LONDON WILL SUFFER.

Anarchists in the Big City Are Becoming Brazen.

SEVERAL MEETINGS YESTERDAY.

A Study of Explosive Chemicals Advised

By Several of the Speakers and the Use of Dynamite Openly Urged. The House of Lords Denounced—Curious Visitors.

By Associated Press.

London, Feb. 18.—Crowds of curious persons swarmed in Greenwich park today, packed the terrace in front of the celebrated observatory, and filled all the other elevated portions of the popular resort for Londoners, from which was obtainable so extensive a view over the river. The day was fine and cool. Stakes dotted the ground where portions of the dynamited body of Anarchist Bourdin had been found. All of the stakes were in line with the spot where the body was discovered. At the post mortem examination a dozen pieces of metal, similar in their contents to the bombs used by Bourdin, were produced.

The widely announced meeting of the Autonomic club under the auspices of the International Workers' group was attended by only fifteen persons, and four-fifths of these were foreigners. The speakers who had been announced to address the meeting did not appear. Finally, after a wait of two hours, Gibbons of the Commonweal group arrived and made a speech in the course of which he urged the manifest efforts to right the wrongs they complained of.

He held up Vaillant, Pallas and other martyrs as worthy of his hearers emulation. Dynamite, he said, were ready to sacrifice their lives in the good cause. He was himself perfectly prepared to do so. They had nothing to live for, but were simply slaves of the capitalists. Speeches, he added, were useless and physical force was necessary. When the government heard Mr. Acquith, he said, abandoned passing laws in time for workmen to the people, the latter would recommence the manufacture of bombs.

The speaker advised workers to read books upon chemistry, which they would find in the public libraries and learn the use of chemicals.

Other speeches of similar tone, but in foreign languages, were made to the assembly, which numbered only eighty people. These made up in enthusiasm for the smallness of the gathering and cheered wildly at every opportunity the sentiments of the leaders.

Many detectives in the citizen's clothing were present and scattered in all parts of the meeting place. This may have had a good effect, for outside of threatening language, the meeting was in every respect an orderly one.

Foreign arrivals are being closely watched by the police at all cleared ports.

Four thousand persons assembled in Trafalgar Square today in answer to a call for a manifestation against the house of lords for destroying the clauses in the Parish councils bill, which called for the reformation of the counties vestries. The meeting, with a show of feeling, adopted resolutions condemning the house of lords for its action in the matter. The speakers were loudly cheered time and again in the course of remarks. There were there Joseph Arch, Dr. Charles K. D. Tanner, the Irish Nationalist, and W. H. Wilson, Dadabhai Naoroji, the well known Bombay member, and five others, members of the house of commons.

Joseph Arch said that Lord Salisbury had done a wonderful service when he had made the rope wherewith to hang the lords and put the rope in the hands of his opponents. The meeting also passed resolutions declaring the house of lords to be a mischievous and useless institution, and demanding that it should be abolished forthwith.

A clause of the amendment which came in for a vigorous condemnation was that moved by Lord Balfour Burleigh to prevent the application of Irish to prevent the application of special provisions of the Bill to the London vestries, on the ground that the vestries had been taken wholly by surprise by the government proposals affecting them.

Lord Kimberly, on the part of the government, opposing the amendment, said that he saw no reason why the house of lords should abstain from reforming the vestries. All that the government proposed to do was to assimilate the franchise, that for the election district councils in other localities, abolish the qualification now required for registrants, and apply the ballot act and corrupt practices act in these cases.

Lord Salisbury in answer to Lord Kimberly declared that it was only when the house of commons had become exhausted and reduced in its numbers that the government suddenly conceived the desire to reform the vestries without giving either to those bodies themselves or to the people of London generally any opportunity of examining into the nature of the changes proposed, or into their necessity. The amendment carried, 107 votes to 26.

"JIG'S UP, BOYS."

"Take Care of Mr. Wife and Children." Three Men Killed.

Bellaire, Ohio, Feb. 18.—A terrible wreck occurred on the Wheeling and Lake Erie road, one mile west of here, this afternoon. The local freight, bound west, and light engine No. 28, east bound, collided with fearful results. John Council, engineer, and R. W. McMullen, fireman on the light engine, were killed instantly. The fireman and engineer on the local saved themselves by jumping.

Head Brakeman Bruce Johnson on the local was buried under the debris. When freed and willing hands dug him out he said: "Boys, the jig is up with me; take care of my wife and children," and died with a smile on his face. The wreck occurred in the face of the worst blizzard this section has ever experienced. The damage will be enormous, as both engines are ruined and fifteen or twenty cars smashed into kindling wood. All the victims lived at Newark, Ohio, to which place the bodies were sent.

MEDICAL EDITORS IN ATLANTA.

By Associated Press.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 18.—A medical editorial party who have been taking in the Piedmont region, and who are guests of the Seaboard Air Line, arrived on a special train at 6:30 p. m. yesterday. Drs. Westmoreland, Howell and Brand will, with a committee of citizens, receive them. His honor, Mayor Broyles, was on the reception committee and welcomed the visitors.

A banquet was served at the Commercial club, and social greetings continued until a late hour. Today the physicians attended the various churches, some of them hearing Rev. G. R. Monnette of London, and other eloquent divines of this city. One party, under Dr. Westmoreland, lunched at the Driving club, and others elsewhere. The party leaves tomorrow for Wilmington. Their report will duly appear in the medical journals.

THE CALUMET'S CREW.

By Associated Press.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 18.—The steamer City of Birmingham arrived safely from New York with four survivors of the Calumet Club, wrecked off Hatteras Wednesday. Capt. Wainwright, three officers and a colored cook were saved. Mate Charles Weaver was washed overboard and drowned. The steamer Calumet, which he commanded, was on her way to Baltimore from New York.

DEATHS.

C. T. DAUGHERTY.

Special Dispatch.

Denison, Tex., Feb. 18.—Postmaster Charles T. Daugherty died at his residence on West Gandy street early this morning of consumption. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment at Fairview cemetery.

Mr. Daugherty was born in Michigan, April 14, 1851, but came to Denison with his parents eighteen years ago. He was appointed postmaster under President Garfield, and was relieved upon the inauguration of President Cleveland. When the administration changed again Mr. Daugherty was reappointed by President Harrison. The position he held at the time of his death. He was administrator of the A. R. Collins estate, comprising a large amount of property, which is all, one worth in the neighborhood of $200,000. Mr. Daugherty was married in 1881, and leaves a wife and child.

O. E. O'MALEY.

Special Dispatch.

Denison, Tex., Feb. 18.—O. E. O'Maley, ticket agent of the Houston and Texas Central railroad, died this evening at 5 o'clock from blood poisoning after an illness of two weeks, aged 40 years. The funeral will take place tomorrow evening from the Catholic church.

O. E. O'Maley was born in 1854 at Rochester, N. Y. Ten years of his early life were spent as clerk of the circuit court of Chicago. Soon after he came to Texas, locating in Galveston, and entered the employment of Brown & Williams, contractors, who built the Houston and Texas Central. He served as their paymaster for some time, when O'Maley accepted the position as agent of the Central at Red River City, then the northern terminus of the road, two or three years ago. Some time afterward Red River City was abandoned and O'Maley came to Denison in the same capacity.

The deceased married in Rochester in 1876, and leaves a wife and five children. He was a devout Catholic, a man of wonderful tact, and although in the sixties, seemed active until his death. He possessed a large number of friends in the railroad circles of the state, for was a pioneer of Denison, and at one time had charge of the entire business of the road here.

CORSICANA BUDGET.

Special Dispatch.

Corsicana, Texas, Feb. 18.—Memorial services were held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms at 4:30 this evening in commemoration of Mr. James T. Talley, deceased, an active member of the association. A large crowd of ladies and gentlemen, friends and acquaintances of the deceased young man, assembled in the room to witness the last rites to the memory of their young friend. The exercises were very impressive.

There are 107 children in the state orphans' home. Twenty-five more can be accommodated.

Work on the artesian well at the state orphans' home has been discontinued for the present. There is a flow of about 80,000 gallons of water a day. The board will take steps to protect the work in the corner of a few weeks.

The Gazette representative, speaking with one in a high position with the state orphans' home yesterday evening, learned of the vast importance of the present institution to accommodate the orphans of this great state. The gentleman said that the present buildings were not by far what they ought to be, and that the time was not far distant when Texas would have a body of men in the legislative halls that would give to the state such an institution as it was destined to have—one that was sufficiently large to accommodate the state orphanage, and not merely hold up to them the door of the institution, taking care to keep out the orphans of the state.

Policeman Cole and Deputy Marshal Mack Billon narrowly escaped a lively entertainment yesterday evening. Deputy Billon had arrested a man named Prickett for drunkenness and was taking him to the lock-up. Rick Holland, a friend of Prickett, followed the officers. Policeman Cole observed the movements of the trio and heard an altercation but he held off for his brother officer and followed and helped search the drunken prisoner to jail. When they arrived at the lock-up and the officers began to search Prickett, Holland presented his handcuffs and acting upon impulse, put his hand into his inside vest pocket, which Cole detected and said to Elliot: "That man has a gun." Elliot, who was standing near Holland, with his back partly turned to him, whirled around and grabbed the man, who, upon the act of drawing a 32 Colt's revolver, he had secured the chief and entering into threw him to the floor, and after a desperate struggle took the gun away from him.

The infant son of W. H. Anderson fell against a stove at the father's residence and was terribly burned about the face.

PREPARING TO STRIKE.

By Associated Press.

Wheeling, W. Va., Feb. 18.—The plate mill men of the Riverside iron works held a meeting last night to take some action on the proposed cut in wages, which will average about 15 per cent. The cut will affect from about 300 men. It was decided to work at the reduction until March 10, and in the meantime to perfect the organization of all the employees of the works. It is expected that the employees of the entire works will band together so that if the plate mill men strike next month some 2000 more will be affected.

SUBORNING WITNESSES.

G. F. B. HOWARD WILL BE TRIED ON THIS CHARGE.

THE TRIAL BEGINS TODAY.

Four Witnesses in Jail Charged With Perjury, and Will be Tried Also. They Have Confessed—History of the Case.

Special Dispatch.

Jackson, Tenn., Feb. 18.—All is excitement here pending the reopening of the United States court here tomorrow and the convening of the Federal grand jury. The case of G. F. B. Howard will be considered on charge of suborning witnesses, and the four witnesses who are now in jail on charge of perjury will also be before that body. They are Edward H. Brockway, of Rochester, N. Y., William J. Gleason of New York city, Edgard Smith of England and George Heatley of London and New South Wales. They were witnesses for the defense in the last Howard trial, and upon conviction of defendant were arrested on charge of perjury, and have been held awaiting the action of the grand jury. As the district attorney has the written confessions of each, they will doubtless be indicted on the charges preferred.

Howard's attorneys will use every method possible to prevent his from being brought back from the Columbus pen for the trial. Such a proceedure would deeply humiliate him, as he has been shaven of his magnificent flowing beard and shorn of his beautiful head of hair.

The trial and conviction of Rev. G. F. F. Howard for using the United States mail for fraudulent purposes is one of the most remarkable cases ever before the courts of this or any other country. The witnesses came from the ranks of the lowly and from diplomatic circles. Is interested every state in the Union. Officials from New York and London took part in the trial, and Robert Lincoln, United States minister to Great Britain, under President Harrison, was one of the witnesses for the prosecution. Clerks, letter carriers and postal authorities from New York and Washington gave their testimony against the accused. The British government sent a special messenger to Attorney Hawkins with a grip sack full of documents from the archives of Great Britain, which were used effectively.

In the trial there were romance, pathos and tragedy interwoven in a remarkable manner, and many phases of life were revealed.

During an interval in the trial Howard visited Memphis and was interviewed in a manner that was calculated to throw dust in the eyes of his persecutors and then went to New York so quietly that no one knew he was out of the state.

In his argument before the jury he had drawn a most pathetic scene of the condition of the unemployed of New York and London. These people he pictured as driven to crime by their poverty and want, and characterized them as left on the shirts of civilization, indescribably alone in the labyrinths of the great cities. For five dollars they could be hired to swear away the life of any man or the virtue of any woman. This speech was at the close of the first trial, which resulted in a hung the jury. Throughout his speech he insinuated that the United States government has hired their witnesses from the ranks of the unemployed to break down and prosecute him, who was posing as the benefactor of mankind.

The confessions given by Brockway, Gleason, Smith and Heatly show that he did the very thing he accused the United States authorities of.

He went to New York advertised for clerks to come to Memphis to work in a law office, two American and two English. They were engaged to work for from $7 to $10 a week, and were not told of the deep laid scheme until they were firmly in the trap—away from home and friends and without money.

Brockway was made the cashier of the shrewd swindler to take the other checkmate into the bag. When they were all in the trap safely then he put the word into their mouths. Howard had been proven to be E. Ross, Joseph Leger and William Lord Moore, the same person in all countries, but bearing different names. It was to prove this false that he secured the four witnesses. Edmund H. Brockway was transformed into the office man for Howard & Langdon, lawyers and publishers of New York. He swore that he went to E. Ross frequently to collect a bill for advertising.

Tom Gleason was made to appear as E. Ross' office boy, but his knowledge of New York was so superficial that his testimony was very rangy.

Edward Smith had addressed envelopes for William Lord Moore in London, and George Heatley, the capitalist from New South Wales, had attempted to enter into partnership with William Lord Moore. His bank book showed enormous balances in the land of gold, besides large estates in England. The London officials, however, took him for a groom or a valet because he ended his answers with "sir."

Edmund H. Brockway testified that he was originally from Rochester, N. Y., and that his parents lived at the home of his parents on Penn street. He swore that he went to New York and was stopping on Sands street, Brooklyn, and that his friend Gleason took him to Howard's office on Fulton street to secure employment, as he (Clarkson) was going to give him his place and go away. The sign on the door was Langdon & Howard, and the firm occupied the rooms. Mr. Langdon he described as a nonentity, who went south for his health, and afterward learned that he had died. Langdon & Howard had a law office and a newspaper office combined. The newspaper was the "Church Home and Star." It was for an advertisement in this paper that he called upon E. Ross. He failed to collect the money and called three or four times. E. Ross, he said, introduced the European Claim Agency, and he was located in the Merchants' building, now the Battery, in lower New York.

Edward Smith testified that he was a native of Surrey, England, and had been to America only three months.

He said he had been employed in London to address envelopes for William Lord Moore, who—as he was at 5 Bedford Road. Moore had failed to come up to his contract, and he left him after working for about two weeks.

He denied that Howard and Moore were the same, but claimed that Moore had a fair complexion and short beard.

George Heatley gave evidence that he was a native of West England, and came to America in July, 1893. He knew William Lord Moore in London, but declared he was not the same man as Howard.

Heatley testified that he had been in New South Wales for a considerable time, but had returned to England to take charge of a large estate left him by his uncle. He saw on his return an advertisement for a partner, and went to William Lord Moore's office in answer to this advertisement. He found him a large, fair-haired, smooth-faced man, but did not enter into partnership with him because he thought his place a fake. Moore had a claim agency, and his office was at Shepherd's Bush, on Uxbridge Road.

William J. Gleason testified that he was a native of New York, and had lived there a greater part of his life, and had worked for E. Ross in the Merchants' building as office boy. He then went on to testify as Brockway had, that E. Ross did not resemble Howard, but that he was gray-haired and slightly bald-headed, and that he had never seen Howard until he saw him in New York the day before coming south.

In his testimony he was positive there was only one elevator in the Merchants' building, when in truth there were two; and he also located the building on the wrong street and turned the wrong way in the hall, making it patent to every one that he was totally unfamiliar with the locality. He further said it was his business to clean up and care for the office, but the court had in its possession a copy of the contract with the janitor of the building, which serves to furnish excuses to keep all the rooms in the building in order.

MRS. HARRISON.

HER PORTRAIT WILL BE HUNG IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

Gift of the Patriotic Daughters of the American Revolution, of Which Society Mrs. Harrison Was President.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 18.—To the interesting portraits which hang on the walls of the rooms of state in the White House will be added this week a fine picture of Mrs. President Harrison. The donors are members of the Patriotic Order of Daughters of the American Revolution, who will meet here for their third annual congress the last three days of the week, assembling on Washington's birthday.

Most of the former mistresses of the White House have received official recognition from the government by permission given that their portraits should be hung in the executive mansion. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union presented some years ago a painting of Mrs. Hayes, one of the most distinguished exemplars of its principles. Mrs. Harrison was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, holding its highest office and presiding over its deliberations while she was in the White House. President Cleveland has written the society, signifying his willingness to accept the portrait.

It was painted by Huntington of New York, is 6x7 feet and is regarded by the critics as an exceptionally fine work. It represents Mrs. Harrison at the age of thirty years, attired in a brocaded gown of cerulean blue, with a train held in her left hand.

The congress of the society will be called to order Thursday, February 22, Stevenson, who will deliver an address of welcome.

The response will be made by Mrs. James Rich, state regent for Wisconsin, by President-General Mrs. Vice-President Harrison will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies, including music by the National Marine band and singing of the original hymn, "Our Westerland."

The proceedings on Friday and Saturday will be devoted to the business of the society.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Stevenson will give a reception at the Normandie to the congress and visitors. On the evening of February 21 the National society will give a reception at the Albert house to congress and resident members of the society.

This is one of the largest patriotic organizations of women in the world, numbering 148 chapters and 4753 members and thirty-four states. The banner state is Connecticut, which has twenty-three regents and 670 members. The second on the list is Pennsylvania with sixteen regents and 345 members, and the third is New York with twelve chapters and 500 members. The national officers are: President general, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson; vice-president in charge of organization, Mrs. Ellen Hardin Walworth; recording secretary general, Mrs. Eugene Washington; corresponding secretary general, Mrs. Howard Claflin; treasurer general, Mrs. Margarite Pedine; registrar general, Mrs. Charles Sayre Johnson and Mrs. Rosa Wright Smith; historian general, Mrs. Henry Bleecker; chaplain general, Mrs. E. T. Holbrook; surgeon general, Mrs. Mary Desha.

LATE RAILROAD NEWS.

ENGINEERS ACCEPT REDUCTION.

By Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Last evening the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway engineers and a committee representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers reached an agreement under which the engineers accept the reduction of 10 per cent reduction in wages. The new contract takes effect today. Tomorrow the conference between the railway company and the committee representing the conductors, trainmen and firemen will be held under the agreement with the engineers. The reduction continues in force until the earnings of the company permit a restoration of wages, when another conference will be held.

LEGISLATIVE FORECAST.

The Senate Will Hear Some More Hawaiian Debate.

THE ROAD FOR THE TARIFF BILL

Will Also be Cleared Ready for the Great Debate.

Bland's Bill Will Monopolize the Attention of the House—The Tariff Bill Will Not be Reported to the Full Committee Tuesday—Minor News at the Capital.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 18. — Senators Daniel, Cullery and White of California, have given notice of speeches on the Hawaiian resolutions for this week, and it is probable that a number of senators will speak upon the subject before next Saturday.

There will be no effort to have the resolution disposed of during the week, as there will also be to get Senator Stewart's bond resolution off the calendar. There will probably be some speeches on this question also. Indeed the senate will make the work as far as possible clearing up week, so as to make way for the tariff debate, which will necessarily prevent the consideration of less important subjects when it is once begun. The special orders for the week include the consideration of the pensions and McGarrahan bills.

TARIFF BILL DELAYED.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The Democratic members of the senate committee on finance say they will not be able to report the tariff bill to the full committee on Tuesday next, as they had anticipated. One of the members of the sub-committee, which has had the bill under consideration, said today that he would not attempt to say when the bill could be reported. "I shall be very well satisfied," he said, "if the bill is in shape to be reported by the beginning of next week."

The committee was very hopeful just before adjournment Friday night of being able to fulfill Chairman Voorhees' promise to get the bill in readiness for the full committee this week, but after putting in a long day's work at the close of the week, given up almost exclusively to the bill, the members found it still in a chaotic condition and were compelled to admit to themselves, as they put later to outside inquiries, that the task they had set themselves had been unusually of accomplishment.

The reason for the postponement is discovered in the fact that the work of satisfying the Democratic senators has been found a difficult one, and the construction of the bill that was sure to be accepted by the senate is an undertaking requiring many changes of purpose and alterations of the figures first made. When the sub-committee began work they had before them the draft of the bill upon which it was believed it would be an easy matter to secure an agreement, but this bill has been changed in some respects several times, and has become so worn from handling and erasures that it has become necessary to destroy the original copy and replace it with a new one.

There is a great demand for concessions on the part of senators on minor items, and many of the most important features in the bill are entirely unsettled upon. Sugar is included in this list, and it looks as if its fate would be almost the last question to be determined by the sub-committee.

IN THE HOUSE.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The fight over the silver seigniorage bill will be resumed in the house tomorrow, and Mr. Bland is confident there will be a quorum on hand to order the previous question either tomorrow or Tuesday. Once the necessary quorum is obtained, and that is only a question of time, as the opponents of the measure have practically abandoned hope of defeating the bill, it will be brought to a vote, if need be, by special order of the committee on rules, the speaker having promised a special rule if the emergency demands it. On Wednesday the Joy-O'Neill contested election case will be on, and after it is disposed of, the Cobb-Whatley case and the Kinglen-Hilborn case may follow. If not, the remainder of the week will probably be devoted to the appropriation bills, the fortifications bill being first.

AN INTERESTING CLAIM.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 18.—An interesting case has been referred to the house by the committee of war claims, which recommends that Mrs. Flora A. Darling—who was arrested at New Orleans in 1861 by the military authorities of the traveling under safe conduct, signed by Gen. N. P. Banks, be awarded $2000 damages. Mrs. Darling was the wife of Confederate Brigadier-General Edward I. Darling, and was a New Hampshire woman. She had gone to New Orleans to attend her husband during his last illness, and was starting home when arrested. Ten thousand dollars in Confederate notes, $7000 in notes of the Louisiana and Tennessee banks and valuable jewelry which she carried were confiscated. Mrs. Darling's claim was for $15,000, but the committee ruled out the Confederate bonds, excluding the claim for the state bank notes and the jewelry.

WOMAN SUFFRAGISTS.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The Woman suffragists had service today under the auspices of the convention. Rev. Anna A. Shaw of Philadelphia conducted the morning and delivered the sermon. Julia Ward Howe recited her battle hymn of the republic and a responsive service was read by Miss Yates.

There was a large attendance this evening. Many of the pastors in the city were occupied by ladies of the convention. Among those who spoke in the various churches were Carrie Lane Chapman, Ellen Dietrick, Martha McClellan Brown and Miss Shaw. Tomorrow the annual election of officers will take place and probably all the old officers will be reelected. The remainder of the time will be spent in discussing the coming campaign for a constitutional amendment in Kansas.

THE FIRE RECORD.

A BRICK MILL.

By Associated Press.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 18.—The brick mill of the Cleveland Brewed Co. company at Warren, Ohio, the second plant in the country, was destroyed by fire today. The building, stock and machinery were valued at $35,000, but the loss will hardly reach that amount, as about $10,000 worth of coal and one corrugated building were saved. The insurance is $16,000. The water supply was inadequate, and the firemen could do nothing.

SPORTING.

NASHVILLE RACE MEET.

By Associated Press.

Nashville, Feb. 18.—The prospects for the great rounding meeting at the Cumberland park next spring are brighter than ever before. A satisfactory settlement of the betting privilege in the Western Bookmakers' association has just been consummated, and the club has also decided to add an extra day, making eight in all.

The Cumberland stake, for 3-year-olds, one mile and a furlong, will be run April 27, the opening day. The estimated value of this stake is $4000.

The Kickoo, a handicap for 3-year-olds and upwards, seven furlongs, has eighty entries, $1500.

The Dixie, a handicap for 3-year-olds and upwards, one mile and a furlong, has sixty-five entries, $1000 added.

In the Maxwell house stake for 3-year-olds fillies, $1000 added, one mile, there are sixty-five of the best fillies in the West.

The Thora stake for fillies, 2 years old, $2000 added, four furlongs, has ninety-seven entries.

There are eighty-six nominations to the Iroquois stakes for 2-year-old colts, $1000 added, four furlongs.

The brood mare stake, nominations to which closed August, 1893, has forty eligible to start.
