The final gaps have been cleared for action and a small army of one hundred men and women will today storm Corpus Christi for a barrage of dollars to be fired before the American army in France.

Liberty Loan Manager Edward H. Atlee and members of the Nueces County Committee at a conference held yesterday morning in the offices of the Commercial Association completed all arrangements for an intensive drive today in Corpus Christi.

The town has been divided into thirteen districts and this morning promptly at 8.30 o'clock a committee composed of five or six members in each district will begin a house to house canvass of the city. It is expected that when figures are finally checked tonight that the greater part of the $435,000 that has been assigned to Corpus Christi in this drive will have been subscribed. Few new subscriptions were reported Thursday and it is now quite apparent that vigorous efforts will be necessary to bring the Nueces County quota to $793,800 by October 19, the day that has been designated as the closing day for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

Reports from Bishop and Robstown received late night by the Bishop Advance contained assurances that the entire towns of Bishop and Robstown had oversubscribed their quotas.

Bishop and Robstown Bankers Lead

Bishop and Robstown bankers led the way in the subscription campaign, Bishop and the people of that town made a strong showing and Robstown is going to exceed its quota. The Bishop and Robstown bankers are doing their share in the Liberty Loan campaign and are leading the way in the Nueces County campaign.

AUSTRIAN NAVAL BASE AT DURAZZO IS DESTROYED BY FLEET OF ALLIED WARSHIPS

American, British and French Troops Capture Many Important Points

(BULLETIN)

ROME, Friday, October 4.—American, British and Italian warships have destroyed the Austrian Naval Base at Durazzo and the Austrian warships anchored in that harbor, according to an official statement that has just been made by Premier Orlando.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—An official announcement just issued admits that the Austrian forces that were withdrawn from Albania have been captured by the Allies.

(By the Associated Press)

Lens, the fourth of the great coal region in Northern France and Armentieres, almost equally as important as a manufacturing center have been evacuated by the Germans.

The German fortifications between Cambrai and St. Quentin have been smashed by the troops of the Entente.

In Albania the Austrians have been forsaken by their former allies and are now in full retreat from the Adriatic Sea to Lake Ochrida.

Before the French north of Rheims, and the Franco-Americans eastward in Champagne to Verdun, the Germans are slowly but surely being forced everywhere to give ground.

Around St. Quentin the German resistance is still strong, but the British, French and American troops have valiently attacked and have withstood counter-attacks and time and again have smashed the Hindenburg line, and have advanced their lines until they are now out on a rolling country eastward and northward from St. Quentin.

Northwest of Rheims the Germans are offering stiff resistance to the French. Along the Aisne river and the regions protecting Chemin-des-Dames the French have advanced, capturing Cornecy, and they have now reached the Aisne canal between Conversreuns and Laucuvillette on a fifteen mile front.

In Champagne the French have enlarged their gains, taking thousands of additional prisoners and inflicting heavy casualties on the Germans, and their vital defenses may continue to crumble.

In Belgian Flanders the Belgian, French and British troops are keeping up their eastward progress in their endeavor to compel the Huns to give up Ostend and Zeebrugge, their North Sea submarine bases.

Roulers, with railroads radiating to the North Sea and eastward to Ghent has been entered by the Belgians, and at Thielt the Belgians are virtually upon the Roulers-Ostend-Bruges railway to South Menin and Courtrai.

The capture of Armentieres brings the Allies within striking distance of the North Sea naval bases and the evacuation of Lens places Douai Fortress and all of the territory between Arras and Menin virtually in the hands of the British.

The British during Thursday took 5,000 prisoners, while 2,800 fell into the hands of the French.

They are showing gallantry and executing very daring maneuvers, and there are many stories of heroism.
