THE LETTER.

President Harrison's letter, accepting the Republican nomination for President of the United States, was given out for publication Monday evening.

He accepts, of course; then demonstrates the solidity of our finances; scores wildcat banking; speaks hopefully of the revival of American shipping interests; shows that our exports are increasing, favors reciprocity, shows that it is doing good and gives Blaine the credit for it; makes a strong plea for the continuance of the policy of protection; demonstrates the success of the new tariff law; favors dollars of equal value; also "a free ballot and honest count"; advocates firmness in our dealings with other nations; gives figures showing the wonderful increase in our commerce, and is in favor of letting well enough alone.

PRESS COMMENTS

The letter of President Harrison accepting the Republican nomination for a second term is the most complete and incisive discussion of the issues of the day made of late years. It reviews the whole list of questions to be decided by the pending campaign, and constitutes an exhaustive statement of the Republican attitude.

The President shows keen judgement in taking up first of all the need of preserving a stable and uniform national currency. The sop thrown by the Democratic platform to the Southern hunger for inflation, by proposing to revive the old State bank issues, is too favorable a chance to be neglected. The letter convincingly shows the evil of reviving the old system under which a man in Pittsburg could not be certain what the bank bills in his pocket would be worth if he journeyed to Cleveland, and plainly places before the people the results of voting for such a policy. The importance of reviving the ocean carrying trade is next discussed. In connection with it the extension of commerce with American nations is fully set forth with a graceful acknowlegement of the great credit due to Secretary Blaine for the vigor with which he pressed that policy to success. The statistics presented as to the increase of exports of agricultural products under this policy are fresh and convincing.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Republican Congress, to recover our share of the ocean carrying trade and save the millions paid to foreigners, passed a law to encourage shipbuilding, and as a result of it sixteen steamers have been built, and four more are under way, which will add six to the naval reserve, as those flying the British flag belong to the British naval reserve. The Democratic party has in its declaration of principles nothing on this patriotic policy, and the Democratic Congress showed hostility to it by refusing to expend an appropriation made for ocean mail contracts with American lines.

The Republican Congress provides for reciprocity, which has been steadily and greatly enlarging our field of trade while not injuring home industries. The Democratic party seeks to overthrow both.

The Republican party in reference to the tariff does not declare for a schedule, but for a principle governing all schedules, the object being to protect the wages of workingmen and the prosperity of our industries. The Democratic party has practically declared that if it obtains power it will make a tariff without reference to either.

The President scores a hit which even his opponents will have to acknowledge when he points to the recent Alabama election as an argument in favor of Federal supervision. There was no outcry against negro supremacy, yet the very same election methods that were invented to make Alabama Democratic were exercised by the one Democratic faction against the other, and the men who were elected were defended of their offices by ballot box stuffing and false counting. Heretofore this sort of business has been considered a virtuous exercise of public duty in Alabama, but now the outcry from the throats of the faction which was cheated has set Democrats all over the South to seriously considering whether dishonest election methods are safe weapons to juggle with. —Pittsburg Times.

Passing in conclusion to the tariff question Mr. Harrison says the platform declaration "in favor of 'the American doctrine of protection' meets my hearty approval." The majority report of the Democratic platform committee is quoted and then the minority report, which was adopted, to show the unequivocal free trade position of the Democracy, which meets as unqualified disapproval as the doctrine of protection does approval. There is not a "dodge" or quibble in the letter. It is direct, honest and forceful and is a platform on which every Republican and every honest American can proudly stand.—Pittsburg Gazette.

JUDGING from the inflammatory editorials, personal attacks, and sensational reports in certain public journals, one of the last things that a man ought to aim at in this land is success and eminence in his business, especially if it be one requiring the investment of a large amount of capital and the employment of a large number of operatives. Men of large means in such positions at once become the target for sensational journals, who offer absurd suggestions, assail them with personal abuse, or attack them as "robber barons," "purse-proud millionaires," "aristocrats," and the like. Yet these very men have built up great industries, increased the wealth of the community, given employment to thousands, and been liberal in their charities and public gifts. All that they have done, however in this direction is forgotten, because while benefitting others they have enriched themselves. They have sinned in being successful, while others with less talent, genius, and brains have failed or plodded on in hopeless mediocrity.—Ex.

A SAN FRANCISCO murderer, whose execution was postponed by the Sheriff on account of legal advice, is now said to be "judicially dead," and the judge says he cannot sentence him again, now that the time set for his execution has passed. The murderer is, in the law, dead, and as it is not usual to hang dead men, he will escape the penalty of his crime. This is probably the first case of the kind on record.

TALTON HALL, who was hung at Wise Court House in Virginia, last Friday, was a mountain terror in his day, and was discredited with ninety-nine murders.

AT the meeting of the Republican County Committee of Mercer County, Tuesday, the popular vote system of making nominations was adopted by a vote of 146 to 4.

The Conference.

The conferees of Messrs Greer and Wallace met in Butler, Wednesday, but up to the time of our going to press have done nothing.

THE CHOLERA.

On Thursday of last week President Harrison issued an order directing that all immigrant ships be detained in quarantine for twenty days.

The order read as follows, and indicates that the states have some rights in the matter:

To Collectors of Customs, Medical Officers of the Marine Hospital Service, Foreign Steamship Companies, State and Local Boards of Health:

It having been officially declared that cholera is prevailing in various portions of Russia, Germany and France, and at certain ports in Great Britain, as well as in Asia, and it having been made to appear that immigrants in large numbers are coming into the United States from the infected districts aforesaid, and that they and their personal effects are liable to introduce cholera into the United States, and that vessels conveying them are thereby a direct menace to the public health; and it having been further shown, that under the laws of the several States, quarantine detentions may be imposed upon these vessels a sufficient length of time to insure against the introduction of contagious diseases, it is hereby ordered that vessels from any foreign port, carrying immigrants, shall not be admitted to enter at any port of the United States until said vessels shall have undergone a quarantine detention of 20 days, unless such detention is forbidden by the laws of the State or the regulation made thereunder, and of such greater number of days as may be fixed in each special case by the State authorities.

This circular to take immediate effect, except in cases of vessels afloat at this date, which will be made the subject of special consideration upon the application to the department.

Two suspected cases were reported in New York, Thursday.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has issued orders for the disinfection of all its stations and cars.

The conflict of authority in New York, between the State and Federal authorities, as to quarantine regulations was settled in favor of the State authorities.

On Friday morning eight ocean steamers were lying at the quarantine in New York harbor, awaiting the rigid inspection that Dr. Jenkins of the state force is giving all vessels arriving from Europe.

733 new cases were reported in Hamburg that day with 201 deaths. In Russia 5,723 new cases were reported, and 2,722 deaths.

It is said in London that the reason that the steamships between New York and Hamburg have persisted in carrying the Russian passengers in face of the danger of infection, and after the cholera had spread not only in Russia, but in Hamburg itself, is that the Hamburg-American steamship company has a contract or understanding with Baron Hirsch to carry these people; and has hesitated to break the arrangement. There is no doubt whatever that the Russian Jews brought the infection to Hamburg. The cholera traveled clear across Germany in the trains in which the emigrants were conveyed without delay from the frontier. This of itself shows how the disease can be kept within limits.

The trains which bore these emigrants undoubtedly bore the cholera, but as the emigrants were not permitted to leave the trains, the disease did not spread. The plague was, in effect, kept in quarantine on the trains until the emigrants, reaching their transfer depot at Humburg, were allowed to leave the trains and with them the cholera stalked forth to the city. Hamburg is paying the price for having been selected as the depot for Baron Hirsch's colonization scheme. It has been the Mecca in Europe of the Russian Jewish emigration to America. For a while this emigration brought some profit and money, and now it has brought the pestilence.

At quarantine station in New York Bay, Sunday, six deaths from cholera occurred in three of the vessels quarantined. Nearly three thousand deaths from cholera have occured in Hamburg since the outbreak of the disease there; and the deaths in Russia average six thousand a day.

As the Canadian authorities are taking no precautions against cholera, a twenty-days quarantine has been established at Detroit.

Three deaths and five new cases were reported at Quarantine, New York, Monday. The dead are being burned in a crematory erected on Swineburne Island. The bodies are wrapped in sheets soaked in bi-chloride of mercury when they are removed from the ships to protect the men who handle them from infection. At the crematory, when Superindendent Butler is ready, another sheet soaked in alum is wrapped about the corpse, which is then laid on an iron tray. When the retort has reached a temperature of about 600° the door is hurriedly opened and the tray shoved in. The alum checks combustion long enough for the attendants to close the door. It takes two or three hours to reduce the body to ashes. The retort can only hold one tray, but one of the two in use at the crematory is so large that the body of a grown person and a child can be placed in it and burned together. So far, Superintendent Butler has been able to dispose of all the bodies brought from the ships without difficulty.

At Quarantine, N. Y., Tuesday eleven new cases were reported, and there were two deaths on the island.

That. Mrs. Ford Weigle, who died in Butler, Thursday, Sept. 1st, was buried here the following Saturday.

That Bert McLure and wife of McKeesport were here last week visiting Bert's relations. Bert's face looks natural, but is somewhat more Benedictine than usual. Right G. B.

That Mrs. Susie Roth, of Pittsburg visited friends here last week.

JO COSITY.

SOUTHWICK, England, is having a labor riot, and the soldiers have been called out. Beware of free trade.

HOMESTEAD.

On Thursday a mob interfered with another non-union man who was moving into the mill. A French cook sent from Pittsburg to the works fell into the hands of the strikers and was beaten and scared into returning to town, the Company's houses on the hill were stoned and the windows were boken.

Five members of the Advisory Board had a hearing before Alderman McMaster, Thursday, and were held for trial, as was also Baldwin of the Pittsburg Base Ball Club.

On Friday eight additional arrests were made of strikers on charges of murder, riot and conspiracy, and all were released on bail, excepting two who were held for murder.

Clifford had a hearing before Judge Ewing, Saturday, and was held for murder in the first degree. Fay was released on $10,000 bail.

On Sunday there was talk of the Huns and Slavs going back to work, and the military were prepared for trouble.

On Monday the parents of some of the children of Homestead refused to allow them to go to school because the daughters of two non-union men were employed as teachers.

Judge Kennedy, of Allegheny county, scored the strikers severely in his charge to the Grand Jury. Six true bills were found against Berkman.

Over a hundred men went back to their jobs Monday.

The Pugilistic Carnival.

John L's special train of six Wagner sleepers left New York last Thursday at 5:30 p. m., and passed through Buffalo early Friday morning, Cincinnati Friday night; and arrived in New Orleans, Sunday.

Corbett left Ashbury, N. J. for New Orleans, Saturday noon, and was given an ovation by the people there as he took the train, and arrived in New Orleans safely, Monday.

New Orleans was full of sports Sunday, and nothing but the approaching slugging matches was talked of.

As soon as Sullivan reached his quarters at 45 Rampart street he took a bath, shaved himself and put on some clean clothes, after which breakfast was served. The champion ate very heartily, and at Casey's suggestion he took a half hour's walk in the garden in the rear of the house. Then he was stripped, rubbed down and put to bed, where he slept as peacefully as a child for three hours.

Dinner was eaten at 2 o'clock, and at 4 the big fellow accompanied by Casey, Morgan and the Jap, went across the way to the Young Men's Gymnasium building, one of the best appointed clubs in the South.

The champion skipped the rope several hundred times, punched the bag and passed the ball. Among the onlookers was President Neol, of the Olympic Club. The big fellow banged out with all the force in those ponderous arms and mighty shoulders, and the leather sphere almost burst with the impost.

The blows were terrific and when the champion finished, Mr. Neol, who was carried away by what he had seen, stepped up to Sullivan, saying: "The fight is over and I will enclose that $25,000 check for you at once. I don't think a living man could stand such punishment as that."

This greatly gratified Sullivan, and he said in a hoarse voice aside to Johnston: "Wasn't that a funny crack for him to make?"

When the big fellow reached New Orleans this morning he weighed 219½ pounds, and when he quit work this evening he was weighed in the presence of a dozen persons. He weighed exactly 214½ pounds.

Monday night witnessed the first of the possible encounters. It was between Jack McAuliffe, a Brooklyn slugger; and Billy Myer, ditto, of Streator, Ill. Jack knocked Billy out in fifteen rounds in the presence of six thousand people.

Corbett had a reception that day at Atlanta, Ga.

Tuesday night, Geo. Dixon, the colored boy of Boston, knocked out Jack Skelly, of Brooklyn, in eight rounds, and in the presence of 6000 people.

Corbett arrived in town that day and talked hopefully, and John L. was in "great shape," and the betting was 2 to 1 on him.

John L. Sullivan is the Chapion no longer, Corbett having knocked him out in the 21st round, not withstanding the fact that Jno. L. was the favorite and the bets of $3 to $1 in his favor were numerous.

Reunion at Slipperyrock Park.

On August 30th, 1892, at Slipperyrock Park, quite a number of citizens from Washington and Worth townships met. They were mostly related to each other and this was a reunion of friends, many of whom had been schoolmates and associates in their younger days, and had not seen each other for a long time. Hence the many handshakings and enquiries in regard to each others health, and the health of those who were absent.

After the greetings and handshaking were over, the hour for dinner having arrived, many well filled baskets were produced, and there being ample accommodations in the park in the shape of tables and seats, there was soon a repast spread that would tempt the appetite of the most confirmed epicure, as our lady friends have so many convenient ways of preparing a dinner to be eaten on short notice. Dinner over we all went down to the river where there were quite a number of boats, that were eagerly seized and appropriated by the young folks, (and some of the older ones,) and away they went paddling down on the placid besom of the Historic Slipperyrock. What if the boat did leak and the young folks get their feet and skirts wet and the paddles of the boatman splash the water on them, it was all the greater fun, but at last the waning sun admonished them that it was time to depart for home. Then came the kind good-byes, and farewells and a general breaking up of what was a very pleasant day, spent with many kind friends. The following is a partial list of those who were present: Alfred Shira, wife and five daughters and one son; Samuel Shira, wife, and three daughters and one son; Wm. Dickey, wife, three daughters, two sons and son-in-law; Bower Stinetorf, wife and child; Mrs. Calvin Stinetorf and her sister Miss Boyd; Wm. Smith and Miss Gilghrist; John Book, wife and five sons and two daughters; Frank Book, wife and three children; Warren Book, wife and child; Mrs. Millie Book of New Castle; Mrs. John G. W. Book and daughter Maude; Haratio D. Payne and wife; D. P. Davis, Esq., wife, one son and four daughters; Mrs. Clellie Cooper and two children, James Rutter, wife and child; Mrs. Fithian and son of Grove City; Mrs. Weller and daughter; James Humphrey, wife, two sons and two daughters; William Humphrey and wife of Portersville; W. H. Humphrey, wife and two children; Mrs. Clara Humphrey; Miss Josie Humphrey; W. F. Gardner and wife, Manning Humphrey, Wm. M. Humphrey, Mrs. Glenn Humphrey, of Centreville, Milton Humphrey and wife, of Whitestown, and your humble servant, J. H.

The "Western Reserve," one of the finest steamers on the lakes, broke in two and foundered on Lake Erie, a few days ago, and twenty-six people drowned.

John Skinner was emsloyed by George Feitner, a prosperous farmer near Steubenville, Ohio; they quarrelled; Feitner discharged Skinner; and Skinner shot Feitner, his wife and her mother, and then himself.

Ten thousand people were at the Tarentum Fair, Thursday.

The grocery store of David Jamison, at Beaver Falls, was closed by the sheriff last week. The failure is due to the strike at the Carnegie Mill.

Postmaster Kelly of Lickingville, Clarion County, charged with duelling, was found not guilty, at Clarion, at the late term of court, and the costs were divided. There were two counts in the indictment against Mr. Kelly. In the first count he was charged with having on April 1, 1892, "challenged one A. W. Kinch to fight with him, the said J. W. Kelly, with deadly weapons, to-wit: with swords, pistols, guns and other deadly weapons, contrary to the form of the act of Assembly in such case made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."; The second count charged that the defendant did on the date stated unlawfully publish and proclaim one A. W. Kinch as a coward, and did then use approbrious and abusive names and language toward the said A. W. Kinch for not acceptnig and fighting a duel with him.

Meadville has at present about $20,000 in the treasury. Why don't the Council "rake'er?"

The biggest rattlesnake killed in Pennsylvania this season was slaughtered by C. C. Gray, of Tim Gray's Run, Lycoming county. It was six feet long and had 30 rattles.

Oakdale, Allegheny County, has an epidemic of typhoid fever.

A man named Foster, while opening bundles of oats at Irahil, N. Y. struck the hand of the feeder, whose name is unknown, with his knife. The angered feeder grasped Foster and threw him into the separator, where he was ground to pieces. Foster's brother saw the deed and killed the murderer with a pitchfork.

A Pittsburg girl calls her lovor "Grover" because he writes her a letter every day.

A few weeks ago Mayor Hunt, of Oil City, received a letter from Charles P. Borditch, of Philadelphia, asking if the stories published of the bravery of John Halyday Gordon, in saving lives during the flood in that city, were true. Meyor Hunt replied promptly that the stories were true in every particular, and on Saturday last, he received a letter from Mr. Borditch, enclosing a check for $100, which the letter explained, was an anonymous gift from a lady of Philadelphia as a testimonial of her admiration of Mr. Gordon's bravery.

A Wafren county man recently took the law into his own hands in a way that may cause him a great deal of trouble. He had been recently married, and a party of boys were giving him a charavari. Despite his repeated requests that they go away and cease to disturb him the gang of shouters kept up the noise and racket until it became unbearable and almost set the man and his timid wife wild. As a last resort the husband brought out his double-barrelled gun, loaded with bird-shot, and fired into the crowd. Two boys were badly hurt, and one of them will be disfigured for life, probably losing his eyesight.

Squire Massie Beasely, of Aberdeen, O., died last Saturday. The Squire was elected magistrate in 1869. He has held the office continuously ever since. In that time he has married over 5,000 couples. He was born in Adams county in 1811. Impecunious couples often applied to be married, and the Squire never turned them away disconsolate. He died worth considerable money, as the office was one of the most lucrative in the state of Ohio.

Oil Notes.

Guckert & Steel the other day sold their property near Petersville, in the Butler county 100 foot field. It consists of leases of the Humphrey, Duncan and Nesbitt farms, contains 200 acres and thirteen wells, with a daily gross production of 365 barrels, or 320 net. The purchasers were J. V. Ritts and William Walker of Butler. J. W. McFarland conducted the sale, and everybody connected with it agrees to keep the consideration a close secret.—Gazette.

The first well on the John Balfour farm near Mars produced 70 bbls a day for four years and is yet making 40 bbls; the original well on the Basenecker is making 80 bbls; and the total production of that field is about 1500 a day. Several new wells are being drilled in that field.

The Anchor Oil Company drilled a well more than a year ago on the John Marburger farm, near Callery, but found nothing in the hundred-foot. They drilled on to the third sand and it, too, was dry. The well was abandoned some weeks ago and passed into other hands. It was cleaned out, shot and is now making 15 barrels a day. Oil in the third sand in this part of the field is an entirely new feature and will induce others to make the same test at some of their abandoned wells.

Schlagle & Co's well on the Ben Garvin, was reported to be doing 375 bbls. Friday.

Five new rigs are going up in Garvin Oil field in Cranbery twp., and four more wells have been located.

Charles Butterfield, a pumper on the Forest Oil Company's No. 3 W. C. Herron well, a mile northwest of Noblestown, met his death very suddenly early last Monday morning. The well had not been pumped on Sunday, and the water in the boiler was cold. Butterfield went to it early, lighted the gas in the furnace to raise steam and then, it is supposed, sat down in front of the boiler to wait on it and fell asleep. The burning gas soon raised steam in the boiler, and, as the safety-valve was stuck fast, the pressure got so strong that it literally burst the front out of the boiler, and the escaping water and steam scalded Butterfield to death instantly. There was nobody near the well at the time but the deceased, and the manner of his death could only be judged by the appearance of things afterwards. The shell of the boiler beside the furnace or ash-box door was burst out, but without moving it from its position, and poor Butterfield's body was found lying in front of it. When someone tried to move the safety valve he could not raise it by hand until it had been struck and knocked loose.

A Scene in Hamburg.

(Extract from a cable letter.)

A sudden noise disturbs me as I write this. In the street all is excitement, and from the window I see at a corner a workman staggering like a drunken man. He seats himself on a doorstep almost doubled up, then falls to the ground. The kinder hearted among the bystanders bring him brandy and cholera drops. Quickly the police arrive. The victim has grown icy cold and must be helped at once. All shawls and wraps that can be found are requisitioned. The cart arrives, the man is hustled into it, and off he goes. Children have been standing close by throughout the episode.

Such incidents are not uncommon in the streets of Hamburg. Exaggerated rumors fill the air and keep the excitement at fever point. Threatres are closed, festivals stopped, meetings postponed, and all the people think of is whether they can get fresh supplies of disinfectants. The water is boiled.
