QUANAH AT WORK.

Meeting Held to Take Steps to Induce Immigration—New Buildings Going Up.

Quanah, Tex., Feb. 6.—(Special.)—A meeting of the citizens of Quanah held at the court house to take steps to induce a portion of the number of immigrants that are expected to Texas through the efforts of the Fort Worth and Denver and other systems of roads in the state to settle in Quanah and Hardeman county. The attendance was large, being composed of our best citizens and business men, and considerable interest was manifested.

Committees were appointed and instructed to commence labors immediately for the purpose of securing funds to make suitable advertising matter up and distributed, setting forth the advantages and advantages this section of Texas offers to home-seekers and settlers, and we trust the committees, with the aid of The Gazette, will be the means of bringing a number of people to Northwest Texas.

Messrs. S. W. Tealey and W. E. Johnson have let the contracts for new two-story business buildings to take the place of those destroyed by fire some time since, and a large force of workmen are busily engaged in laying up the walls. Other buildings will be begun as soon as the insurance adjusters complete their work of settlement.

JANE.

Miss Jennie Jane, whom all the press of Dallas will be presented at the opera house on Thursday, Feb. 9, opening with a matinee for ladies and children at 3 o'clock, with a specialty selected cast under the direction of Charles Bryant.

Jane has a history of self-sacrifice, of how she saved her young master from being kidnapped just at a time when none of her friends would lend a helping hand to her. Well, I suppose you would like to know the story. Briefly, 'tis this: A Mr. Lambert, pretending to his trustee that he has married, overdraws his accounts and the trustee finally consents to visit his protege. The spendthrift at last seeing that his deception will be found out, suggests to his cousin, Jane, to act the part of his wife during his trustee's visit. She consents to do, although she is secretly married to the young master's friend, William. Jane performs her part to the transport so well that William loses his equilibrium and the deception is exposed to the old trustee. Jane, the New York Herald prize winner, will precede Jane as a curtain raiser.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Full Text of Decisions Rendered in the Fort Worth District.

Court of civil appeals, Second district. B. D. Tarlton, chief justice; H. O. Head, and I. W. Stephens, associate justices; W. L. Huff, clerk.

OPINION.

In August, 1889, the commissioner's court of Cooke county established a second-class public road known as the Rock Bluff and County Line road, the northern terminus of which is at Red river on land owned by appellant. Since the establishment of said road, appellee without any license from the commissioner's court of Cooke county, has been engaged in operating a ferry across Red river, landing his passengers upon that part of appellant's land condemned for use as a public road under the laws of this state as aforesaid, and appellant institute this suit to enjoin appellee from the use of his land by him for said purpose. The court below refused the injunction and from this judgment appellant prosecutes this appeal.

This question has been so ably and exhaustively treated in an opinion delivered by Dillon, justice, while a member of the supreme court of Iowa in the case of Prosser vs. Wapello county, 18 Ia., 327, that it would be a waste of time upon our part to attempt to add anything to what is there said, and we shall content ourselves with copying at length from that opinion as follows:

3. This brings us to the next question, and that is, whether the location of a county road on the land does, to the extent of its width on the bank of the river, deprive the land owner of his riparian rights as above defined.

And here we feel compelled to yield our doubts to the almost if not quite uniform current of authority, and to hold that it does not. The argument is this: By the location of the road, the public acquire simply the right of way over the soil, the bare right of passage and its incidents, nothing more. (Deaton vs. Polk county, 9 Iowa, 594; trustees, etc., vs. the Auburn etc., R. R. Co., 3 Hill N. Y., 567; Sir John Lade vs. Shepherd, 2 Strange, 1004; Mayor, etc., vs. Ward 1 Wils., 110, 111.)

The property or freehold still remains in the owner of the land; how completely so, the cases last cited, with others there referred to, striking illustrate.

This question has arisen in several cases, and, among others, in Pipkins vs. Wynns, before recited, 2 Drew. law 40 27, and which overruled Rayner vs. Dowdy, 1 Murph., 279. Speaking of this subject, Henderson, Ch. J., says: "For the use and purposes of a highway it (the highway) is the sovereign's—the public's—for all other purposes it is the former proprietor's. The right of using it as a landing place for a ferry has never been taken from him; and although there is scarcely a perceptible difference between stepping from a boat on the land and stepping from land to land, yet that has never been taken from the former proprietor for such purposes, as he has never been compensated for the right limited as above stated of transportine persons across the water course, as that was not considered when the price of taking the land for a highway was fixed, and although it is of little value without the franchise, yet the ownership of the land gives him the preferable right to call for the franchise when the ferry becomes necessary. This right is valuable, for unless there are good reasons to the contrary, the sovereign must grant it to the owner, as sovereigns are bound to be just. If it be asked what is to be done if the owner of land, where a ferry is necessary, refuses to receive the franchise, it is answered to pay him for the land and grant it to another. Let it not be taken for a road and used as a ferry. It was accordingly held that compensation must be made to the owner of the ferry for the use of the soil for the ferry right, although there is a public road leading to the river on both sides."

And such is substantially the decisions in Tennessee. (Memphis vs. Overton, 3 Yerg., 387., and in Pennsylvania.) Thus in Chambers vs. Furey, 1 Yeates (1792), 167, it was decided that the dedication or laying out of ground as a public road gave no right to the defendants, the owners of a ferry, to land upon or receive freight from the plaintiff's freehold on the banks of a navigable river without his consent. That the owner of a ferry has no right to land his passengers or boat on a public highway without the consent of the owner of the soil. See also, Cooper vs. Smith, 9 S. and R., 31 (1822), not even tit was held in a subsequent case) at the terminus of a highway between high and low water mark. Chess vs. Manoun, 3 Watts, 219 (1834); and see Bird vs. Smith, 8 Id., 434; also the thoroughly considered case of Pearsall vs. Post, 20 Wend., 111-131, in which the doctrine of the Pennsylvania cases above cited is approved. There is a dictum contra per Bailey, J., in Peter vs. Kendal, 6 Barn. & Cress., 703.

Whether the decision in Chess vs. Manoun, above cited, is reconcilable with M'Manus vs. Carmichael, 3 Iowa, 1, is a question of some difficulty. See on this subject Prosser vs. Davis, infra.

Without committing ourselves to the entire correctness of all the positions taken in these cases, which we have referred to as illustrating the subject, we feel free in holding:

1. That the dedication or taking of land for a public highway does not, in cases where the owner retains the fee, and the public have only an easement, deprived such owner of his preferable right to a ferry, if one is established.

2. That a ferry license to a stranger will not authorize him against the consent of the owner, or without compensating him therefor, to use the terminal of such highway, certainly above high water mark, (see on this point Prosser vs. Davis, infra), for the purpose of fastening boats and of receiving and discharging freight and passengers. Such a use is not a public use, so much as it is a use by the licensee or holder of the franchise for his own gain and advantage. Like the use of an ordinary road for railroad purposes, such a use for ferry purposes would be an additional burden or servitude for which compensation must be made to the owner. Milburn vs. Cedar Rapids, etc., 12 Iowa, 246, 259. Forcibly illustrative of this question, see Mahon vs. R. R. Co., 24 N. Y., 658; Carpenter vs. R. R. Co., 24 Id., 655; Wager vs. R. R. Co., 25 Id., 526; Bissell vs. New York Central Railway company, 23 Id., 61; Fletcher vs. Auburn and Syracuse Railway company, 25 Wend., 462; Davis vs. Mayor, 14 N. Y., 526; Williams vs. New York Central Railway company, 16 Id., 97-106; reviewing Chief Justice Gibson's opinion, contra, in Philadelphia vs. R. R. Co., 6 Wharf., 25; and see where owner parts with fee, Aldrich vs. Wallace, 8 Dana, (Ky.), 289; 16 N. Y., 97, arguendo, Wager vs. Troy Union Railroad company, 25 New York, 526-533.

This decision was approved by the same court in the case of Prosser vs. Davis, 18 Ia., 267, and it is there held that on application of the riparian owner the proprietor of a ferry will be enjoined from landing his boat on the lands of such owner that has not been condemned to that use and the owner compensated therefor.

It follows therefore that we are of the opinion that the court below erred in not granting the injunction as prayed for by appellant. It will be borne in mind that appellee did not claim to be licensed by the commissioner's court of Cooke county to operate a public ferry at the terminus of this road, but only claimed the right to operate a private ferry regulating his own tolls; he being at the time a citizen of the Indian Territory, and we are therefore not called upon to decide whether or not the condemnation of the land for the purpose of a public road, since article 4436 of our revised statutes has been in force, will authorize the operation of a public ferry in connection therewith under a license from the commissioner's court of the proper county. This last named article after authorizing a riparian owner to operate a public ferry with the consent of the owner of the land on the opposite shore, provides: "If such consent can not be obtained he may apply to the commissioner's court for the establishment of a public road from said opposite shore and said court shall act on said application as in other cases."

In the case of Tugwell & Madison vs. Eagle Pass Ferry company, 74 Texas, 489, our supreme court strongly intimates, if it does not decide that the condemnation of a public road from such opposite shore, would, under this statute, authorize the owner of such public ferry to land his boat upon the land so condemned.

In this case we only decide that the operator of a private ferry can not, without a license from the proper commissioner's court, land his boat without the consent of the riparian proprietor upon his land even where it has been condemned for the purpose of a public road under our statute.

As to the establishing of the estate and rights acquired by condemnation proceedings for a public use in this state does not extend beyond the purpose for wich the condemnation was made, see O'Neal vs. The City of Sherman, 77 Texas, 182; Lyon vs. McDonald, 78 Texas, 71.

For the error above indicated let that part of the judgment of the court below which refuses the injunction prayed for by appellant Buford against the defendant Smith be reversed and here rendered granting such injunction, and in all other respects let the judgment rendered by the court below be affirmed. The costs of this appeal to be paid by appellee.

HEAD, Associate Justice.

RICHARD MANSFIELD.

Mr. Richard Mansfield, who is in many of the best aspects of stage art the foremost actor of our day, will appear at Greenwall's opera house on Wednesday evening, in the brilliant comedy "Beau Brummell."

Mr. Mansfield's impersonation is a creation in the highest sense. He has had no predecessor; no one to even suggest a thought, not even a tradition to build upon, and with luminous clearness he has brought into existence a wonderfully clear cut character. The polished man of society and the hero of romance are curiously blended in Brummell, with his thorough self-poise, polished coolness, unshaken self possession, biting sarcasm and colossal impudence. In the pathetic climax of the play Mr. Mansfield is exquisitely touching. Brummell is depicted with his mind failing, in abject poverty, as with his mind wondering he lives over again the splendor of his time of prosperity. Self-contained, ceremonial, elegant, courtly, magnificent as if still a dispenser of prodigal hospitality, and yet through it all, pathetic, with a profound and heart-breaking pathos not readily described in words.

Mr. Mansfield will have an audience limited in numbers only by the capacity of the theater. He will present "Beau Brummell" here with all the variety of stage detail and embellishment which he displayed in New York.

COMING SOUTH.

Washington, Feb. 6—Mrs. James G. Blaine will shortly leave Washington for a few weeks. Her destination has not yet been decided upon, but it is probable she will go to some southern resort. Her health is fairly good, considering the long physical strain to which she has been subjected for so many weeks in consequence of her assiduous watch at the bedside of Mr. Blaine. She has been the recipient of many invitations from friends in different sections of the country urging her to visit them, but has not accepted any of the offers.

A COMMON SENSE REMEDY.

In the matter of curatives what you want is something that will do its work while you continue to do yours—a remedy that will give you no inconvenience nor interfere with your business. Such a remedy is Allcock's Porous Plaster. These plasters are not an experiment; they have been in use for over thirty years, and their value has been attested by the highest medical authorities, as well as by testimonials from those who have used them. They require no change of diet and are not affected by wet or cold. Their action does not interfere with labor or business: you can toil and yet be cured while hard at work. They are so pure that the youngest, the oldest, the most delicate person of either sex can use them with great benefit.

Beware of imitations and do not be deceived by misrepresentations. Ask for Allcock's, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

A SURE CURE FOR LA GRIPPE.

Knifley, Ky., June 9, 1890.

Gentlemen:—Your Microbe Killer that I received in February last did positively cure me of the la grippe. Many thanks. THOS. HAGAN.

Mr. Hagan writes us under date of April 3, 1892, hat he has passed though two epidemics of la grippe, but escaped them both.

AS A GENERAL PANACEA.

Mrs. Chauncy Covell of Sheridan, Ill., says:—"I have seen the Microbe Killer used and tested in cases of erysipelas, rheumatism, inflamed eyes, St. Vitus dance, female weakness, catarrh of the head and lungs and other diseases, and watched the results. In every case it worked like a charm, and in no case proved a failure. One girl had the St. Vitus dance so bad that she could scarcely walk, but she was entirely cured."

DYNAMITE

HANDLED IN A CARELESS MANNER BY A FERRYMAN

On Red River Causes a Terrific Explosion That Will Result in Several Deaths—The House Destroyed.

Sherman, Tex., Feb. 6.—(Special.)—The news of a terrible explosion reached this city this evening. It occurred at Brown's ferry on Red river, northwest of Sherman.

Joe Sebastain, the owner of the ferry, had employed dynamite to remove some boulders and trees that had accumulated during an overflow. Dave Brewer and Billy Denton were at Sebastain's house yesterday in the same room with Mrs. Sebastain's three children, and while handling some of the deadly explosive, Sebastain dropped some of it on the stove. The report that followed was terrific. The house was demolished and what remained caught fire. The neighbors came to their rescue, and by hard work saved all inside from a horrible death, although several will likely die.

Dave Brewer's eyes are burned and his cheek is blown off, besides having other burns, which may prove fatal.

Mrs. Sebastain and three children are all bruised and burned.

Sebastain's left hand was blown entirely off. He and Brewer are lying insensible. The clothes of the former were torn from his body.

Denton's wounds are not so painful.
