WIT, SCIENCE, ART DISPENSED AT KI'S MEET

The Kiwanians had a big time at their Monday noon luncheon yesterday, the event being divided between wit, science and art. L. H. Tannehill, the local weather man, was among the speakers and told the club in a few words just what Corpus Christi weather was. It was in a class all its own. There were no two kinds of weather, the weather and fine weather and the weather the other fellow has to stand.

The silverware prize brought out the wisdom and art of the occasion. The prize being a pocket knife labeled "A Conversation on How to Play Poker," called for by Mr. Good and illustrated by Peter Pope. However, on being opened it proved to be one of the late Lincoln's knives, presented to Mrs. Abner Chapman, who had rendered the morning's vocal song.

The members were addressed by H. H. Ritz on the subject of Heavy Point Combustion. Mr. Ritz gave an interesting history of the science of heavy point work through police courts and explained to the Kiwanians the growing importance of this work until the power value it had become was so great demonstrated that it was not enough an art to be utilized for police purposes so far, the purpose of arresting crimes and identifying criminals only, but was rapidly becoming an important factor in commercial and other lines. In connection with the improved dissertation, Easy went into the details of other forms of identification, typewriting and the points developed by the Bertillon system and finger prints as well.

Mr. Easy is now making a study of the Bertillon art and will in a recent examination make the highest score of any in a large class that is taking the course. He was made by Felix Lee of the government examiner.

A number of the entertainers contributed for the visiting Kiwanians on Saturday. Music delightful and it was so taken in all quarters that the visitor would leave the city with the thoughts and regards that the Nine allotted them. Lively was so about. Visitors present included besides L. H. Tannehill, J. A. Darby of Dallas State Leader of San Antonio, Sam Dale, D. W. Eaty, A. H. Mosier, J. F. Dinsmore and Max Leonhart.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE COLLAPSES WITH HIGH DEATH TOLL

made what was termed "air light," meaning the discharge of sufficient ballast to make the weight of the great gas bag nil. "Now she is as light as a feather," remarked General Maitland, as this stage of the preparation was completed. With evident pride, General Maitland examined the points of excellence in the craft.

DECLARED A BEAUTY.

"She is a beauty," declared General Maitland, as the enormous hulk was sheared from the hangar by her party of 300 attendants. He waited until six motors had been tested and the shrill signal bells tried out by Lieutenant Wann, the British commander of the aircraft.

Satisfied that all was well General Maitland with a cheery goodbye and a "I will see you in Pulham," climbed up the ladder and disappeared in the great silvery shell.

A moment later Commander Louis H. Maxfield, United States, was boosted up into the control car alongside of Lieutenant Wann. Then the civilian observers boarded the ship and the aircraft was off on her journey.

Mrs. Maxfield, with her mother, Mrs. Harry T. Page, saw her husband sail away and exchanged waves of hands with him as the dirigible ascended. Mrs. Coil, wife of Lieutenant Commander Emory Coil, U. S. N., executive officer, also was present to bid farewell to her husband. She is an English woman.

WASHINGTON DEEPLY REGRETS DISASTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Expressions of deep regret was voiced by government officials without exception today over the total destruction of the giant airship ZR-2, with a heavy loss of American and British lives. Pride in the acquisition of the new queen of the air and hopes of tremendous development in military and commercial aeronautics had lent interest to the planned-for trans-Atlantic flight of the British-built air cruiser even beyond that which it would normally have aroused.

"It was a terrible thing," was the sad comment of Secretary Denby as he received cabled dispatches giving details. He immediately forwarded to the British air ministry a message expressing the sympathy of the navy department.

"The navy department of the United States extends to the air ministry and the British navy deepest sympathy in the appalling disaster to the ZR-2," said the message. "We hope our early reports will prove exaggerated as to loss of life."

Far from being discouraged by the disaster, naval aviation officials immediately prepared to seek authority for construction of a new ship of the ZR-2 type in the United States.

"We will carry on, build and operate as many ZR-2's as may be authorized by congress," Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, said tonight, "so that these brave men may not have lost their lives in vain."

ENGLISHMAN TELLS OF THE DISASTER.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Ernest Davies, one of the British members of the crew of the ZR-2, who was saved, in an interview with the London Times at Hull said:

"We had a terrible time. It was all over in a moment. The petrol tanks exploded and volumes of smoke and fire leaped from the ship.

"Some of the men jumped, but I stuck to the ship and went down with the stern section, which struck a sand bank, from which I was rescued.

"Some of the poor fellows had no choice whatever, especially in the control car."

GERMANS DEFER PUTTING NAME TO PEACE TREATY

been signed, as it was declared that neither German nor American officials here had been informed of the signing of the Austrian treaty.

OF MINOR IMPORTANCE SAYS WASHINGTON

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The state department received tonight's report from Commissioner Dresel at Berlin on the peace treaty negotiations and said the point which had been raised would be attended to at once. Officials did not discuss the question, saying that it was one of "minor technical importance."

U. S. NOW AT PEACE WITH AUSTRIANS

By The Associated Press.

VIENNA, Aug. 24.—The treaty of peace between the United States and Austria was signed here this afternoon, Arthur Hugh Frazier, American commissioner in Vienna, acting for the Washington government.

Such exception and secrecy attended the preliminary negotiations and today's simple ceremony that the late newspapers today furnished the first news that the United States and Austria no longer were even technical enemies.

The terms of the treaty are being withheld for the present. It is understood that the government does not desire public discussion of the treaty pending the ratification of the treaty by the foreign affairs committee of the parliament. The committee will meet Saturday to prepare the ratification of the treaty for consideration by parliament when it re-assembles.

EDUCATIONAL BILL PASSES FINALLY

Dr. Wood, Fairchild and Darwin.

A senate concurrent resolution providing an examination of the state institutions of higher education as to a method of systematizing the work of these institutions was adopted in both branches late today. A committee, to be composed of nine members is provided. Three members are to be appointed by the governor, three by the lieutenant governor and three by the speaker of the house.

CHINESE WANT OPEN CONFERENCE

plete success, the authority of Peking.

Meantime, the government of Peking, itself, keeps its precarious hold on its fictitious powers only by the tips of its brittle fingernails.

MYSTERY OF CHINA

Now and then some of these things break into the newspapers. Most of them do not. A little thing like a war between provinces is nothing to get excited about in present-day China, it seems, and the mutiny of a regiment or so of troops, or the looting of a town of only a few thousand inhabitants appears to be hardly worth chronicling.

It is only when a large city like Ichang, or Wuchang—Wuchang is as big as St. Louis—is pillaged, and foreign interests demolished, that the cables are harried with the news.

Even those who live in China have but a feeble notion of the inter-operation of the present situation, while the outside world, of course, knows less. The best informed foreign powers—save possibly Japan—are woefully ignorant of the true conditions inside what was once the Celestial Empire.

PEACE IN BALANCE

As long as these conditions prevail out here, the peace of the world hangs as though by a thread.

As long as the peace of the Pacific is in the balance, the United States, Great Britain and Japan will assuredly not dispute.

Finally, the conditions referred to above will continue to obtain until China is either disarmoured and wiped off the map by a lot of greedy powers, else is put on her feet again by international agreement.

Dr. F. C. Tong, one of the most influential Chinese leaders here, said:

"Our government is rotten to the core. But look at the odds we are fighting against.

"First of all, the masses must contend with their own government, which is corrupt unconscious of its obligations to the nation and without insight into the future.

"Secondly, that government is strengthened, maintained in power and given life by Japan.

"Thirdly, Japan is in alliance with the greatest power in Europe, Great Britain. Against such a combination, how can we succeed in breaking down the incubus in Peking which is destroying us?

"But Japan is strong only through the alliance." Dr. Tong continued. "Without an alliance with Britain, Japan would not be in a position to interfere with China and would sink to her suitable dwarfed position.

"The calling of a conference of Britain, America, China and Japan," he concluded, "meets with approval throughout China, but on one condition, and that is that nothing secret be decided on, that everything be open and above board."

and necessity for the designation and establishment of the port developed. The interests affected advantageously by the establishment of a deep water port at this place have grown into enormous proportions.

"This delay may tend to postpone action by congress on the project but at the same time it will give the committee more time to prepare its case. And the more time devoted to this work just that much better case we will have made out. We are fighting a winning battle and while we are fully sanguine of success at this or any time previous to the present, can well utilize the extension of time forced upon us by continuing to function as we have been.

Information and data of various kinds is daily being compiled and disseminated over the territory affected by the establishment of a deep water port of this place, and thousands of letters are going out each month to the city and other organizations throughout Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Arizona, Wyoming, Utah, the Dakotas and other sections of the largest agricultural and grain-producing districts in the west and southwest, calling attention to the coming port.

TWO MORE ENDORSEMENTS

Indorsement was received yesterday afternoon from the Chicago Grain chamber of commerce, in which that body representing one of the most important sections of the southwest, most fairly representing the sentiment of the Oklahoma-Kansas territory, approved the establishment of a deep water port at Corpus Christi.

August, 13, 1921.

Deep Water Harbor Association of South and West Texas, Corpus Christi, Texas.

Gentlemen:

We take pleasure in endorsing Corpus Christi as the proper location for a deep water harbor.

We believe that the economic advantages and commercial necessity of a seaport located on the Gulf can best be served by the Corpus Christi location, and that such a harbor will be of inestimable value to the entire middle west.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) O. L. BINGHAM,
Chairman Industrial and Transportation Committee.
J. W. COMER, Secretary.

In addition to the Chickasha chamber of commerce indorsement received yesterday a strong endorsement was received from the commercial bodies of South and Central Texas in convention at Seguin. The cities of Victoria, Port Lavaca, Cuero, Yoakum, Yorktown, Seguin, Gonzales, Halletsville, Alice and a number of other places all combined in a united appeal as well as an endorsement of a deep water port here. The resolution was adopted during the district meeting of the association at Seguin, the headquarters of which is at Cuero. It is a recent organization of the chambers of commerce of all South Texas. The South Texas Chamber of Commerce is headed by C. H. Sponey of Yorktown. The telegram follows:

Seguin, Texas, Aug. 24, 1921.

Roy Miller, Secretary-Treasurer, Corpus Christi, Texas.

South Texas Chamber of Commerce in convention assembled has unanimously endorsed Corpus Christi as location for deep water port. Will send you copy of resolution. Letter follows.
