PRISCILLA spinning, long ago, sighs as she thinks how soon her linen
Will lose its glossy luster, when the wash it once or twice has been in.
She does not know that in the soap the evil lies that makes her suffer.
Its great excess of alkali, which cuts the fiber, makes it rougher.

Our modern maidens need not sigh since IVORY SOAP has been invented,
Containing no free alkali—by which the ruin is prevented.
For linen washed with IVORY SOAP in snowy beauty'll ne'er diminish,
But always, while it lasts, preserve its pristine gloss and lustrous finish.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Do you want to go to New York for 20 cents, and make a round of the different amusements indulged in by the inhabitants of the great metropolis? We have just returned from such a trip, and must admit that we were charmed. We did not go in person, but our minds were carried there by reading the beautifully illustrated article on the "Amusements of New York City," in the February number of Demorest's Monthly Magazine, which has just arrived. In glancing through this world famed Family Magazine we can account for its immense circulation. The February number contains a water-color, "To the Rescue!" beautifully executed, and over a hundred illustrations of a high order. While excellent stories are introduced to amuse, the practical articles are of great merit; and just at this season the "Etiquette of Balls and Dancing-Parties" will be found of service. "Twenty-One Years of Club Life," by "Jenny June" gives us an idea of the success of "Sorosis;" and who knows better of that success than the author of the article, who was president of that club for so many years? The new craze in embroidery, "Paris Tinting," is fully explained and illustrated; in fact, a corner is found to interest every member of the family. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly For February.

The number and names of the new States shortly to be admitted into the Union is the subject of every one's thoughts, and Ausburn Towner on "Our Would-be States," in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for February gives us much valuable information about Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Washington, Arizona and New Mexico. "The Prima Donna, by Sutherland Edwards, is filled with anecdotes, and portraits are given of the most celebrated. James S Whitman contributes a valuable article on "The Chilian Capital," and "Animals that are Vanishing" will be read with much interest. "A Decade in Corean History" is a page of History of a country fomerly but no longer, the Hermit Nation. "Quinine and Romances and "How Electricity is Measured" afford study for the lover of science. The stories of the number are excellent, and the illustrations better than usual.

Eternal Leap Year.

(New York Telegram.)

In the Isthmus of Darien either sex can do the courting, while in the Ukraine the girl generally attends to it. When she falls in love with a man she goes to his house and declares her passion. If he declines to accept her, she remains there and his case becomes rather distressing. To turn her out would provoke her kindred to avenge the insult. The young fellow has no resort left him but to run away from home until the damsel is otherwise disposed of.

BEVERLEY SPARKS.

BEVERLEY, Jan. 18.—Mr. J. M. Davis has moved to the residence vacated by Dr. J. L. Dulin.

Born, to the wife of Mr. W. K. Perry a fifteen pound boy, on the 21 inst.

A sale of the partnership property of Robt. P. Owsley and the late W. N. Childress, will take place on the 22d of this month.

Mr. Dan't Haubery and wife united with Locust Grove church last Sunday, by letter. Mr. Haubery and lady were formerly members of South Union Church.

Squire Dulin says he has a watch which he has killed ten rabbits with, also certifies that it has been run over by a four horse wagon fifteen times. He doesn't lie by the watch, but hangs it up at night.

Plant bed burning is about over with. Farmers say they will not listen to abstentious speakers.

Mr. Cave Johnson's services have been procured to collect the additional school tax which has been levied on the white tax payers of this school district. Mr. J. says he will not fight to collect them if he can get them otherwise.

Your correspondent reports with pleasure, that Mrs. Thos. Adams, is convalescent.

Mr. A. H. Watkins' children have recovered from a spell of croup.

After the school taxes above mentioned have been collected, a large school room will be built here to be known as Beverly Academy, thereby giving this community a public school which it ought to have had twenty years ago. BERGUNDY.

Names of Newspapers.

It is estimated that there are 35,000 newspapers and other periodicals published in the world. The United States can boast of possessing nearly two thirds of the entire number, or to be exact, a total of 13,494, while the Dominion of Canada has 611 and Newfoundland 9. The names by which these thousands of papers are known are by no means as numerous as one might suppose; still there is a sufficient variety to repay the curious searcher for information. The name most common is News, by which, with or without a prefix, just 550 papers are called. Thirty-nine of these are in New York, 44 in Illinois, 38 in Ohio, 34 in Pennsylvania, and the others are scattered through the remaining States and Territories. There are 489 called the Times, 415 Journals, 406 Democrats, 298 Gazettes, 273 Republicans, 198 Enterprises, 180 Independents, 183 Tribunes, 179 Records, 177 Couriers, 173 Sentinels, 149 Presses, 137 Registers, 123 Chronicles 126 Reporters, 119 Stars, 117 Reviews, 108 Suns, 107 Leaders, 99 Advertisers, 98 Arguses, 90 Standards, 89 Free Presses, 83 Posts, 74 Bulletins, 73 Expresses, 71 Banners, 70 Observers, 63 Unions, 61 Citizens, 59 Messengers, 54 Eagles, 53 Dispatches, 49 Advances, 49 Indexes, 46 Transcripts, 44 Mirrors, 39 Pioneers, 37 Commercials, 37 Globes, 35 Echoes, 27 Watchmen, 27 Mercuries, 20 Vindicators and but one Kentuckian—Printer's Ink.

A number of exchanges have mentioned the name of Senator Cassius M Clay, Jr, of Bourbon county, in connection with the coming race for Governor. The name of Senator John D. Harris, of Madison county, is bobbing up conspicuously in this connection. It occurs to the Richmond Climax "that a certain well-known lady, now dear to both counties, will presently occupy a position similiar to that of the heroine in the great opera of Aida. This heroine was in love with the General of the Egyptian army and at the same time was the daughter of the King of Ethiopia. A war broke out between Ethiopia and Egypt and the heroine could not decide, for the life of her, which she desired to triumph, the General or the King. We suggest to the exchanges favoring Mr. Clay, that he probably does not want the earth."

Mrs. Dr. J. G. Chinn, the oldest person in this section of the State, died at the home of her husband, on East Maxwell Street, this city, Tuesday evening, January 1st, 1889, at 6:30 o'clock, aged 102 years. Thirteen years ago, January 1st, she was married to Dr. Chinn in the Main Street Christian Church, this city, in the presence of the largest audience we have ever seen assembled in that building. She was then 89 years old and as bright and joyous as a girl of sixteen. Her funeral took place in the same building Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, in the presence of an audience almost as large as that of her wedding occasion. She was a woman liberal in charities, and generous in all the highest impulses of both mind and heart.—Lexington Observer.

Profitable Work for Women.

More than one woman in New Orleans is said to have "gone to Europe on her camellia bush," for a number of up-town ladies are known to cultivate and sell camellias at a very good profit. But raising artichokes is still more lucrative and far less trouble than growing camellias, and any woman with a strip of ground can in a short time earn a snug little sum thereby. Artichokes require as little attention as potatoes and grow as easily, and may be sold at $1 a dozen.—New Orleans Picayune.

GIRLS WITH FORTUNES.

Marriageable American Maidens Who Are Worth $37,000,000.

Miss Drexel and her two sisters are said to be the three richest unmarried ladies in the United States. This statement is open to dispute. These three ladies were left a fortune of $13,000,000 by their father, the late F. A. Drexel. It was so invested as to bring each an income approximating $300,000 yearly. Miss Mary Garrett, daughter of the late railroad King, was left $7,000,000. Miss Garrett is a money-maker, and accumulated a fortune since her father's death, so that the combined fortunes of the Misses Drexel can not equal hers. It is undoubtedly true that the Misses Drexel are the three wealthiest unmarried sisters in the United States, but it is likely that to Miss Mary Garrett, daughter of the founder of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and not to either of the Misses Drexel, belongs distinction of being the richest unmarried lady in America. Miss Garrett is probably a better business woman than either of them. She has the commercial acumen of her father, and her penetration and discrimination in business affairs are much remarked among business men of Baltimore, where her movements in commercial affairs are watched with much interest. With all this vast wealth at her disposal, Miss Garrett's chief characteristic is her modesty, which hardly seems compatible with the hurly-burly which the management of $20,000,000 would entail. It is still understood that Miss Garrett, and no other, manages her large fortune. But her brother Robert been appointed a director the Baltimore & Ohio road might still be controlled by the Garrett estate.

It is said that Miss Garrett, in her efforts to turn an honest penny, religiously avoids the speculative exchanges, having a morbid fear that if she once gets into this whirlpool Gould might drag her down. If Gould ever gets the advantage of Mary Garrett it will have to be in a deal in Government bonds or gilt-edged real estate.

After the Misses Drexel and Miss Garrett comes Miss Katie Gould, a rich unmarried woman. Miss Gould is much younger than either of the others. Unlike them, she is not yet rich in her own right, but prospectively she ranks fourth among the wealthy unmarried women of the United States. If her father meets with no reverses—and he seems able to take care of himself—her individual fortune ought not to be far from $20,000,000.

A Philadelphia banker recently said to the writer that the combined fortunes of the three Misses Drexel, counting the accumulations since their father's death, was not far short of $15,000,000. Miss Garrett's fortune must now be $22,000,000, and if Miss Gould can muster $20,000,000, we have $57,000,000 to be divided between five unmarried American ladies, either one of them worth any man's love although she did not have a dollar instead of many millions.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

FREAKS OF FORTUNE.

An English Curiosity Who Plays a Street Organ in London.

There is a saying peculiar to American, that in this country the first generation make the money, the second spends it, and the third begins over again. This is not so true as it was some years ago, when fortunes were made in a day almost, and it does not apply to fortunes gained in European countries. Colossal estates and princely real rolls are there handed down for centuries, and grow larger instead of smaller with each generation. Yet there are European instances of the vicissitudes of fortune hardly less startling than occur in this country.

Italian Counts as peanut venders, and German Barons as waiters, been a standing jest among humorists, but there is a reality to bear on the humor. In Great Britain, likewise, dead fortunes have been squandered, and the number of titled personages engaged in menial occupations is surprising. The papers recently contained an account of the discovery of an heir to a noble estate in the persons of a Melbourne cousting until few weeks ago a hotel porter in St. Louis was recognized as an English Earl. The most startling case, however, rests on the authority of an English paper. There is a young man in London who was for two years a informal and contortionist in the Surrey Theatre. He now plays a street organ, with a medal on his breast bearing this astonishing inscription:

Query distinct? I am Viscount Bures, the eldest son of Earl Poulett.—See "Burke's Peerage."

This may be said to be a downfall indeed.—Golden Days.

Why Didn't She Say So.

"O, Mr. Bixby, wait a moment, you"—

"O, I can't go; they to wait. It's time for my car now, and"—

"But, I only"—

"I shan't have time to go gallivanting around doing errands for you today, Mrs. Bixby. Hanged if I"—

"But James, I simply wanted"—

"O, I know—you simply wanted a spool of No. 36 thread, and a card of pearl buttons and a basket of grapes, and a yard of elastic, and forty-nine other things; and"—

"James, I just wanted"—

"I tell you it's time for my car, and I shall be too busy to get any thing today, for"—

"Wait, James I"—

"Well, for heaven's sake say it quick, then, and let me go. I don't see why"—

"I simply wanted to tell you that your collar was unbuttoned and that your necktie had slipped half-way around."

"Well, why in thunder didn't you say so. Instead of keeping me here all day and—there goes my car!"—Time.
