Plans for Academy Smoker

For probably the first time in its long and eventful history, the Harrisburg Academy will have an "Academy night" next Monday, at which the alumni and former students of the institution, which owes its origin to John Harris, the founder of Harrisburg, will gather and talk over old times. The arrangements are being made by Dr. Arthur E. Brown, the headmaster, and a committee of the younger alumni, and every effort has been made to reach every man who was ever registered as a student at the Academy.

It is recognized that a school which has had such a long career as the Academy must necessarily have some former students whose names are not on the lists which have been gathered in the last few months, and the committee earnestly hopes that, whether any former students receive invitations or not, they will show up at the Academy on December 28.

Already many of the former students have announced they will be on hand. There will be reunions of students who attended the Academy back in the sixties and the seventies and the men of the eighties and the nineties will be out in force to show the students of the last decade that their interest in the old school is still strong.

The committee in charge has requested that former students who have not received invitations send in their names so that the list may be made complete. The names may be sent to Dr. Brown or to John Smith Ehrman B. Mitchell and William C. Dunlap, the committee actively in charge of the arrangements.

Edward Gough, 1301 South Cameron street, and Raymond McCann, 572 Race street, students at Lehigh University, have returned home for the holidays.

Old Time Sea Food

A glance at the fish shops to-day arouses the reflection that one could have fasted with far more variety in the middle ages. Where is now the whale of yesteryear that was roasted and served on the spit, or boiled with peas, the tongue and tail being the choicest parts The porpoise, too, was a royal dish, roasted whole and eaten with mustard, when Henry VII was King, and so was the grampus or sea wolf. The lamprey, after its one dramatic and regicidal performance, seems to have lost its popularity, and nobody nowadays is anxious to eat the limpet. Many fish, however, seem to have endured throughout the ages, such as the sprat and herring, eaten especially in Lent; the oyster (officially a fish) and the anchovy, sternly anathematized by old Tobias Venner in 1620 as "food for drunkards."—London Standard.

LARGE PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

Then Whole Body Broke Out In Large Red Blotches. Could Not Sleep for Torture. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Skin Smooth.

2733 Ingram St., Philadelphia, Pa.—"My face began to itch and hurt and then large pimples came all over it. The pimples festered. Then my whole body broke out with large red blotches and I could get no rest at night. I could not sleep for the torture and then I had to scratch.

"I tried several kinds of Cold Creams, with no relief. I could hardly bear my clothes to touch me. I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and sent for a sample. After bathing in hot water with Cuticura Soap and applying Cuticura Ointment night and morning for a few days I found relief and could rest at night. Then I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks' time my skin was as fair and smooth as a lily." (Signed) Mrs. Alice Queen, Mar. 11, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

LIVES OF THREE SAVED BY BOARD

Death Sentences of a Trio of Murderers Are Commuted to Life Imprisonment

ANOTHER SESSION WILL BE NEEDED

Old Board of Pardons, Unable to Complete Its Work Before Christmas, Will Hold Its Final Meeting on Wednesday, January 6

As the session of the Board of Pardons was about to close yesterday afternoon, Lieutenant Governor Reynolds announced that owing to the fact that all of the cases had not been considered, because of the illness of Secretary McAfee, another session will be held on Wednesday, January 6, when all of the business of the Board will be closed up and nothing left for the new Board, which will come into existence on January 19.

The last request made of the Board yesterday was that it take up the case of David Kauffman, the young man who was convicted of playing the flim-flam game in Harrisburg about a year ago and sent to the penitentiary. Kauffman's name was not on the regular list, and it had been understood that District Attorney Stroup intended to oppose it, but he was not present. David B. Griffith, a Philadelphia attorney, asked that the case be heard, and Lieutenant Governor Reynolds, speaking for the Board, declined to consider it unless Mr. Stroup was on hand. Griffith said he would call Mr. Stroup on the phone and have him on hand in a short time, but after using the phone in an adjoining room he returned with the information that Mr. Stroup was very busy on other matters and could not be present.

"We are very sorry that this case could not be heard," said Mr. Griffith. "This young man's father is waiting for him in New York, and—"

"Yes," broke in Lieutenant Governor Reynolds, "and there are a good many other fathers who are waiting on their sons whose cases have been heard, but their cases are on the calendar in regular order."

That settled the Kauffman case until January when it will come up as unfinished business.

Pardons as Christmas Gifts

The pardons the Board recommended will go to the Governor as soon as the reasons can be made out, and an effort will be made to get the men pardoned out of prison before Christmas Day.

The board recommended commutation of the death sentences of Malena Massa, Schuylkill, condemned to be hanged on January 5, after he had been respited five times to allow his case to be considered; of Isaiah Crosson, Fayette, condemned to be hanged on January 7, and of Germania Acitellio, Clearfield, sentenced to the electric chair.

To Rocco Tassone, Lancaster, condemned to be electrocuted, commutation was denied.

Gregario Rizzato, Philadelphia, sententenced to electrocution, was granted a rehearing, and the cases of Raphael Perrie, Philadelphia, and A. S. Von Neida, granted commutation some years ago, and now asking pardon, were held under advisement.

Pardons Recommended

Pardons were recommended in the following cases:

George Foster, forgery, Berks; Antonio Dinora and Bendeitto Tripodo, second degree murder, Lackawanna; David Wilkinson, larceny, Delaware; John Leyhart, robbery, Philadelphia; James Yelletts, assault and battery, York; James J. Stromeyer, larceny, Philadelphia; Domio Peoro, robbery, Northampton; George Wilcox, robbery, Bucks; Frank Wallin, perjury, Philadelphia; John Bonner, illegal sale of liquor, Carbon; John Loar, burglary, Allegheny; William Campbell, assault and battery, Wayne; August Carie, manslaughter, Allegheny; George C. LAWYER AND CLIENT IN JAIL

Judge in Camden Doubts Sanity of Attorney W. T. Rex and Saloonkeeper Was Drunk

Camden, Dec. 23.—There was an exciting time yesterday in the Camden court of common pleas, when Judge Boyle committed an attorney to jail to await examination as to his sanity, and imprisoned his client, a saloonkeeper, who appeared in court in such a state of intoxication that he did not know what he was doing or saying.

The lawyer in the case was William T. Rex, at one time one of the brightest of the younger members of the bar. The saloonkeeper, Ernest Steubing, was fined $10 for contempt of court and was sent to jail until he became sober. Rex represented Steubing, proprietor of the Gibbsboro hotel, at Gibbsboro, N. J., and he sought a renewal of his license.

The hotel property is owned by William Snyder, who filed a remonstrance against the application. He contended that Steubing had violated the provisions of the lease, continually was in a state of intoxication and, therefore, was not a fit person to conduct a hotel.

Yesterday, when the Court called Steubing's name, he rose unsteadily to his feet.

"Here I am," he said. "I want to ask you a question." Judge Boyle saw the man's condition and told Rex that his client had come into court drunk.

"Oh, no; he ain't drunk," replied Rex. "I can get some people sitting here who will say that he is not in that condition."

"Mr. Rex, are you trying to flim-flam the Court?" said Judge Boyle, as he directed a constable to take charge of Steubing. The Court then denied the application for the license, fined Steubing $10 for contempt, and directed the Sheriff to keep him in jail until sobered up.

After disposing of the case Judge Boyle left the bench and, going over to Rex, said: "In my mind there is a question as to your sanity; I am going to have you examined."

Judge Boyle then went to the office of Prosecutor Kraft. After a talk with Mr. Kraft, Detective Gribbin took Attorney Rex to the jail to await an examination as to his sanity, and also to answer for failing to observe conditions imposed when Judge Boyle, several weeks ago, freed him after he had admitted swindling a client.
