WINGFIELD TO OPEN VIRGINIA CITY BANK

A bank will be opened at Virginia City about September 1st by George Wingfield in the old Bank of California building which housed the Virginia City branch of the big California institution in the early days.

Mr. Wingfield purchased the building Monday and expects to have the bank in readiness to do business within another month. He left on Tuesday night for the east on a three weeks' trip and on his return will complete plans for opening the bank.

It has been several years since Virginia City had a bank, although the Bank of California maintained an agency there until about three years ago. The new bank will be capitalized for $25,000 and will probably be known as the Virginia City bank.
