subordination to the white race. The time never was and will never be when the black, where there are either white or red men, will be the dominant race, and if Senator Edmunds would have negroes made masters he should give them a country of their own. He is a trifler and demagogue when pandering to prejudices of races, when appealing to Northern prejudices against Southern whites by proposing the enactment of another civil rights bill. I was always as true to the Union as Edmunds, I staked my life, and Edmunds his words; and I am a truer, better friend of the negro than Edmunds when I insist that idle laws, designed to compel social equality, are only ruinous to the best interests of these Africans. Such enactments as he commends in his place in the senate only serve to sharpen and define by law irrepealable and indestructible race antagonisms which time and God himself will never obliterate. Nature soon exterminates products of miscegenation, and unless unity of races be possible, social and political unity is utterly impossible. But the necessities of Edmunds' party demands race conflicts, and Edmunds is wise in his methods of exciting them. Vive la bagatelle! Let us have another civil rights code. If Edmunds sought the negro's good he would define a plan of colonization; but such is not his purpose. He would retain power for his party after 1884. He would substitute the negro for the tariff question; the bloody shirt for national bank notes. It will pay better, and Edmunds is not always a statesman. He enacts the role of a miserable partisan, and defiles the niche which history prepares for him in fame's Pantheon."

The Postal Telegraph Bill.

Washington, D.C., December 9.—The Postal Telegraph bill introduced last session in congress has been revised and will be introduced in the house at at the earliest opportunity. The bill authorizes the postmaster-general to construct and operate three main lines of telegraph. The southern line to extend from Baltimore to San Antonio, Texas, via. the South Atlantic states and New Orleans. The length of the lines will be over 9,000 miles, and will cost in round numbers $3,000,000. Telegraph stamps are to be sold like postage stamps. The charges are to be thirty cents for ten words, and three cents for each additional word.

As soon as possible Judge Reagan will introduce a bill to control interstate commerce. The judge said to the correspondent of the GAZETTE to-day that many congressmen are re-elected who favor the bill, and other causes lead him to suppose little difficulty will be experienced in its passage.

Efforts are again being made to remove Folger. Arthur is working for the presidential nomination, and desires the help of the treasury department. Folger is no politician, and cannot handle the funds and employes of the department satisfactory to the Arthur factions. Gresham has developed strength as a machine man and will be given the place.

LEGISLATIVE BILLS.

Four hundred and fifty bills have been introduced already in the senate, some of which are of national importance, like Senator Coke's bill pertaining to judges of the United States district courts. Three hundred have applied for relief to individuals, and more of the latter class are to come.

HANCOCK AND SHERIDAN.

Congressman Davis of Illinois will introduce a bill to-morrow providing for the promotion of Gen. Sheridan to the rank of general of the army, and Gen. Hancock to the rank of lieutenant-general.

LAND TRESPASSERS.

Senator Ingalls will soon introduce a bill providing that any person who encloses an area of public lands to which he has no title shall be liable to a fine of $100 per day for the time that such enclosure is maintained, and any person who obstructs the passage of another over or through the public domain shall for every offense pay the aggrieved person $500.

RE-SURVEYS.

Also a bill authorizing the re-survey of townships erroneously surveyed or in which the monuments marking the boundaries have been obliterated or removed.

NO MAN'S LAND.

Also, a measure providing for the annexation to one of the Kansas land districts for judicial purposes of the unnamed area lying between Kansas and the Indian Territory, and authorizing the completion of its survey.

THE WOOL TARIFF.

Representative Converse of Ohio has prepared a bill, which he will introduce to-morrow if possible, providing for the restoration of the rate of duty on clothing wools, combing wools, carpet and other similar wools, to what they were prior to the enactment of the present tariff law. Converse had a conference yesterday with Delano, president of the National Wool Growers' association, at which the latter gave the proposed measure his indorsement, and to-night Converse had no doubt that his bill will pass the house by a two thirds majority. The wool growing industry, he said, is closely allied to the agricultural and farming class, who are interested in the restoration of the old rates on wool, and this circumstance will give the bill strength. His state was the chief wool producing state in the country, and had suffered most severely from the reduction made in the present law. There were in that state 4,600 wool growers, and their loss on sales of wools of the last annual clipping amounted to more than a million dollars. The effect of the reduction of tariff on wool products had been felt so keenly in Ohio that both political parties there had pledged themselves to work for a restoration to the old rates.

THE UTAH BILL.

Representative Cassidy will shortly introduce a bill to provide for the establishment of the territorial legislature of Utah, and the appointment instead of a legislative commission of thirteen and fifteen members, to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate.

A BUREAU OF COMMERCE.

Dingley will introduce a bill for the establishment of a bureau of commerce and navigation in the treasury department, similar to the British boards of trade, which will have general superintendence of the commercial marine and merchant seamen of the United States.

A DAY AT DALLAS.

First Victory of the Nationals Over the Brown Stockings.

A Closely Contested Game—Sighing for Other Fields to Conquer.

The Meeting of Real Estate Men—Two Colored Men Shot.

Special to the Gazette.

Dallas, December 9.—Fort Worth turned the tables on Dallas to-day on the ball field, the Nationals defeating the Brown Stockings in a well-played game by a score of 9 to 6. The most observable feature of the game was the fine pitching and first base play of Geiss and Scott, respectively, for the Nationals, and the splendid fielding of Lewis and the good batting and base running of Carroll for the Brown Stockings. The game was played and won on its merits, and Fort Worth should feel elated at the victory of her team. The Nationals left for home to-night. Negotiations are pending between Manager Grigsley of the Nationals and the management of the Browns for the latter to play in Fort Worth on Sunday and Monday next, but nothing positive has been concluded.

Real estate men in all parts of the state, by letters to the Dallas parties who have inaugurated the move for a state association, heartily and fully indorse the scheme, and the indications are that the convention to be held here on December 18th will be a very large and important one.

At 10 o'clock to-night, Harry and Joe Johnson, brothers, and intelligent and industrious mulattoes, aged about 23 or 24 years, were shot by Tip Wilson, also a mulatto, aged about 20. Harry Johnson died in a few minutes from wounds in the side and abdomen. Joe Johnson is dangerously wounded in the left thigh and region of the groin. They were coming from church with two mulatto girls, when Tip Wilson met them and used indecent and insulting language, and shot the brothers for protesting against it. Wilson was captured by the police and jailed. The affair creates much bitter feeling among the colored people generally of the city.

WACO.

To-Day's Election—The Bond Question—Business Changes—Local and Religious Notes.

Special to the Gazette.

Waco, December 9.—The aldermanic election to-morrow has interested the average Waconite to-day about as much as the sermons that were preached—perhaps a little more. If it were not for the bonding and other questions that enter into the contest, the selection of five aldermen would be a rather ordinary matter. But when the taxpayer hears talk of issuing anywhere from $100,000 to $300,000 worth of bonds, and taxation about double next year what it is now, he pricks up his ears and begins to take an interest in the election. It is pretty well understood that the mayor and at least three of the five aldermen who hold over until December, 1884, are in favor of bonds. The council consists, when full, of ten aldermen. If two of the five to be chosen to-morrow are bond men, that element, with the mayor's casting vote, will control the council and the question. This is given by way of explanation why the mere selection of a few aldermen makes the election an important one. It is a healthy sign that the leading citizens, men who usually cannot be coaxed into giving their time or attention to local politics, are now coming to the front. Wm. Cameron, the well-known lumberman and merchant, is a candidate in one ward. In another R. B. Parrott, head of the Texas Benevolent association, is another. His opponent is J. S. Willis, a leading physician and heavy property owner. A full vote will no doubt be polled in all the wards.

Mr. Louis Brilling of Whitney and Miss Paulie Mittenthal of Hillsboro were married this afternoon, at the residence of Rabbi Suhler, in this city, the rabbi tying the knot. Several friends from adjoining towns were present.

Rev. H. J. Crist, the new pastor of the M. E. church, was formally installed to-day, preaching his inaugural sermon. He gives promise of achieving popularity.

The Cline habeas corpus case will be heard by Judge Rimes to-morrow. Cline is the man who killed A. O. Lynn.

Cleveland & Cameron, wholesale grocers, have dissolved partnership. Cleveland retires and A. D. Story, late of Galveston, takes his place.

Alvin Joslin, diamonds and all, played to a big house last night, and Haverly's "Strategists" are playing to an equally large audience to-night.

The day has been clear and one of the coldest of the winter.

SAN ANTONIO.

Mistaken for Wolf and Killed—A Gambler Shot at—Evans and the Express—Change of Gauge.

Special to the Gazette.

San Antonio, December 9.—Charles Johnson, a sheepman, was accidentally killed by a friend named Farrington, at Cotulla night before last, by being mistaken for a wolf prowling about the sheep.

About one o'clock last night, Joe Johnson, colored, was shot three times at by Jona J. Cummins, a gambler. Johnson is employed in the White Elephant saloon, and the trouble was about the price of a drink.

The Express this morning declines to notice Jack Evans again until he rises above the level of the blackguards. Evans seems to have gotten the Express "riled."

Indications point to the early widening of the gauge of the Mexican Central railway, which is now supposed to belong to the Huntington syndicate.

Death of a Minister.

Boston, December 9.—Rev. Dr. John O'Mearis, corresponding secretary of the American board of foreign missions, died yesterday.

GALVESTON.

A Woman's Work With an Unloaded Pistol—Row at a Dance Hall—Captain Eads.

Special to the Gazette.

Galveston, December 9.—This morning about 3:30 o'clock, while J. Warren and Remus McDade was in the room of Laura Hynes and Rosa Martin, in the alley south of Broadway between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets, Warren was shot through the left thigh, the ball lodging in the right, by a pistol in the hands of Laura Hynes. Rosa Martin gives this statement of the affair: She says that she accompanied Laura Hynes last night to Warren's barber shop on Market street where Miss Hynes went to get a pocket-knife which Warren had borrowed. The hour being late, Warren and McDade accompanied them home. After being there a short time, Miss Hynes insisted upon Warren and McDade leaving, to which Warren demurred and drew a revolver from his hip pocket. Miss Hynes expostulated with him, and urged him to put up the pistol, as she was afraid of it. Warren assured her it was not loaded, and cocked it and handed it to her and told her to snap it, which she did. A loud report followed, and Warren fell to the floor exclaiming: "I am shot." McDade secured a hack, and at once conveyed Warren to a drug store where his wound were dressed, when he was taken home. Warren says the shot was accidental. The parties to the affray are colored. Warren is married and has a family.

At a late hour a fracas occurred at the Soup & Bully, a disreputable negro dance hall in the west part of the city, which resulted in Smith Green drawing a vicious looking knife and plunging it into the thick muscles of the left arm of Frank Lardis, near the shoulder. Green was arrested and lodged in jail, while Lardis was sent home for repairs.

Captain Charles Fowler, agent of the Huntington syndicate here, is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Huntington to the effect that the letters addressed to Captain James Eads by the commercial bodies and citizens of this city have been forwarded to Captain Eads, who is in Europe, by the steamship Arizona. Mr. Huntington in his letter says he has strong assurances that Captain Eads will make a prompt answer to the letters, and Captain Fowler is in daily expectation of hearing something relative to the views of Captain Eads on the question of deep water here.

Mr. Max Deafling of St. Louis has accepted a position on the editorial staff of the German Post of this city.

By Associated Press.

Galveston, December 9.—The German steamship Weser from Bremen, with 250 immigrants, was expected to-day, and the customs officers were waiting for her, but at nightfall there was no sign of the ship.

Congressman Dibbitree was to-day unanimously elected an honorary member of the Galveston press club.

A. A. Talmage, general transportation manager of the Gould Southwestern railway system, arrived in Galveston to-night. He is making a tour of inspection.

HILLSBORO.

A Thriving Town Viewed with a Critic's Eye—Onward and Upward.

Special to the Gazette.

Hillsboro, December 9.—Your correspondent has just returned from a general view of the town, on a slight elevation about a half a mile south of town. There is now in course of erection a fine two-story college, which when completed will be a first-class boarding college for the education of both sexes. All of its appointments are strictly first-class, and it will probably be open by January 1, 1884. It will be under the management of Professors Wise and Petit, with a full corps of able assistants in every branch of education. There are also numberless new, neat and tasteful dwellings being erected in every quarter of our city.

Being situated as our little city is, in the very heart of a grain and cotton-growing belt, we will not let the improvements close, for we have the country to back us, and a trade that will always be good. Our city is located in a high, dry, healthy section of the county, and almost the center. A better class of people cannot be found than there is in Hillsboro. Schools and churches are here, and both are well attended. The people are beautifying their homes, and everything speaks of progress onward and upward. We invite strangers hunting homes to call.

TAYLOR.

Dwelling Burned—A Double Failure—The Business Outlook.

Special to the Gazette.

Taylor, Tex., December 9.—The dwelling house and all its contents belonging to Mr. T. V. Coupland, living on Brushy about nine miles from this place, was entirely consumed by fire last night. Estimated loss $2,500. Mr. Coupland is a prominent stockman of this section.

The firm of B. Melaska & Son, of Austin, failed yesterday. The firm had a branch house in this city, and was also doing business under the firm name of J. Melaska & Co. Both firms are reported to have failed for about $70,000, and the same report gives their assets at about the same amount.

Taylor is still improving. Business men report the crop fair; money matters are easy and collections good. Weather cool and pleasant.

Death at a Seance.

St. Louis, December 9.—Quite a startling event occurred in the Mercantile library hall to-night. James F. Gein and wife of New York were giving a spiritualistic performance, towards the close of which Gein stepped into an ante-room in the rear of the stage to rest after an exhausting cabinet exhibition, and when followed in two or three minutes after by his wife he was found dead on the floor. An examination by a physician present showed that death was caused by heart disease. Gein was a Mason in good standing, and belonged to the Pacific lodge of New York. His remains will be taken to Chicago for burial after the inquest to-morrow.

BOSQUE COUNTY.

The White-Woody Case—A Grand Church Festival—Personal.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

Morgan, December 8.—At the August term of the district court of Bosque county, the grand jury found a bill of indictment against John L. White and A. N. Woody for the murder of Boss Cavanaugh, sometime in the spring. They were arraigned for trial at the same term of the court and announced ready for trial, but on motion of the county attorney for change of venue, supported by the affidavits of three individuals, the change was granted in the case of J. L. White to Cleburne, but overruled in the case of Woody. White's case is set for the 10th inst. in the district court of Johnson county, and will be watched with interest by the people of Bosque county, whose high standing for intelligence and honesty has been reproached. Mr. White is on the alert all the while for evil-doers, and only this class need fear him. As an officer he is discreet, but unflinchingly determined in all things that are required upon him in his official position. When his eyes fell upon Cavanaugh he spotted him as the man wanted in Houston county for the murder of one James Thomas, which surmise has proven to be correct. Thomas and Cavanaugh became involved in a dispute about some strayed cattle, and Thomas turned and walked leisurely away as if to avoid any further difficulty, when Cavanaugh shot him in the back with a Winchester rifle. Thus another good man was the victim of a most treacherous butchery.

A generous public can but award to such men as Jno. L. White the protection of property and life against these miscreants, and know that no unfair means would be resorted to by him to bring them before the tribunals of the country.

The supper given by the "Ladies' Aid society" at the Baptist church, Wednesday night, was an unusually successful affair. By 8 o'clock the house was crowded, although it was raining very hard on the outside. There were four tables each of which was supplied with choice eatables which, judging from their taste and appearance, must surely have been prepared by skillful hands. After supper, Mr. W. H. Lockett called the attention of the gentlemen to an elegant cake, which he said was to be presented to the most popular young lady present. He stated that it would be voted off, and the young lady receiving the largest number of votes would be declared the most popular. The price of votes was ten cents each. After an exciting contest of an hour or more, the polls closed, and Miss Anna Hawkins of this place was victor by a majority of four votes, she receiving 151 votes, against 147 for Miss L. Pearce of Powerdale.

At one end of the house was a post-office, the postmistresses being Misses Bea Cooper and Mary Cearnels. There was a letter in the office for every young gentleman in the house, and it cost them ten cents to obtain them, although they were not registers. Some of the boys would have the postmistress to read their letters aloud, and for this she would make an additional charge of one cent per line, making some of the letters cost about one dollar, as they were extra long letters. The office was no doubt a paying institution.

As a sufficient supply of provisions were remaining after the supper, the audience were notified that they could get dinner at noon the next day for twenty-five cents. Accordingly, a large crowd of hungry people cheerfully paid in their quarters to partake of the good dinner, of which there was a plenty for all. We are told that the proceeds of the supper and dinner were $140, and the money will be donated by the Ladies' Aid society for the improvement of the Baptist church.

Postmaster J. W. Simms was in Sherman and Dallas this week.

Mr. C. G. Burke has been spending several days with his family at this place.

YOUNG COUNTY.

The Cattle Stealing Cases—Several Parties Held to Bail.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

Graham, December 7.—On Monday, the 3rd of December, George Herndon, W. A. Byrd and Monroe Chambers were arraigned before Robt. Allcorn on a charge of the theft of thirty-two head of cattle, the property of Wilkins Brothers. The testimony which was concluded on the 5th was very conclusive and the court on the next day rendered its judgment requiring the defendants to enter into bond in the sum of $2,500 each. Some very startling developments were brought out with reference to crookedness in the cow business in this section. The parties seemed to have understood the business of stealing and are doubtless well organized, but this will certainly throw a damper on thieving for a while, if not for all time with the parties charged. Others will doubtless be implicated. A. A. Nicholson and John Lovel of Fort Worth waived examination, and Nicholson's bond was fixed at $8,000 and Lovel's at $1,250, which they say they can give as soon as they get word to their friends at Fort Worth. John Tolbert, who was arrested in Jack county on the same charge, waived examination, and gave bond in the sum of $1,000. Henderson, Byrd and Chambers have given bond. This is nearer a wholesale steal than any ever had in this section.

Reduction of Wages.

Lancaster, Pa., December 9.—The Pennsylvania Iron company has notified the puddlers of 10 per cent. reduction, to take effect on the 15th inst. It is probable the works will shut down if the workmen refuse to accept the reduction.

The Salvation Army.

New Haven, December 9.—The salvation army defied the municipal authorities to-night and paraded as usual. It is expected all will be arrested to-morrow.

The Next Meeting.

Columbus, Ohio, December 9.—The next meeting of the Ohio College association will be held at Columbus on December 26th and 27th.
