—Quite a sensation was created in St. Louis a few days ago by the publication of ex-Supervisor McDonald's so-called confession, wherein he tries to make out that Grant was fully aware of the frauds practiced in the revenue service during his administration, by the "whisky ring," and that the proceeds of the fraud or part of them, formed a fund to aid Grant's third term aspirations.

—Thus touchingly writes the editor of the Mark Lane Express: "The consumers of agricultural produce may be comforted by the good crop promised and to a considerable extent gathered in the United States; but this only adds to the depression of the British farmer. In the households of our homesteads, which look so snug and comfortable, there is deep sadness to-day, and many a brave heart is about broken.

—At the recent meeting of the New Jersey State Dental Society the use of anæsthetics was discussed, and, in view of the many fatal results attending the practice, it was urged that all dentists should discourage their use, except in necessary cases. —Another and a terrible warning to those who are careless in the use of oil will be found in the shocking death of a Mrs. Mary Kirkland, near Cochran's Mills, this county, on Monday evening last. She attempted to pour oil from a large can into a burning lamp when the fluid ignited, exploding, and scattering the burning oil all over her person and the room she was in. A lady who attempted to extinguish the burning clothing, was badly scorched, but managed to escape, while Mrs. Kirkland was burned to a crisp, and the house was entirely destroyed.—Kittanning Times.

'A Drop of Joy in Every Word.'

FLEMINGTON, Hunterdon Co., N. J.
Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write.

Yours truly, JAMES O. BELLIS.

—Some years ago, says the Ohio Farmer, D. M. Ferry grew 600 bushels of onions on an acre, for which he was offered $2.50 per bushel, making the snug sum of $1,500 from an acre. A farmer who heard of it, and knew no more about onion-growing than he did of Sanskrit, planted five acres of common corn land in onions, the next season, the seed costing him $100. He didn't grow a bushel of marketable onions. Had he studied up the subject and planted the first season an eighth or fourth of one acre, he might now be a successful onion grower, whereas he indulges in profanity at the smell of an onion.

—On Wednesday night of last week, Mr. Neal McCool, an old citizen of this town, complained of sleeplessness, and about one o'clock, a. m., he arose from his bed and lit his pipe. He then went down on his back porch and smoked, was heard to cough several times, and when the servent girl went out early in the morning, she found him lying dead on the porch. His death is supposed to have been caused by the bursting of a blood vessel. He was about seventy years of age, was a native of Ireland and came to this county about forty years ago. His wife is an invalid and has been confined to her bed for many years.

—KILLED BY A BULL.—Mr. Robert McKinney, of Adams township, was attacked by a ferocious Alderney bull, in his field, last Tuesday evening week, and so injured that he died short after being carried to his house. He had gone to the field after the cows and his not returning as soon as was expected alarmed his wife, who went out and was astonished to see the bull preventing those of the cows from coming to the house that wanted to come. Surmising that something had happened, she called to their son, who arming himself with a pitch-fork, went into the field and was driven out of it by the bull. The son then called a neighbor, and the two of them found Mr. McKinney lying behind a knoll in the field, out of sight from the house, and carried him in. Mr. McKinney was about 70 years of age. The bull was killed the next day.

Teachers Examinations.

BALDWIN, PA., Aug. 7, 1880.

EDITORS CITIZEN.—The late examinations resulted as follows:

Whole No. examined	479
No. of males	239
No. of females	240
No. rejected	125
No. of provisional certificates	347
No. of professional certificates	6

Directors can readily see from the above statement, that the number of teachers is largely in excess of the number of schools, and for that reason alone there will be no necessity for asking for a special examination for any one. The number of applicants was nearly two hundred less than last year, while the number licensed is nearly one hundred less, and the number rejected less than one-half as many. By keeping the standard up to a fair degree of excellence and from time to time raising it a point or two as circumstances will permit, the number of teachers can be made to correspond more nearly with the number of schools, the better and progressive ones will be retained, while the poorer and non-progressive ones will be sifted out. The effect of this policy may not be immediately visible, but it will tell in the end. Much might be here said in the way of suggestions to directors and teachers, but I forbear for the present.

Very Respectfully,
D F. MCKEE,
County Supt.

—In the case of the outrage committed by the attaches of Boyd & Peter's circus and menagerie, upon a young girl, some weeks ago, retribution came swift upon the perpetrators. Hardly had the news of the wholesale arrest at Leechburg on the entire gang, gone abroad when a representative of the Courier Printing Company, of Buffalo, appeared in this county, and levied upon all the effects of the show, and last Monday Sheriff Henry sold the same. Contrary to expectations the paraphernalia was sold to different individuals, and not to representatives of other shows, and while some things sold for all they were worth, others sold very cheaply. Maj. Beale, of Leechburg, purchased the sacred bull, and wagon, for one hundred and fifty dollars. Harry Wray paid twenty dollars for a bird of paradise, and ex-Sheriff Cook invested nineteen dollars and fifty cents in a pair of miniature bears. G. W. Stivenson purchased two mules for two hundred and seven dollars, and was offered one hundred and forty dollars for his bargain within an hour, but refused. Alex. Montgomery purchased two horses; K. H. Stivenson, one; Dr. Jessop one; A. J. Boggs two horses, two setts of harness, and wagon for one hundred and forty dollars; Sheriff Williams and others from town bought different materials. The sales footed up to about three thousand five hundred dollars. An extraordinarily large crowd was in attendance.—Kittanning Times.

—Dr. Tanner's forty days in the desert ended last Saturday at noon, and he cut a watermelon from Georgia, as good certainly as any that ever grew in the land of Goshen. He is therefore, not only alive at the end of his protracted period of abstinence, but he has confidence that his stomach is good for even greater trials. And there is, we believe, no difference of opinion that it is a greater trial to a man's digestive apparatus to begin again after such a cessation of operations than to endure the privation. He is, therefore, not yet altogether out of the woods. The saying of a man who has fallen from a housetop to the effect that it was not the falling that hurt him, but the stopping so suddenly when he had reached the ground, has been recorded, and the case of a man who has fasted for forty days is much like that. The fasting has done him no good, but it is the stopping that is likely to do him most harm. But this dangerous part of his experiment is the one that will be of most practical interests to the people as well as to physicians. How people nearly dead from inanition may be most safely and successfully fed is a point yet much to doubt; and yet the cases where men through shipwreck or mine accidents or other instances of enforced separation from food need to be cared for are numerous enough to make this point one of very great interest. Dr. Tanner's experience will throw a novel light upon it. He first ate a peach, then drank a pint of milk and extracted from several pieces of watermelon all the juice but did not swallow the pulp. The physicians would have given the milk, but in a smaller quantity, and they would not have permitted the raw vegetable fibre of the peach. But a fact is worth many opinions, and if the things taken do not hurt Tanner that will sufficiently prove that they were the right things—for him.

Zell's Condensed Cyclopædia.
---Complete in One Volume.

This work is a compendium of useful information, embracing agriculture, anatomy, architecture, astronomy, banking, biography, botany, chemistry, geography, history, mechanical arts, mythology, mineralogy, mining, physics, physiology, and many other arts and sciences. It is a handy book for quick reference, and is invaluable to all men and women of intelligence. It is especially adapted to the wants of teachers and students. It is endorsed by the press everywhere, and recommended by all the Professors. See what the education of this vicinity think of it.

PINE GROVE, July 5, 1880.

I consider Zell's Condensed Cyclopædia one of the best books of reference of which I have any knowledge. I have access to a number of encyclopedias, yet I think that in nine cases out of ten this work will serve the purpose of any of the larger and more costly works. It is a book which should be in every school room, and to which teachers and pupils should always have access. It will be as frequently used as Webster's Unabridged Dictionary by most pupils and teachers. ISAAC C. KETLER,
Principal Pine Grove Normal Academy.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Jan. 1880.

Zell's Condensed Cyclopædia needs no recommendation, it speaks for itself. It contains more accurate and useful information than any other book I know of, for the same amount of money. Teachers and others desiring a work of reference for constant use will find in this book just such a work as they need. It is in fact a compact little treasure of information.

M. GANTZ,
Superintendent New Castle Schools.

This book not only contains a description of each and every country of the world, but also a description of the divisions of that country, accompanied by a fine, complete, and excellent map of the country and its divisions. It is brought down to 1880, with the correct pronunciation of each and every term and proper name, combining all the qualities of Cyclopædia, Dictionary and Gazetteer in one volume.

Price, in leather binding, library style, only $6.50. Half French, morocco, $7. This book can only be secured from the special agent for this county, E. W. Moore, who will soon visit your residence or place of business.

—Late advices from the scene of conflict in South America reflect little credit upon any of the combatants. The blowing up of a Chilean transport by an infernal machine was not a very glorious deed, although it destroyed a hundred and fifty of the enemy. Other nations have seldom or never deliberately used torpedoes, except against war vessels proper. Further details of the sack of Tacna and Arica show the Chilean soldiery to be as merciless, thievish and brutal as the worst mercenaries of Europe were centuries ago. The objective point of the Chileans now is Lima, and no one can doubt that the hope of plundering that rich city will keep the army securely together and enable it to make a tremendous fight. Meanwhile, though not in time to save Lima, there is a possibility that foreign nations will interfere. There seems to be sufficient excuse for their doing so.
