AN UNPARDONABLE CRIME.

IF the sin of omission is to be gauged by what was left unsaid at last night's Democratic meeting the offense is grave enough to justify hanging, drawing and quartering the chief culprit. When Senator Pittman stood on the platform eulogizing the Democratic administration at Washington he knew that orders had gone forth drawing the fires from the smelter at Thompson and dismissing 200 men from employment. As a senator he knew he did nothing to protect this industry from extinction and he also must have realized that his place of duty was in Washington rather than in Nevada making stump speeches and boosting for a presidential second term. If he did not know he confesses a lamentable ignorance of what is going on in his home state or admits a superlative indifference to the consequences of his official neglect.

The copper industry is one of the chief sources of wealth. It is the mainstay of White Pine county and one of the great upbuilders of Lyon county where the production of copper has been steadily but slowly approaching the profit-making stage. The great interests controlling the manufacture of copper in White Pine county can afford to carry a limited surplus stock but the younger company in Lyon county has not been in the field long enough to accumulate a reserve fund of adequate proportions to enable it to draw from the surplus to tide over the financial crisis.

The loss of 200 wage-earners in a state like Nevada, where manufacturing is restricted to a few industries, means more than the loss of employment to a hundred times that number of men in any of the more populous eastern states. The southern senators threaten to block all other legislation unless the members vote for the issuance of $250,000,000 in bonds to carry over their surplus product. They stand manfully by their constituents and their conduct is deserving of the heartiest applause. They are not letting any opportunity slip by, but are using every influence at their command to bring about a consummation of their ardent wish. They do not hesitate to threaten, intimidate, browbeat and coerce congress into compliance with their wants. They are going the limit and are going to stay with the game as long as there is a fighting chance to gain something for their people. What's sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander. If the government can afford to issue bonds to keep the cotton planters from penury, why should not the same agency do something for the protection of the metal miner? There is nothing unreasonable in the proposition. Nevertheless, the metal miners of Nevada are likely to find their case lost by default of their two senators, who prefer playing politics in Nevada than paying attention to the wants of their constituents in Washington. Senator Smoot of Utah, is at his desk watching every movement of the southern senators. So is Senator Walsh of Montana. So is Senator Thomas, of Colorado. So are not the two senators from Nevada, whose presence would be so welcome by the men who are fighting for the interests of the miners.

Chief of Police W. B. Evans was not hamstrung by the political outlook when duty called him to the northern country to look after the interests of Tonopah menaced by a horde of I. W. W.'s. He obeyed the summons promptly and remained at the outpost waiting for the coming of the invaders with a stern resolve to see they behaved themselves and did not molest decent people. The officer deserves commendation for his strict devotion to duty and it is the devout wish of every citizen that other officers emulate his example when called on.

It might be well for the Aguascalientes peace conference not to intervene with the intentions of certain followers of Carranza at Vera Cruz to swoop down on the American outposts stationed in that vicinity. The lesson would be sufficient to deter the nation from thinking of making war on the United States and the engagement would serve to let off some of the grievances which the khaki-clad soldiery have been nursing ever since they were told not to shoot at the greasers.

It is unfortunate that California should have only two Senators and Nevada none in Washington in these closing days of the session, when the interests of these two mining states are at stake. Of course California has two of her senators on deck, as many as any other state, but her third one is just now campaigning in Nevada.—Gazette.

The Carson Appeal suggests thta Leonard B. Fowler, Democratic candidate for congress, is a Nevada product and complains that the Republican slogan "Nevada for Nevadans" should apply to Mr. Fowler. The voters will probably first inquire when Mr. Fowler came to Nevada from California.

If he bothers you with his senseless chatter about the war, it may shut him up to remind him that "allies" is not pronounced "alleys."

No more real bravery is required to face a dum-dum bullet than to swallow a ten-grain calomel capsule.

WHY THE NEW TAX?

Since the United States is not engaged in war the American people will scrutinize closely the war taxes which are about to be imposed by congress.

There is no chance that the taxes will be approved by the people in a cloud of patriotism. Marching troops will not distract the attention of the voters. Bands will not be present to drown the protests of those who are pinched by the taxes.

The people will want to know why they are being taxed. They will want to know whether such taxes are necessary, and whether they might not have been avoided by the practice of a little economy since the Democratic party came into power.

If there were any real issues which influenced the election of the Democrats aside from the split in the Republican party, they were the high cost of living and the pledge of economy.

The tariff for revenue only has proved a failure from a revenue-producing standpoint. Before the war began, imports had increased amazingly, but the revenue had fallen off.

If the new tariff cannot be defended as a revenue producer, its acceptance by any portion of the public is doubtful. Certainly it cannot be shown to have reduced the cost of living. Its effect on business and employment is already an issue in the congressional campaign.

By bringing forward a plan for war taxes, at a time when the United States is at peace, the Democratic party deliberately focuses attention upon extravagance and the failure of the tariff for revenue only. It suggests an inquiry as to the reason why economies have not been practiced, and why the tariff for revenue only has not produced the revenue.

Many of these issues might have been overlooked by the public if they had been left as abstract problems, but with a large proportion of the public feeling the pinch in the pocketbook some original thinking will be done at the polls.—Washington Post.
