KIDNAPED YOUTH IS PALO ALTO PUPIL

PALO ALTO, Calif., July 28.—Philip Thompson, 14-year-old American boy, captured by Mexican bandits and held for a ransom, attended school in Palo Alto until December of last year, when he left to rejoin his parents in Mexico City. His father, John West Thompson, is an alumnus of Stanford University, class of 1884. While attending school in Palo Alto the boy lived with his uncle, P. L. Thompson, an employe of the Southern Pacific. His uncle, who lives in Palo Alto, explained last night:

"I have wired my brother, John West Thompson, for details of the abduction. My brother is manager of the electric light company at Puebla, Mexico, but his family has been living in the capital. The boy's mother owns a ranch at Mayflorios, about 30 miles south of Mexico City, and he was probably enjoying his vacation on the plantation when the bandits kidnaped him."

REPTILES HELD AT LOW PRICES

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 28.—Jobbers' prices for reptiles, f. o. b. Los Angeles, quote rattlesnakes at 40 cents a pound (more than some cuts of beef); Gila monsters, $10 a dozen, and lizards, $3 a hundred.

Needless to state, these creatures are not in demand as food but, according to Frank Weinberg, who furnishes the quotations, additions to collections of reptiles in Europe, where many individuals, as well as menageries, keep them both as fads and as a business.

Like almost everything else, the reptile market suffered because of the war, but, now that it is ended, Mr. Weinberg says, the demand is on the increase.

He keeps his stock in his backyard, where his wife handles the creatures and helps in their care as fearlessly as does her husband.

A dangerous business? No, according to Mr. Weisberg.

"No more dangerous than driving an automobile," he declared. "Of course, you must be careful in handling the poisonous ones. But most of the reptiles people fear are not dangerous, at all."

He reached into a glass box, thrust his hand under some dry leaves and brought out a large lizard, squirming and trying to bite. He held its head to his lips. It closed its ugly mouth there.

"Perfectly friendly and harmless," said Mr. Weinberg. "See how it kisses me."

A long rattlesnake, which had been sounding a warning, struck, but stopped against the glass side of another box.

"He's a little nervous," said the reptile market man. "He has not been handled for some time."

He opened the box, took a handkerchief over the snake's head and quickly clasped the creature behind where its ears would have been had it had ears.

"He's a pretty good rattler," said Mr. Weinberg. "Worth two dollars anyway."

ORGANIZING A LABOR PARTY

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, O., July 28.—Delegates from ten states representing more than 2,000,000 organized workers will meet here after Labor Day to organize the American Labor Party, it has been announced by local proponents of the movement. The convention may also decide whether to nominate a national ticket in 1920.

An effort will be made to insert a plank in the platform calling for the repeal of the federal prohibition amendment, it is said. Other policies to be included in the platform may follow recommendations in resolutions adopted by the American Federation of Labor convention.

Delegates from Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Washington, Oregon, Montana, New York and Ohio are expected to attend the convention.

Glanders in the Cat Family.

Glanders is an ailment usually associated with horses, but an outbreak of this disease among the lions and tigers of the Rome Zoological garden is reported in the Annali d'Igiene. The disease is known to have been transmitted from horses to lions, tigers and leopards, and the domestic cat was shown susceptible by laboratory inoculation.

NO SAVING MONEY IN BOVILIA

(By Associated Press)

SANTA FE, N. M., July 28.—Saving money is a harder task in South America than in the United States, despite the higher salaries paid there, says Eugene Lujan, of Santa Fe, who recently resigned his position as clerk of the American legation at La Paz, Bolivia.

In a letter to his father, who is assistant secretary of state of New Mexico, young Lujan points out that, though one can earn more in South America than in North America, the cost of living is higher. Shoes which sell for $6 in the United States cost $12 in Bolivia. Board and room amount to $80 a month, laundry at least $12 and everything else in proportion.

"Although Spanish is the official language," Lujan writes, "there are many dialects, for the population is considerably mixed. We have the Ayamaras, who are pure Indians, the cholos, or half-breeds, the Bolivians, the English, French and the Germans."

BELGIANS WILL ENTERTAIN KINGS OF TWO NATIONS

(Correspondence Associated Press)

BRUSSELS, July 2.—The Belgians hope to receive in their capital this summer King George of England and King Alfonso of Spain. The English king expects to come immediately after he visits Zeebrugge where he will pay tribute to the Britains naval efforts on the coast. Details of Alfonso's visit probably will be arranged later.
