

ST MARY'S BEACON

LEONARDTOWN, MD.

THURSDAY MORNING, September 13th, 1877.

PRIMARY MEETINGS AND COUNTY CONVENTION.

The State Central Committee of the Democratic party having fixed upon the 27th of September, instant, as the day and Baltimore city as the place for the holding of a State Convention to nominate a candidate for Comptroller, the authorities of the party here, it will be seen from a call published in another column, have made provision for the representation of the county in the proposed Convention and to this end have requested the democratic and Conservative voters to meet at the usual places of voting in their several election districts on Saturday, the 22nd of September, instant, to elect ten delegates to a County Convention to meet in Leonardtown on Tuesday, the 25th of September at 11 o'clock, a. m., the said delegates to be voted for by ballot and the polls to be opened at 10 a. m. and closed at 5 o'clock, p. m.— At the same time and place, the democratic voters are requested to attend and vote by ballot for such persons as they may desire to be candidates of the party at the ensuing election for the following county ticket:

One candidate for the State Senate. Two candidates for the House of Delegates. Five candidates for County Commissioners. One candidate for Sheriff. One candidate for County Surveyor.

The foregoing call is made in pursuance of resolutions adopted at a Convention of the Democratic party held in Leonardtown on the 7th of August last. The voters in the several election districts at the opening of the polls will appoint three judges to hold said election and one clerk to keep the poll books and the said judges shall return to the Chairman of the Central Committee for the county a certificate of said election within three days after the closing of the same.

Under another article in said resolutions, above referred to, but five districts in the county shall be entitled to have candidates for the office of County Commissioner. In pursuance of this article, the Central Committee held a meeting to determine by lot which districts should be thus entitled, which resulted in favor of the following:—First, Second, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth, therefore the candidates from any of these districts receiving the highest number of votes in said districts will be declared the nominees of the party.

Messrs. Editors:—Quite a nice time we had last Thursday evening despite the unpropitious weather. Like pleasant thoughts that cheer the mind a minute come, and go again. So fits the memory of the occurrences of that evening. Let us have a little talk about the entertainment. In the first place, I think General Fitz Lee's address quite a treat. The tribute to the hero's memory was worthy of both, and I am sure it found a responsive echo in every heart that was present, as also the eulogies on dear old Stonewall and gallant Stuart, while the names of Ashby, Pelham, Johnson and Rhodes filled all with emotion.

General Lee is a pleasant speaker. He handled his subject well, for his heart was in it. The introduction of the Conquered Banner was most appropriate. That poem, I think, is one of the most exquisite that Father Ryan's poetic pen has ever given us. "Somebody's Darling" like some sweet blossom, helped to make up a bouquet of beautiful thoughts. I must admit I did not think the concluding quotation altogether appropriate, unless he meant to convey the idea that though the monument, etc., might pass away, yet would the memory of the dead still find a home in Southern hearts till they too passed away, and so continue till that Day when all things shall pass away. The fact of our doom and that of the things of earth should not deter us from paying every possible tribute of respect to our dead as well as to the living. Perhaps he meant all ill-feeling would pass away.

Leonardtown may well glory in her right to the title of "Little South Carolina." The Virginians present seemed proud of their State, of their orator and their heroes, for Virginia, though clad in the drapery of woe, though she be-wailed her martyred sons, was still the proud mother of States and statesmen and generals whose names are consecrated to fame.

The Hall was beautifully and tastefully decorated and the chain that linked Maryland and Virginia had for its lock the portrait of our noble chieftain—Leo. The principal feature of the evening was the presentation of the Peri at Heaven's Gate. The scenes were enchanting—the angels lovely enough to make one wish he were among the number. The Peri understood her role perfectly, and there were tears in her voice as she said, "Oh! I stand dissolute! To think my recent case should have had this glorious place."

The acting of the guardian angel of the "Beautiful Gate" was perfect, but she should have spoken more softly the beautiful words of encouragement. I scarcely know which scene was the most exquisite, but the most touching, most life-like was the maiden's pleading with her dying lover. Oh! the depth, the unselfishness of woman's love, and yet how often is it unappreciated. How beautifully the Poet portrays the wealth, the priceless worth of a repentant tear. Surely is a tear all powerful—oft times it makes an impression even on stony hearts. A mother's tear saved Rome. But let us go back to the entertainment. Music, too, lent her voice to add to everyone's enjoyment. The most attractive songs and best rendered were a quartette, "Over the Sea," sang by two ladies and two gentlemen. The sweet voices of the former blended harmoniously with the deeper ones of the latter. "Away down on the Swanee River," also "My Sunny Southern Home." To judge from the encores, the vocalists contributed not a little to the enjoyment, and if I mistake not many young hearts throbbled with pleasure as their willing feet sped through the merry dance which immediately followed the tableaux, and the refreshments were most palatable even though the mind and heart had been feasting all the evening.

I was very glad to see so many, yet I am sure had the weather permitted a goodly number would have been added to the throng. I hope they realized a nice sum, for the cause is holy. Another link is now added to the golden chain that binds Maryland to Virginia, and like sisters they stand with clasped hands and look with pitying eye on the monument their love erected over their consecrated dead.

It was a delightful evening—there was nothing to mar our pleasure and the sight that was given to the memory of the dead was quickly followed by the smile of hope, the silent prayer that their cares were over. It has been some time since I enjoyed myself so well and I should not object if that evening could be repeated.

Our noble braves sleep peacefully in their green graves and the smile of morning and the tears of evening fall upon them while the tender moon beams seem angel eyes guarding the sacred dead. No monumental tablets tell their name or deeds, but on Southern hearts the record is inscribed for aye. Each lowly mound is a Mecca to which in spirit we often go.

I must stop here. There are some subjects on which I cannot write or speak without having the depths of my nature stirred within me, and this is one of them. I may send you other letters. It is my intention only to skim along the sea of circumstances, etc., but if I occasionally dive and seek for a treasure, I trust it may not prove any less acceptable, though it should turn out to be only sea weed. With pleasant thoughts of Thursday night, I bid you good-bye.

UNBROKEN.

COMMUNICATED.

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 8th, 1877.

Messrs. Editors:—The attempt made by your correspondent L. J. Sutton to criticize my article of the 23rd ult., and to impugn my motives, rather amused me than otherwise. Though I do not set myself up as a critic to find fault with a writer whose wit and genius must, I am sure, be admitted, still I must in candor say, I would advise him to begin at home to criticize before seeking a task elsewhere.

I wish in this place to be explicitly understood that it is far remote from my design to engage in a controversy, in which the ambition of one party is in collision with the ambition of another. But for the stirring interrogatory, "Don't his rather feeble dart at Republican leaders for holding their party together for the sake of the leaves," (office I mean) &c., I would have passed Mr. Sutton's remarks unheeded. Now, Mr. Sutton, I wish to inform you that I do not blame men for holding their party together, provided they do so in an honorable, open-handed way. So go ahead, sir, and build your faction up, for truly, as a party, it stands in need of some effort being made in its behalf. At the present time it affords an interesting spectacle for the contemplation of reflecting men, division and distrust appear in nearly every secret corner of the country where this party has the ascendancy, it is crumbling in pieces, and the new materials of which it is composed appear too incongruous ever again to unite. The parties formed by these divisions, attack each other with the most bitter invectives, and reciprocate very freely the charges of bribery, corruption, ambition, and fraud. These divisions however in the Republican party are reasonably looked for by men of discernment. It was impossible for the discordant materials of which this party was composed to continue to adhere to each other. The first moment they felt secure in their ill-gotten power was the time for disunion, for then the spoils of victory were to be divided: all could not share alike and but few be satisfied. Hence bickering and contention, enmity and open war. Instead of halting each other as brother patriots, it is now their chief employment to show which is the greater rogue, and really in this undertaking both sides succeed to admiration. Perhaps you may think I dwell rather long on this subject, I only wish to give a per picture of the situation, and if necessary show that, not only Democrats think poorly of your Republican leaders, but that many of your political brethren have the same opinion. In regard to "that other little grocery bill" before I proceed any further I deem it necessary to say a few words, not exactly in connection with it. In the first place, Mr. Sutton, you know that I have not the pleasure of your acquaintance, moreover, I am not aware that I have ever had the pleasure of seeing you, furthermore I have never heard a word for or against you, nor could I have informed any one previous to the 7th inst., that you were a candidate for the Clerkship had been asked, consequently, I could not possibly have had any personal motive in speaking of "that other little grocery bill," as you are pleased to term it. I regret that I was not more explicit in my last communication, when speaking of our local offices. Instead of saying, "That groceries would be cheaper by having a political change in some of our local offices," I should have said one, Doubtless you will be surprised, Mr. Sutton, when I inform you that the office in question is the identical one to which you aspire. Now, don't you think it looks a little strange, to certain prominent gentlemen in Leonardtown, to whom I related this story weeks and even months ago, (and by-the-by our colored friends are at hand who gave me the information,) that you, of all others, should be the only one to come out and attempt to ridicule my communication? To be candid now, as your "cousin Phoenix" would say, "for a man in the woods, does it not seem kind of queer like?—And so you think the grocery store, 'too thin.' I am glad, sir, you view it in the proper light. In this section it was considered too thin for even the colored people to swallow. As you were so kind as to tender me your address, I would suggest something better for the Republican state in the future than a cheap grocery store. Would not cheap labor be better? In conclusion, Mr. Sutton, I return you many thanks for your kind sympathy, the sincerity of which I duly appreciate, inasmuch as we are total strangers, I can only add, "that if we are forced to have" a Republican Clerk, you have my best wishes that you may be selected. I am in 79 than you were in '73, particularly, as I am anxious to see a decline in the price of groceries.

Yours respectfully,

GILES F. DYER.

PRUDENCE.

There is no doubt that prudence pays, especially in matters of health; as in business it saves money so in disease it saves strength and time by the prompt application of preventive measures, which, in removing the cause, necessarily carry away the effect with it. There is a numerous class of diseases that can only be appropriately and effectually treated by external applications and for such diseases Keller's Roman Liment is pre-eminently the best remedy, as its wonderful penetrating, anodyne, cleansing and healing properties recommend it to professional and popular confidence.

BALLOON'S MOSTLY MAGAZINE FOR OCTOBER. The October number of Balloon's Magazine, a delightful companion for leisure moments, is before you, and an examination of its pages shows that it is just what the public need, and should have, as it does not contain an article that is not of interest to all classes. There is nothing in this number. Earl Marble furnishes an illustrated poem, the author of "The Slave's Adversity" gives a spirited sketch called "An Unexpected Attack," the scene of which is laid in Zululand; Miss Mary Helen Bowley contributes a graceful little poem, and there are quite a number of other stories and adventures, which go to make the magazine the best of its kind in the country. The following list of contents will tell the whole story:—Durham Cathedral; The Duchess of Marlborough; An Unexpected Attack; Trug; Mister-Times Victor St. Bride; Florette; Lady Meredith's Companions; Zerkiah's Sweetheart; With Death Through the Straits of Magellan; Fair Distance; Maria Theresa; the Bonapartes; L. Amie; est I Amour sans les Ailes; A Pair of Rogues; Her and He; Lay on Pluston Rogues; The History of Jack; The History of the World in the Sky; The Employment; Ota Yorcu; Prince's Story-Teller—The Child of the North; Jack of Trade; Living for the King; Fuzzle Figs; The Housekeeper; Curious Matters; Things Past and Otherwise; Our Picture Gallery—Historical Illustrations; The Story of Thomas & Talbot, 22 Hawley Street, Boston, at $1.50 per copy, postpaid, and for sale at all the periodical depots in the country.

Dis-eases, like rivers, have small beginnings, the rushing torrent cannot be easily diverted from its course, nor can the neglected disease from its dangerous work. But taken in time, Disease, which is but a prevented or interrupted function, may be averted by the use of Keller's Vegetable Life Drops, a remedy combining every quality required for the successful treatment of Liver and Blood Disease, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Female Complaints, etc.

DENTISTRY.

HAVING furnished myself with a Liquefied Gold apparatus, containing 100 gallons, by which I am able to extract teeth without pain will be in Leonardtown the 13th inst., to remain one week. Rooms at Moore's Hotel. Sept. 13, 1877—af.

FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

Messrs. Editors:—You will please announce IGNAZIUS E. MATTINGLEY as a candidate for a seat in the next General Assembly of Maryland. Mr. Mattingley has once served his country in that body with credit to himself and with fidelity to his constituents, and his re-election would meet with the approval of the Democratic party of the county. His candidacy will be subject to the action of the Democratic Primary, Sept. 13, 1877. First District.

ROCK HILL COLLEGE, MARYLAND.

The Student may pursue either of three courses, viz: the Engineering, the Classical or the Commercial course. Studies will be resumed on the FIRST MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER. $250 Board and Tuition. $250 Day Students. BROTHUR BETTELLIN, President. Aug. 13, 1877—2m.

FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

Grateful for the liberal support I received in 1875, and at the solicitation of many friends, I again announce myself a candidate as Delegate to our next Legislature, subject to the decision of the Democratic party. Sept. 13, 1877. JOS. H. KEY.

FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

Messrs. Editors:—You will please announce CHARLOTTE HALL and CHARLES D. OWENS as candidates for the next Legislature, and say that they will be supported by the workingmen of Leonardtown. Sept. 13, 1877.

FOR THE SENATE.

We, the undersigned workingmen endorse Mr. R. C. COMBS as a fitting representative of our interests for a seat in the Senate of Maryland. F. D. ADAMS, JAMES B. OWENS, Sept. 13, 1877.

Crampton's Imperial Soap is the Best. Crampton's Imperial Soap is the Best. Crampton's Imperial Soap is the Best. Crampton's Imperial Soap is the Best. Crampton's Imperial Soap is the Best.

This Soap is manufactured from pure materials and as it contains a large percentage of Vegetable Oil, is warranted fully equal to the best imported Cattle Soap, and at the same time contains all the washing and cleansing properties of the celebrated German Laundry Soap.

It is therefore recommended in the Laundry, Kitchen and Bath Room, and for general household purposes, also for Painters, Plasterers, King-binders, & Machinists, as it will remove spots of ink, Grease, Tar, Oil, Paint, etc., from the hands of the washer and cleanser.

The Huntington (Pa.) Monitor of April 5th, 1877, pronounces this Soap the best in the market, as follows:—"Reader, we don't want you to suppose that this is an advertisement, and pass it over unheeded. Read it. We want to direct your attention to the advertisement of 'Crampton's Imperial Soap.' Having used it in our office for the past year, we can recommend it as the best quality of soap in use. It is a rare thing to get a Soap that will thoroughly cleanse printing ink from the hands, as well as from lines, but Crampton's Imperial Soap will do it, and we know whereof we speak. It is especially adapted for printers, painters, enginers and machinists, as it will remove grease of all descriptions from the hands as well as clothes, with little labor. For general household purposes it cannot be excelled."
