DILLEN TRIAL IS ATTRACTION OF TONOPAHNS

Continued from Page One

The proceeding Zampini was called to the stand for the state and a few questions were asked touching upon his knowledge of the quarrel and corroborating the testimony that he gave before the coroner's jury.

Jim Ross, the second star witness called by the state, testified in part as follows:

"I am one of Nye county's Ex-sheriffs. I was sheriff at Ely. I came to Tonopah. He became acquainted with the Dillens in July. Knew Wallace Williams and saw him the last time at the Rex Casino fire. Mr. Williams was in the gambling house when I asked the witness about one night Dillen and his wife came home to the Globe hotel and Dillen seemed mad and was talking intimate with Wallace Williams. Dillen said he would kill Williams if he had to kill him himself. Later on Dillen wanted me to go to Williams still at Frazier well and help kill him. The Whiskey was made. When we were nearing the Midway shaft I told him I had business and was trying to bring something to town. On getting out of the cage I advised him to go back home and do nothing. He then said he to go back home and talk sense of the old lady meaning Dillen's wife. Later in the evening Dillen returned to his home and showed me his gun. There were three empty car tridges and he said: 'I got the son of a ——.'

Before Ross went to bed Dillen did not say anything about the little gun that he brought back with him that belonged to Williams. The next day Dillen showed the witness the Williams gun with the powder all gone from the cartridges and the bullets replaced. In other words witness stated that Dillen had taken out the bullets of Williams gun and removed the powder and then replacing the bullets. Witness said that next day Dillen wanted him to go to Frazier well and help him distill some whisky as he did not know much about it and that Dillen would divide 50-50.

"I went with him," said the witness. "To Frazier well where the cabin is and on entering the place found blood upon the floor and on the table leg. The top of the table was covered with oilcloth and also blood was showing in a chair. He showed me how he killed Williams. Williams was sitting at the table and he shot him three times in the face. I told Dillen he had better confess it all. I started in to distill the whisky. The chair that Williams was sitting in Dillen broke up and buried it about 25 paces south of the house where he met his death. I saw him bury the chair. I was making 'moon.' He was cleaning up blood on the floor. When he got through cleaning up the blood he came back to town. I stayed until 6 o'clock in the evening making 'moon.' He came out after me. I was out there 15 days, or until Sept. 9. On this day he said he had two jugs of whisky to deliver. One jug was dirty and he told me to go to the wash and get some gravel to put in and that it would clean the jug. While I was doing this Dillen came up behind me and said: 'You have said your last prayer.' He had a gun in his hand. I tried to talk him out of it and he fired one shot at me and it missed. This was on Sept. 9, the last day I was there. He was about eight paces from me when he fired. I never saw him afterwards. I circled around the foothills and walked into town. The chair which was exhumed was admitted in evidence."

Exhibit No. 4, the gun owned by Mrs. Dillen, and which Williams had, was offered as exhibit No. 4 and Dillen's large 48 Colt was admitted and marked as exhibit No. 6. This is the gun that Dillen Ross said he killed Williams with. A door opening with a newly made bullet hole with bullet embedded, was offered in evidence and marked as exhibit No. 7. Also the table at which Williams was sitting was offered in evidence and marked exhibit No. 8.

Witness stated that the second day after the murder that Dillen sandpapered the floor and the spots on the table to remove the blood stains. Dillen did not tell witness why he killed Williams.

At the conclusion of the direct testimony the witness was turned over to Attorney Joseph T. Murphy for cross-examination.

AMUSEMENTS

OSCAR WILDE'S DRAMATIC MASTERPIECE

"A Woman of No Importance" which will be shown at the Butler today will prove a delight to theatergoers who like their photo drama presented in settings which are artistically beautiful. "A Woman of No Importance" has its greatest appeal because of the unusual strength of its story. Produced as a play many years ago in London and later in New York with Rose Coghlan leading a remarkable cast the play has long been a favorite among theater goers in every corner of the English speaking world. It differs diametrically from the average screen story in that it sets out definitely to follow to the bitter end a recital which is not always pleasant and makes some of the developments which might have been made had the director decided to give his audience what he might have had abundant reasons to believe they would have liked better. It is an unusual picture however that will appeal to or entertain the children. Added to the program the latest Pathe News. Tomorrow Thomas Meighan with Theodore Roberts in a crook play "If You Believe It It's So" starring Dorothy Phillips in "Hurricane's Gal."
