MARGIN TRADING NOT APRROVED

By a decision of the supreme court in the case of Frank H. Neilson vs. Nellie Richardson Rebard, the appellant, the lower court is reversed and the case will go back for retrial.

During the boom of 1914 when Jumbo Extension went from a few cents to $4 a share, Richardson, who conducted a brokerage shop in Goldfield, carried a number of customers on margins, among the margin stocks being a lot of Jumbo Ext. Richardson died suddenly and at the time believed he was "short" on the market. The estate, however, showed that, by the revival of the stock market, had he lived he would have been on "easy" street.

Unpaid for stocks were carried for Neilson, and he sued the estate for the share of profits in Jumbo Ext., and the dividends, less the purchase price when ordered. The lower court sustained the contention of Neilson and ordered a distribution according to the plea entered in all some 2,000 margin bought shares of Jumbo Ext., amounting to several thousand dollars.

Under the decision of the supreme court a reversal of the lower court is ordered and it is further stated that the complaint fails to show a cause of action." The opinion is by Chief Justice Coleman, with the two other members concurring.

MADGE KENNEDY IN LATEST COMEDY-DRAMA.

Madge Kennedy's newest Goldwyn picture, "Strictly Confidential," which will be shown at the Butler today, tells the story of a provincial English actress who marries a lord, whose servants are all relatives of hers. Early in the story she comes to the lord's castle, an orphan; but the rigid decorum of the servants makes life impossible for her. She runs away, goes back to the stage and makes an instantaneous hit. During this phase of her career, she meets an artist and falls in love with him. She does not know that he is the Lord Bantock from whose castle she escaped not very long before. However, they are married and return to his ancestral home to live. There she new Lady Bantock finds herself hedged about by her relatives who are now her servants. Insumerable humorous complications result from the old butler's attempts to curb the happy spirit of his niece, now his mistress. The old fellow believes firmly in certain family traditions, which his niece cannot continue. The plot trips along with the airy personality of Miss Kennedy, creating some of the funniest comedy moments ever filmed. Added to the feature Pathe News, show an winner of $20,000 Kentucky Derby, battle with airplanes and wild ducks, to protect rice fields in California; couple married in fast flying seaplane; "Hello, New York," cries Michael Gilhooley, aged 14, and champion stowaway of five continents.

Tomorrow, beautiful Elsie Ferguson in "The Marriage Price" deals with the trials of a young society woman.

Remember, Mary Pickford in her latest and best picture, "Daddy Longlegs," Monday.

FRESH MENACE FOR RUSSIANS

(Correspondence Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The "greens" of Russia, often incorrectly referred to as the "green army" constitute a force that must be seriously reckoned with, in the opinion of Russian experts at the British foreign office. Their opinion is based upon a report of one of their secret agents who for months has been in a position to observe such conditions in bolshevik Russia.

The majority of the "greens" are deserters from the bolshevik armies but in their ranks may be found representatives of nearly every political element in the country except the bolsheviki. They have no governmental plans should they gain the upper hand, their one idea being to kill bolsheviki and Jews. They take no prisoners and care for none if the enemy's wounded, the agents say.

It is estimated that in the spring at least six percent of the bolshevik armies deserted. Augmented by their confederates they established headquarters in growing bands living off the country and obtaining ammunition from bolshevik stores. Reports of the famous green army are so numerous and so hostile to the bolsheviki that there must be "greens" in every town and village.

The "greens" hands grow and during the summer spread far and wide to menace the bolsheviki.

Undoubtedly a goodly percentage of the "greens" will spend the winter in this country, the warmer as the severe end of Russian winter approaches, but officials here believe the "greens" will not be the menace next year that it will be more than likely next summer.

Mrs. Wilson is to be commended for reading to the president every day to inquire what ideas some folks have of affording a patient complete rest.

"Things will not be entirely right in the counter jump, the ham and egg wrestling are deserted. How they decorate the doublehead look to the sport writers."

EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL LOADS OF DRINK FOUND

AURORA, Hy., Nov. 6.—Ben Larsen of Aurora is not worried over wartime prohibition. He was arrested today on a charge of being intoxicated. He had such a good as the police asked him where he got it. "Mixed drinks," he mumbled. Here is what the police found in Larsen's pockets.

One bottle of full strength lemon extract.

One bottle of Bennett's lemon extract, 85 per cent alcohol.

One bottle of bay rum.

One bottle of denatured alcohol.

One bottle of peroxide of hydrogen.

One small "Old Quaker" whisky bottle, empty.

One bottle of Brilmont.

Some mixture!

BUSINESS OF STATE BANKS INCREASES GREATLY IN YEAR

According to reports made by twenty six Nevada state banks to the state comptroller, these financial institutions on September 12 of this year had total resources of $21,877,520.65. The items of assets of postal savings and security funds ran up to $[illegible]. Liabilities were $19[illegible]. The banks were carrying on their books $[illegible] in undivided profits. Total loans and discounts were $1[illegible] and $831,917.74 represented the total cash on hand.

A substantial increase in volume of banking business is thus shown over one of a year ago. The totals of resources and liabilities at the time of business August 31, 1918, were $19,[illegible] for the twenty-three state banks of Nevada. A year ago these banks had deposits aggregating $[illegible]. The overdrafts, however, totaling in $31,06526, were practically no more. Undivided profits were $[illegible] less, totaling only $[illegible] at the end of August. The loans and discounts were then $[illegible]. The cash on hand was $627,[illegible], which was $74,[illegible] less than the like total on September 12 of this year.—Carson News.
