STABBED IN NEW YORK CITY

"Bridgey" Webber, Well-Known Gambler Assaulted This Morning

IMPORTANT WITNESS IN TRIAL OF GUNMEN

Tried to Conceal His Identity But Was Unable to Do So — Police Making a Rigid Investigation Against Webber's Wishes.

NEW YORK, June 14.—"Bridgey" Webber, one of the four gamblers who testified against Police Lieut. Becker and the gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, another gambler, was stabbed in the shoulder shortly after midnight this morning under circumstances which he seemed loath to explain. Webber is in St. Vincent's hospital now, suffering from some pain and weak from the loss of blood, but he is expected to recover.

The stabbing occurred in East Eighth street, and Webber at first attempted to conceal his identity by walking away on the arm of a friend. He soon sank exhausted, however, and admitted to the police that he had been stabbed. He first stated that a small boy ran up behind him and plunged a penknife into his arm. Later he declared he did not know who did the stabbing and did not want to know. The police, however, are making a rigid investigation.

The wound in his right arm is not as painful as it has been, and while he still has some temperature Dr. Anderson, his attending physician, considers that he has improved. Owing to the danger of complications Mr. Staten is some distance from being on the road to complete recovery. Mrs. Staten is with him most of the time.

Attorney General R. E. Brown of Burlington, who is here, has conferred with Dr. Anderson and with others who are familiar with the shooting and has interested himself in the case generally.

DEFY POLICE INTERFERENCE

Thousands of Suffragetts at Funeral of Miss Emily Davison

LONDON SCENE OF IMPRESSIVE PARADE

Tribute to Victim of Derby Day Accident Takes Form of Big Procession of Women Dressed in White and Carrying Flowers.

LONDON, June 14.—Suffragettes militant and non-militant made elaborate preparations for the funeral today of Miss Emily Wilding Davison, who died of injuries received in interfering with the king's horse during the running of the Derby June 4. A special train brought the body from Epsom to Victoria station where a procession of nearly 6,000 women was organized to march it across the city through the principal streets to St. George's church, Bloomsbury, where the service was held.

Most of the women in the procession were white dresses with purple sashes and black hats or caps, and carried bouquets and wreaths of white flowers. Twenty bands furnished music for the funeral procession.

When Scotland Yard officials learned of the women's plans to march through the principal streets of the city they suggested that the parade take place in a quieter quarter, but the suffragettes became slightly indignant and announced that they would brook no police interference.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF BIRCH GIRL'S ESCAPADE

Watch Pawned by Woman Giving Name of Ruby Barber—Bill Taken From Roll Containing $80.

The Manchester Mirror and American of June 12 gives the following account of the escapade of Ina Birch of this town, reported in The Reformer yesterday:

Ina Birch of Brattleboro, Vt., was arrested this morning by Inspectors Hampston and Maher and locked up in the city prison, charged with the larceny of a $20 bill and a gold-filled watch belonging to Peter Guento, with whom she came to this city from the Vermont city about three weeks ago and has been living with at 72 Lake avenue.

"Her arrest was brought about through a complaint made to the police by Guento that the bill had been abstracted from his roll, containing $80, about a week ago, and that yesterday his watch was missing.

"The inspectors, while making their rounds of the South End beat shops this morning, found the watch. They learned that it had been pawned by a woman who answered the description given of the Birch woman and was gave the name of Ruby Barber.

"The inspectors, following this clue, arrested her at the Lake avenue room. After being taken to the station she, as the police says, admitted the theft.

"While on the way to the station she was observed to be fumbling about her pocket and on searching her find a strong odor of chloroform was noticed by the officers. A search of her pockets disclosed a bottle of the stuff as well as one about half full of cologne. On being asked why she had them she told the officers that she was intending to go to work with one and by taking a substance of the two.

CLAIM BRAKES WERE USELESS

Engineer's Evidence at Inquest Into Fatal Train Wreck at Stamford

WERE TOO WEAK TO REVERSE POWER

Coroner Asks to See Book in Which Engineer Doherty Entered Complaints Two Days Previous to New Haven Fatality—Other Employes Summoned

STAMFORD, Conn., June 14.—When the coroner's inquest into the fatal wreck on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad here Thursday was resumed today further evidence was given as to the efficiency of the coupling apparatus and general condition of the locomotive which dashed into the parlor car Sylvia, causing the death of six persons. Coroner Phelan ordered subpoenas issued for Fireman Charles J. Doherty, who yesterday he had written a complaint against the brakes Tuesday.

Engineer John Hanson, who was laid off the day before for running the train past a signal that had been given more than the usual signal, who had been ordered to be present today, was also ordered to be present tomorrow.

Declaring emphatically that the brakes had failed to respond properly, as he had tried to apply them, Fireman Charles J. Doherty of New Haven, said a message to the effect that the brakes were no good was sent by Engineer Hanson at Norwalk and because of that fact had ordered them sent to Stamford. When he came into this city and against him he gave the large engine full" said that that did not work to his other large the wheels turn.

That failing to stop the train he threw up the emergency valve and applied sand to the rails, but again did stop the "That was all I could do," he said. Pressing down completely settled for several minutes. When asked if he had tried to reverse his engine he replied that he did, but they were too stiff and he had to put on many to be been which he is in on Thursday he could have gotten it over a light have made things better, but did not think it would have avoided the collision.

In the midst of the examination of witnesses Coroner John J. Phelan turned suddenly to Lawyer Bernard L. Speck of the New Haven road, who was seated in the audience, with the questions "Is it true, Mr. Speck, that the wrecked parlor car, the Sylvia, was burned?" Mr. Speck replied that it was true. The car had been ordered burned by officials of the New Haven road. This was the regular procedure, he added.

Asked if the regular procedure before an inquest has been held he said the contrary.

"It is," replied Mr. Speck. "Unless the car in question is not materials to be responsible for the accident."

In response to further questioning by the coroner, Mr. Speck explained that the car belonged to the Pullman company and was a western car, but that it was so badly wrecked that when the wreckers came to remove it they had to tear the supports from apart to get it off the engine. It was simply a mass of wreckage, and the company officials ordered it burned up, he said. This was simply following the regular procedure of all companies. It was not necessary to wait for permission from the Pullman company. The railroad company, he said, had to bear the expense incurred.

The taking of testimony was then resumed. Among the other witnesses called were Fireman Barry Smith of the colliding engine, Thomas Dunn of New York city, conductor of the second section, and William A. Wilson of New York, baggagemaster on the second train. The testimony of Smith was corroborative of that of Doherty as to the air brakes and the efforts made by the engineer to avoid the collision. Conductor Dunn told briefly of the trip from New Haven and while he was unwilling to say definitely whether the brakes were working properly, because he had not sufficient technical knowledge on that point, he did say that it seemed that they were not responding as they should.

A MAJORITY FOR THE BILL

Administration Leaders Say Tariff Program Will Go Through

LONG CONSIDERATION WAS BENEFICIAL

Democrats Say Every Development Thus Far Has Had the Effect of Favoring the Administration Policies —Leaders in Jubilant Mood.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Administration leaders in the Senate were in a jubilant mood today over the prospects of the tariff bill. They unhesitatingly predicted a clear Democratic majority for the measure as it comes from the caucus, although admitting that the situation in the Senate was anything but satisfactory when the bill passed the house.

Leaders now contend that prolonged preliminary consideration of the measure had the effect of ironing out the rough places in party alignments and that every development thus far has been in favor of the administration policies.

BODY OF WOMAN NOT TO BE EXHUMED

Portion of Skull of Ipswich Strike Riot Victim Was Preserved by Examiner.

IPSWICH, Mass., June 14. — Exhumation of the body of Nicoletta Pandelopoulou, killed during the strike riot near the Ipswich Hosiery mill Tuesday, will not be necessary, it was learned today, as Medical Examiner Bailey has in his possession a portion of the victim's skull showing the course of the bullet which caused death. This part of the skull was removed by Dr. Bailey at the time of the inquest.

Persons connected with the defense of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll L. Pingree of Lowell and Nathan Hermanoff of Boston, Industrial Workers of the World leaders held on the charge of murdering the Pandelopoulou woman, had planned to petition District Attorney Atwill for permission to exhume the body in order that medical experts might trace the course of the bullet.

It was stated today that the bullet entered the left side of the head above the ear and took a backward course. The defense claims that this proves that the shot was not fired by persons in the upper windows of a tenement house as contended by the prosecution.

Strike conditions were unchanged today. No pickets were on the street and about 400 employes went to work. The hearing in the cases of 19 strikers charged with rioting was resumed in the district court this morning.
