OCEAN CURRENTS RESPONSIBLE FOR ALASKA'S WRECK

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 10.—A baffling phenomenon of ocean currents, tendencies, just discovered, probably accounts for the loss Saturday of the steamer Alaska and 47 lives off the California coast, it is announced by Colonel Lester E. DIVIDEND HAS FINE SHOWING ON 100 LEVEL

What gives every [illegible] of the Tonopah mining district an optimistic tinge is the discovery has just been made on the Dividend property in the Divide district in drifting [illegible] from the 100-foot level of the [illegible] shaft, a big body of mineralized quartz, showing occasional streaks of high grade ore, has been encountered and assays on picked samples show values running as high as $150 a ton. The vein matter is badly broken up, according to E. P. Cullinan, general manager of the property, but the showing greatly resembles that found in the Tonopah Extension where high grade ore has been extracted during the past year.

In exploring the vein it was discovered that the drift was 10 feet off the line, and when this error was found the course was slightly altered. The vein in question is unquestionably the extension of the Divide Extension vein, from which such highly satisfactory results have been coming of late. The Dividend lies to the east and north of the Divide Extension, and in the event that the showing continues to improve, as is now anticipated, then development will be instituted on both the second and third levels. The new shaft has a depth of 400 feet, while the original shaft has a depth of 850 feet.
