SCIENTIST TO HUNT FOR EGG OF BLUE GOOSE

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, Mass., June 7.—A hunt for the egg of the blue goose will be one of the odd errands of the Donald B. McMillan expedition to Baffin land this year, it is hoped by ornithologists who assisted. The adult blue goose, a variety with a gray-slate-brown body that gets its name from the blue-gray of its wing coverts, is not uncommon in the United States, but its breeding haunts have been a subject of much speculation among bird lovers and its nest and eggs have never been observed.

An announcement that on his last trip to the world he had secured specimens of these geese aroused the interest of ornithologists [illegible] with the result [illegible] of the scientists [illegible] and [illegible] the present expedition [illegible] commissioned to be on the lookout specially for them [illegible] connection with his other field work.

The price that one of these eggs, collector stands to realize, may well command this and have gained it, but judging from the enthusiasm displayed in natural history circles over the subject, the goose that laid the golden egg will have a claim on this bird.

Baffin Land is believed to be the greatest breeding place of bird life in the far north. In its 195,000 square miles of arctic wilderness by white men are lakes which the Eskimos describe as six days' sledge journey in length, at least 100 miles and abounding in wildfowl.

The McMillan expedition will leave here in July in the Schooner Bowdoin especially built for the purpose and will spend probably 14 months in a study of Baffin Land along various scientific lines.

HOT WATER BEING SOLD IN ENGLAND

(By Associated Press)

HULL, England, June 7.—The shortage of coal has been so serious here during the strike of miners that the people were unable to obtain hot water. To meet this situation, the National Kitchen, which happened to have a supply of coal, sold hot water to the working people at one-half penny a bucket.

RAISE LARGE FUND TO SAVE A GIANT ELM

(By Associated Press)

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 6.—Citizens here have raised a large fund to save a giant elm [illegible] wood chopper [illegible] more than a [illegible] a young soldier [illegible] French and Indian wars slept for the night at the Bodwell homestead in this city. He was without money but in the morning he sought to do something in return for the kindness shown him. Mrs. Bodwell mentioned that more shade was needed at the southwest corner of the house and so the soldier went into the woods, brought back an elm sapling, planted it, and went his way.

The self-called heller sheltered through the years by the elm grown to splendid proportions, recently chanced back and went want on that the tree ought to be cut down. A movement to save the ancient landmark was started, the owner agreeing to sell the house, grounds and out profit. Schoolchildren have had a large part in raising the required $10,000. It is proposed to use the house as the headquarters of a historical society but the purchase of the building is only incidental to the saving of the famous elm.

Maybe those railroads that have barred penny ante on their passenger trains are some of those that have been losing.
