Pope Expected To Name American Cardinal Soon

By The Associated Press

ROME, March 30.—It is expected that the Holy Secretary will announce another American cardinal will be appointed in a relatively short time. The death of Cardinal Gibbons again having reduced the American cardinals to two. Pope Benedict is believed to have the intention of filling the precedent set by Pius X in 1911 of having three cardinals in the United States.

Meanwhile the speculation has focused concerning names of prelates to be here. Among great names are those of Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago and Archbishop Hayes of New York. Some persons also are suggesting the Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, archbishop of San Francisco, while others hold that the appointment of a new archbishop of Baltimore to succeed Cardinal Gibbons may upset all the present predictions.

It is pointed out by those that after the archbishop of Baltimore is appointed the pontiff will be free to the people who desire to confer the archbishop, in that archbishop, which was the first in the United States when the old hat was worn.

RAIL DEFICIT EXCEEDS MILLION

one of those who gave testimony today.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 30.—In an effort to hasten a settlement of the labor difficulties between the railroads and their employes, the executive committee of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, meeting here today, invited the heads of the "big four" railroad brotherhoods to attend a conference in New York on April 5 to discuss the situation.

A special committee of 25 members, representative of the various sections of the country, also was appointed and will endeavor to be helpful, it was said, in assisting to relieve the immediate situation and later generally in bringing about conditions as may appear essential.

The committee's statement declared that "a continued disagreement between railroad executives and employes, and between present railroad rates and wages and the revenues derived therefrom, must if not settled soon, in consequence of serious consequences, not alone to owners of railroad securities, but to all who are in any way dependent on the railroads for a livelihood."

Assuming that the National Association is a representative organization, it represents a membership just like the big four, the report continued, a large proportion of the railroad stockholders.

"Many millions in our citizens, dependent upon the stability of their investments, have to rely upon these securities for their support. Many through this medium, also, have in the past has rendered valuable service. Because of these and other circumstances we are prompted to outline

"Any immediate and partial remedy seems to be in an adjustment of relations between the railroads and their employes. The hearings before the United States railroad labor board at Chicago do not evidence an early settlement of diverse differences.

In its letter to the brotherhood chiefs the committee stated the railroads "are not producing not carriers as a class, sufficient to meet their fixed charges by millions of dollars."

The body of the slain man, she said, was then placed in Phillips' automobile, taken to a bridge over the Trinity river and thrown into the water.

The public ceremony called the bier of the cardinal lay in the city will be carried to the cathedral crypt, the spread since the burial of Archbishop Spalding in 1872. There, in marked contrast to the imposing ceremony of the mass, the body will be laid to rest in the white marble tomb, with the simplicity of ceremonies and in the presence of only closest relatives and dearest friends.

For three days the body of the cardinal has rested in state under the great gold dome of the cathedral in which for so many years the prelate ministered. Tens of thousands of people, 20,000 alone, paid their last respects at the bier since lying in state overlooking the city, but today, from morning until nearly midnight, a great double column knelt long, solemn entrance to the cathedral.

In other parts of the city there was the usual noise and bustle of an American community, but around the cathedral all was quiet.

The funeral car left the cathedral with almost the last solemn honors. The procession proceed slowly forward unless streets leading to the church. Tomorrow the church will spread its gates the city, which it becomes to mourn, mourned by the governor and rulers, all traffic and all activities will be stopped one minute when the mass begins at 9 o'clock.

Among industrial establishments in the District of Columbia now engaged in research are the National Geographic association, and the Institute of industrial research. These organizations were named in a report just made public by Alfred D. Flinn, secretary of engineering foundation.

Robert M. "The industrial corporations," he said recently, "are taking cognizance of this and introducing new methods for the handling of material."

Read the advertising columns of your daily newspaper. Here are the country's advertised products—worthy goods—up for inspection.

You may depend upon them as good goods; for, if they didn't "pass muster" they would not continue to enjoy their popularity. The public would not buy them and the newspapers would not take their advertising even had they the money to spend for it.

Choosing merchandise through newspaper advertising is buying reduced to an efficiency basis.

When you go to your merchant or phone for goods to be delivered there need be no delay or indecision as in the olden day. You buy with your mind made up as to the worth of goods that face the spotlight of public scrutiny and are not found faulty.
