, and in the course of an interview confidently stated that the very rich mineral deposits of Alaska would not fail to attract great attention in the near future. Lodes were found at the base of the mountains which can be traced up their sides and marked by surface diggers to such advantage that last season a small force of men made over $250,000. The quartz diggings had been much interferred with by reason of the little respect paid the proprietary interests of others. Considerable Pacific coast capital is finding its way into Alaska, and has already brought into prominence lines of mines as large as the whole Comstock lode. He believes the mines would show the largest body of ore in sight in the world, and says Eastern capitalists have already sent machinery for the purpose of developing the great mineral regions of Alaska. As to shelling Hascan's village by the commander of the Merriam, he regarded it in every way justifiable. It only appeared cruel by persons actuated by sentimental reason, who are wholly unacquainted with the Indian character. He predicts that Alaska is destined to occupy a front rank in American possessions, not only on account of her valuable fisheries, mines and rich deposits but also for her great ship building facilities. Unfortunately Alaska is badly in need of recognized authority for the enforcement of laws. This necessity is growing more urgent every day. There would soon be interminable conflicts between Agonistic mining claims unless the government established a system of laws with authority to enforce them.

TOM THUMB'S TRUNK.

The Lilliputian Uneasy About his Saratoga and Valuables.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin, January 15.—General Tom Thumb has made frequent calls at police headquarters every day since the fire to see if his trunk had not been saved. He would examine every trunk recovered, but has failed to find the object of his search. His trunk contained his overcoat, clothing jewelry and collection of old coins. The general was indignant over the report that Officer O'Brien rescued him and wife. Yesterday evening he told Chief Mason he rescued O'Brien who might otherwise have perished. The general and his troupe left the city this morning, but not until he had warned the police to notify him immediately if his trunk was found.

The report afloat to the affect that Landlord Antisdell had disappeared is wholly untrue. He was found this morning at Professor Haskins' residence still suffering from the terrible shock but not dangerous.

What truth is there in the rumor that the night watchman at Newhall was instructed in case of fire, to inform the office clerk of it, without regard to awakening the guests?" asked a reporter of Mr. Antisdell.

Mr. Antisdell said in an impressive way, There was not one word of truth in it; that all these stories that were afloat concerning him and his actions and intentions were done with a view to injure him at this point. His elder son said: "It is terrible that people should tell such things; that it has bad effect, and moreover, it was done out of pure maliciousness and it did no good.

ANOTHER INJUNCTION.

New York, January 15.—William S. Williams, known on account of his connection with the resistance to a consolidation of the American Union and Western Union Telegraph lines, applied to the superior court to-day for an injunction to restrain the Western Union Telegraph Company from opening the transfer books of that company and from making any transfers of stock of corporations. A temporary injunction was obtained and an order made returnable on the 24th inst., but the Western Union Telegraph Company obtained an order securing an immediate hearing. The result of the hearing practically invalidated the original order. The judge said at the close of the argument he would modify forthwith the temporary injunction order or so far as that should apply, only to restrain the transfer of such a part of $15,000,000 of the stock dividend, as must be still in the hands of the first parties or of individual defendants and that Wednesday morning he would meet the counsel for settling the question as to how far and to what extent he would continue the injunction.
