SIBERIAN DICTATOR IS ASSASSINATED

Labor and Capital Must Work Together After The War Says Post

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—[illegible] pay tribute to the patriotism of the workers in the shipyards, munition factories and the agriculture should not be able to change back from the war basis to the peace basis as readily as existing conditions [illegible] of raw materials or any thing due to the seasonal conditions. But given the raw materials there should be no reason why manufacturing operations of peace time should not be resumed almost as much confusion and delay as might result.

There is based to be merit in the [illegible] of labor been placed at present when dragged the war work back to plants that were for the duration to peace times. Mr. Post believes that he regards the disappointment [illegible] of the Department of Labor as a public carrier for solving the problems that might give trouble that manager and believes that it will be able to provide workers with jobs as well as to provide workers the employers.

There is no concern in the minds question and it may reshape industrial [illegible] and in not pull down the country into danger from the reconstruction necessitate [illegible]. But Post believes this can be avoided by healthy sentiment and understanding between labor and employers. However, Post declares, if employers are to be guided by the spirit of men who have formed all through [illegible] the government agencies who think of the [illegible] and labor [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and
