LONE MOUNTAIN FIND ATTRACTS PROSPECTORS

News of a new mineral discovery that promises to occupy the attention of mining men with no little degree of interest was given out this morning by Dan H. Luce. The find was made on the west slope of Lone mountain, 23 miles west of Tonopah, and six miles north of McLean station.

The property that is attracting attention consists of a group of four claims known as the Wabash, and is owned by Fred Wilson, old-time miner of the Tonopah district, who has been prospecting development for a long period. In trenching on the hills for the purpose of locating the source of rich float found near the base of the mountain, Mr. Wilson is reported to have uncovered an ore vein that has a width of 11 feet, with [illegible] wall in evidence. While [illegible] samples have been had, it is generally believed that the entire 11 feet will carry [illegible] close to $30 a ton in silver, gold and copper. Unlike other properties in that immediate section, the ore is devoid of lead values. The ore now exposed [illegible] in a manganese formation, but it is believed that when the limestone wall is reached that silver will be encountered.

When development was first started on this property, it appeared was necessary to open adjacent the find the other four claims of "float" that surround this hill. Wilson decided [illegible] further up the cliff where he should open up the vein of ore, and it was then the big vein of ore was encountered.

The old Alpine property, which made quite a heavy production a number of years ago, is owned by the heirs of T. J. Lynch, well known mine man of this district, lies about [illegible] miles to the north of the Wabash holdings, but again the latter, the Alpine ore always carried good values in lead. Another property adjoining, considerable north, but which lies to the south of the Goldfield, which is attracting attention at the present time, but the showing is reported as being quite satisfactory.

During the past week a number of mining men have visited the district and made locations, and it is expected that the district will be swarming with prospectors in the next few days. Samples of ore from the Wabash were brought in to Tonopah and placed on exhibition this morning in one of the local brokerage offices.
