

Origin of Familiar Phrases.
The words, "In the midst of life we are in death," were first used in the burial service of the Episcopal church (in English), and the sentiment is expressed in the earlier service books of the Greek and Roman churches. The sentence was probably adopted from one of the older churches.
The origin of the phrase, "Robbing Peter to pay Paul," is thus given: In the time of Edward VI. of England, many of the lands of St. Peter, at Westminster, were seized by his Majesty's ministers and courtiers, but, in order to reconcile the people to the robbery, they always allowed a portion of the lands to be appropriated to ward the repairs of St. Paul's Church; hence the phrase, "Robbing Peter to pay Paul."
The saying, "He has an axe to grind," comes from essays from the desk of Poor Robert, the Scribe. In an article called "Who'll turn the Grindstones?" written after the manner of Ben Franklin's "Too Much for Your Whistle." The author was C. Miner. The essay was published at Doylestown, Pa., in 1816.
It introduces a boy who was induced by a clever fiction to turn the grindstone for another person to grind his axe, and is spoken of as those who wish to appear generous while they are only serving their own selfish ends. He says:
"When I see a merchant over-pole to his customers, begging them to taste a little of his brandy, and throwing half his goods on the counter, to make it 'That man has an axe to grind.'"
A man who appears to be thinking is said to be in a brown study. This should rather be a "brow study," from the German braun, a brown—au, in that dialect, having the sound of the ou in our word "our," as Austerlitz in English should be Ousterlitz.
"Turning the tables," must come from the game of backgammon, formerly called "The tables," and which were said to be turned upon a player to whom the fortune of the game was adverse. The loser would often insist on changing the dice, boxes, men and table, in the hope of getting better luck. Just as we have seen whist-playing dowagers, when they have had bad cards or bad play, get up, turn their chairs round, and resume their seats with a lively expectation.
"The phrase 'to die in the last ditch' was first employed, we believe, by William of Orange. 'Do you not see your country is lost?' said the Duke of Buckingham, who had been sent to negotiate at Hague, when England and France leagued against Holland. 'There is a sure way never to see it lost,' replied William, 'and that is—to die in the last ditch.'"
But a few are familiar with the oft-quoted expression, "The sword of Damocles." A courtier of the elder Dionysius, tyrant of Syracuse, having extolled the happiness caused by the possession of wealth and power, Dionysius gave him a striking illustration of the real nature of such seeming happiness by placing him at a table full of delicacies and surrounded by all the insignia of royalty; but in the midst of this banquet, Damocles chancing to look upward, saw a sharp and naked sword suspended over his head by a single horse-hair. A sight so alarming instantly changed his view of the felicity of kings.—Philo. Saturday Night.

Words of Wisdom.—Do a mean act in a mean way; so it will have a keener sting—for your own breast. But better not do it.
Men will never know us by our faith, for that is within us; but they know us by our works, which are visible to them.
Venture not into the company of those that are infected with the plague, no, though thou think thyself guarded with an antidote.
By one's self is evil done, and by one's self one suffers. By one's self evil is left undone, and by one's self one is purified. Purity and purity belong to one's self; no one can purify another.
The thief does not when they enemy faileth, and let not thine heart be glad when he stumbleth. A benevolent eye, humility of spirit, and a mind free from pride characterize the true disciples.
The loss of property is a kind of trial that brings more pain than any of us know. We call money trash and filthy lucre; yet even when the heart is not set upon it, the life depends upon it to such an extent as to make its withdrawal a real affliction. After a man has grown fixed in a kind of life amidst an abundance of means, it is like a revolution in his spirits, as well as toward his associates, to be brought to the condition of dependence.

The Sun.
NEW YORK, 1882.
The Sun for 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, retaining its identity, for many, big and little, and its position, contented and unshaken. Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good while it punishes the bad by the blistering beams of the persistently wicked.
The Sun of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of The Sun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country is the daily reality of the Sun's example.
The Sun of 1882 will be the same paper, but with a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.
We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with The Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Bohemia.
In politics we have declared opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of The Sun's political course.
The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary selections, constitute the intelligence complete. The Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.
Who does not know and read like The Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Goldmine of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, whose every line worth reading, new, and interesting enough to fill a pocket book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little? If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for The Sun.
Our terms are as follows:
For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, cash paid, is 55 cents a month, or $5.50 a year, or including the Sunday paper, all eight pages, 65 cents a month, or $6.50 a year, postage paid.
The Sunday Edition of The Sun is also furnished separately at $1.00 a year, postage paid.
The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.
Address: I. W. ENGLAND, Publisher of The Sun, New York City, Nov 24, 1881—82.

Rheumatism
Neuralgia, Sprains,
Pain in the Back and Side,
There is nothing more painful than these diseases; but the pain can be removed and the disease cured by use of Perry Davis' Pain Killer.
This remedy is not a cheap Hezian or Petroleum product that must be kept away from fire or heat to avoid danger of explosion, nor is it an untried experiment that may do more harm than good.
Pain Killer has been in constant use for forty years, and the universal testimony from all parts of the world is, it never fails. It not only cures a permanent cure, but it relieves pain almost instantaneously. Being a purely vegetable remedy, it is safe in the hands of the most inexperienced.
The record of cures by the use of PAIN KILLER would fill volumes. The following extracts from letters received show what those who have tried it think:
Edgar Gady, Owatonna, Minn., says: "About a year since my wife became subject to severe rheumatism. I procured Perry Davis' Pain Killer, which she immediately used, and in a few days she was cured."
I had been afflicted some years with rheumatism, and had tried many remedies, but without success. I procured Perry Davis' Pain Killer, and used it, and in a few days I was cured, and am now able to follow my usual avocations."
C. E. Walworth, Reno, Nev., writes: "I have used Perry Davis' Pain Killer for some time, and it has cured me of rheumatism, neuralgia, and sprains, and I can truly say that it is the best remedy I have ever used."
Perry Davis' Pain Killer is a purely vegetable remedy, and is safe in the hands of the most inexperienced. It is a cure for all the above named diseases, and is a valuable household remedy.
All druggists keep PAIN KILLER. Its price is so low that it is within the reach of all, and it will save many times its cost in doctors' bills. 25c, 50c, and $1.00 a bottle.
