FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1913.

Local automobilists are doing too much cussing about the village with these millices on soft. It is an ordinance regulating and one that is prohibited in many Massachusetts towns and cities.

The Lyndonville Union grumbles because the abolition of others made in the payroll of only about $70,000 in the grand list of the city of Montpelier, and says that it is the same throughout the state doesn't seem any better than that the returns of the new tax law will be a bonfire. We are not sure about the soundness of the Union's assumption. A gain of $70,000 in the grand list means a gain of $700,000 in the amount of taxable property, and if the assessors have been, reasonable with a few persons of the sorts like that in Brattleboro, it can not fairly be said that this bonfire at the list is not working out about as predicted. If we remember aright, nobody claimed that the grand lists of the state would be "increased many millions" as the Union states, it was the amount of taxable property.

Southern real estate men are giving serious consideration to a proposition to build 2,000 model cottages in the eastern part of that city at a cost of $750,000,000. The plan proposed is the formation of a joint stock company to do the building, in which the bulk of the stock would be held by the promoters, though small investments would be welcomed. The purpose is to make it possible for working men and those of small salaries to build homes for themselves through the company or buy them on easy terms. It was made clear at a recent conference on the proposition that the "three-dollar" was to be scrupulously excluded from the scheme. The plan would not be altogether an experiment. It has been successfully carried out in Los Angeles, Cal., and Dayton, O., and its exploitation in other cities promises reasonable profit, combined with a large measure of public benefit. In fact, it might well be worked out on a smaller scale in towns the size of Brattleboro.

An explanation of the steady increase in the price of gasoline and kerosene may be discovered in a recent announcement of the Standard Oil company of a dividend of 400 per cent which is to take the form of an issue of $800,000,000 new capital stock, which will make the capital of this company $875,000,000. At the meeting which declared the 400 per cent dividend 121,580 of the 150,000 shares were represented. The New York Sun's news columns show that there have been seven large "melons" cut by Standard Oil subsidiaries recently. The Standard Oil company of Indiana declared a dividend of 2200 per cent, the Standard Oil company of Nebraska paid 58.43 per cent, the Standard Oil company of Kansas 100 per cent, the South Penn Oil company 400 per cent, the Continental Oil company 900 per cent, and the Solar Refining company 300 per cent. Who would not be a Standard Oil stockholder, regardless of the state the company is incorporated in?

The need of better fire protection in the southern part of the village increases with the town's growth in that direction. There is no doubt that Brattleboro is already spread over too large an area to expect adequate fire protection from one central station. As far back as two years ago Chief Engineer H. W. Sanders said on this subject: "I desire to impress upon the voters the necessity of locating a fire station or hose house in the vicinity of South Main street near Pine street. That section of the village is not sufficiently protected. It will be remembered that I made this recommendation a year ago." Since the early part of 1911 hose house No. 6 at the foot of South Main street has not been used by the fire department. In view of this fact and the need aforementioned, it would seem a wise thing for the village to sell its abandoned property and make arrangements for the location for a new fire station in a section of the village where it will be of real service. With the developments that are going on in the vicinity of the railroad station it ought not to be difficult to get a good price for the land occupied by the present South Main street hose building — enough, in fact, so that the taxes thereon would amount to considerably more than the rental of the building. This is a matter that might well come up for consideration at the forthcoming special village meeting.

The Bondville Snow Roller.

(Bellows Falls Times.)

With an irony that may make the authorities of the town of Bondville squirm, the Brattleboro Reformer verges jocularly to find place said on this week's letter last week. "Not every town is flush enough with money that it can pay up nearly $100 in the fall to hire snow rollers repaired, nor can it go back on the bills and have one in the run to fall to pieces." In the early seventies have been drawn back to "fall to pieces" the "iron fathers of the town commissioners are undoubtedly of such, for it is a common talking in Vermont and New England farmers put on property protect their wagons and farm tools, and the situation in Bondville is no worse than it is on many farms and in many towns throughout the city states. During the flood last March hundreds of dollars' worth of farm vehicles floated down the river past this town and broken pieces of farm utensils were continually passing in the river. It demonstrated that many farmers the entire length of the Connecticut river valley and on the tributaries had made the common mistake of leaving their property to the mercy of the elements. A little care on the part of farmers would save many dollars at a year. What would an agriculturist think of a dry-goods merchant who keeps his display of silk gowns suspended on wires in front of his store during a rain storm? That merchant would be the object of general derision throughout the country, but nothing is said of the farmer who neglects his farm tools and is careless with his property. The fault is too common to attract attention.

Monarch

Light Touch

THE extremely light action of the Monarch Typewriter endears it to all operators who use it.

The typist who takes pride in her position finds great satisfaction in being able to turn out as much work, and as good work, per hour, toward the end of the working day as during the morning. Other conditions being the same, she can always do this on a Monarch. There is for users of this machine. The mechanical reason for the Monarch light touch is found in the action of the Monarch type bar, an exclusive and patented feature which gives this remarkably light touch.

"No Three O'Clock Fatigue"

We would remind the business man that Monarch light touch means more work and better work, because less physical strength is expended by the operator. Therefore, cost per folio is reduced, making the Monarch a business economy.

SEND FOR MONARCH LITERATURE

Then try the Monarch, and be convinced that Monarch merit rests in the machine itself, not merely in what we tell you about it.
