NO BARGAINING.

[illegible] Harding's attitude toward the Washington conference on Pacific questions now progresses [illegible] the Harding program provides [illegible] equality be added to the agenda. This is predicated on the fact that on two previous occasions when Japan has sought a decision on this question the statesmen have [illegible] their steps from which [illegible] further retrogressing [illegible] circumstances might compel it to be favorable.

Three [illegible] were the peace conferences at Paris and the assembly of the league of nations at Geneva. At [illegible] of these places were the Japanese extremely equipped to have their [illegible] the rewriting governments [illegible] These instances demanded [illegible] accepted at Paris and [illegible] were submitted to the [illegible] at Geneva they [illegible] the Japanese delegate to press their demand. Besides that the United States was not a member of the league society, so what was the use.

The Japanese will go to Washington [illegible] with the understanding that this conference can be turned into a forum for her claims. Shantung, Yap, Siberia and many other issues may be used as pawns in the game in which the Japs, as far as the Nipponese are concerned, is to be the admission of their nationals into all countries, immigrants without discrimination founded on race. This is the main chosen drawn by certain observers in the British capital.

The issues which President Harding is expected to communicate to suitable to engage the minds of the statesmen to gather in Washington will be discussed and settled. There is any settlement without reference to any questions of [illegible] equality. Each one of the Pacific problems is a question which stands [illegible] settled. If Japan raises the issue [illegible] another fight that is her [illegible] that we assure the Pacific [illegible] is a question which should [illegible] settled. So many days must be [illegible] If Japan raises the issue [illegible] another fight that is her [illegible] that we assure the Pacific [illegible] is a question which should [illegible] settled.

LIVING RIGHT MEANS LIVING LONG.

A newspaper paragraph which [illegible] a personal friend and golf companion of John D. Rockefeller predicts that A. C. Rockefeller will live to be the oldest man living or as far back as we can remember. The day was so far back when it was generally known that Mr. Rockefeller was a sufferer from indigestion. A friend's humorously stated wish was [illegible] all his money if he could live on crackers and milk.

Cares crack the man gloomily and predicted that he would not even encompass the traditional threescore and ten years allotted to man; but he has exceeded that limit by 12 years and is so vigorous that his Cleveland physician does not hesitate to say that he will reach the century mark.

The reason for Mr. Rockefeller remaining on earth so long after the time croakers set for his demise more than likely is his sane and orderly way of living. He once suffered from indigestion but does so no more. He may have at one time been required to restrict his diet to "crackers and milk," but he now can eat anything that is edible, according to the physician, who says he will live many years longer. We have no knowledge of what Mr. Rockefeller's diet may have been at any time in his life, but we are certain that if conservation of his health required any limitation he adhered to it strictly. In other words, he did not try to eat bologna sausage if his stomach said "only crackers and milk, please." Even now, the medical man says, the capitalist eats sparingly.

But that is not all—his daily life is orderly and sane, run on a schedule with a time for everything. He has time for work and has time for play and it probably is proper arrangements of his labor, feeding and recreation that makes him hale and vigorous at an age when most men have passed out of this life.

Elegance in Accessories

[illegible] with novelties like the two pictured here in which plain satin ribbon and various figured ribbons are combined and the bags mounted on metal mountings. The mountings will outwear the fabric, but will serve as well for new materials. An odd bag, suspended from the body of a doll, is shown in the picture, for wear while evening [illegible]

Strings of beads are the most popular of all purely decorative dress accessories and those of cut crystals are only the universally worn strands of pearl beads. The glass beads are made in many colors, both in clear and opaque varieties; these, their bearers are inclined to be more expensive than pearls. Not beads for every-day wear, but a pretty novelty in accessories, is a delicate and flexible band of filigree silver flowers or a crescent as a dress accessory for the arm.

Whatever house the king of England wants is his own property as long as he remains in it. It would be a most opportune time to have the plumber come with his bill for repairing the kitchen sink.
