Stocks and Bonds

NEW YORK—Financial and manufacturing interests received assurance from the government last week of at least one year of trust business. These assurances were given in the shape of the report which promises record commanding productions.

Whatever doubt there was concerning some of the crop was removed by the publication of the report.

It is estimated that the leading crops terms raised this year will be sold at an advance of $1,000,000,000, compared with the total money received this year. Such an increase in the purchasing power of the farmers can not help but be reflected in larger purchases by the others of the soil. Larger buying by the farmers will give additional business to the industrial corporations and railroads.

It was therefore only natural that stocks of industrial and railroad corporations should in many instances begin to discount the greater earnings expected this year. Several issues reached new high records for this movement. While all industries are showing improvement, it would not be making a misstatement to saying that the business done by the steel companies is probably the greatest in their history.

This was partly reflected by the unfilled tonnage statement issued last week by the United States Steel corporation. Orders on the books of the corporation at the end of September were the greatest on record, with the exception of June, 1907, when orders received from subsidiaries were also counted.

One large independent steel company advanced the prices of pipes and structurals $1 a ton, and this increase is expected to be followed by the other large concerns.

Announcement that the supply of copper metal in the United States on October 1 was 18,000,000 pounds greater than on September 1 was construed by copper producers as favorable, in as much as it will tend to keep the price of the metal below an increase.

The Amalgamated Copper Company is expected to increase its dividend in view of the large profits being received on copper sold at present prices and the greater income it is receiving from the Anaconda Copper Company.

Europe continued to liquidate American securities this week and it is estimated that the foreigners have sold 350,000 shares of American stocks in New York within the last ten days. The money to be received from the sale of these securities is estimated at about $20,000,000. The incentive for the selling of American stocks by Europe is found in the Balkan war. Large American banking institutions, however, can not see how the Balkan war can interrupt the prosperity now in progress in this country.

No apprehension or anxiety is felt in connection with the money market.

The advance in call rates on Thursday caused little concern, for many bankers are of the opinion that time money before the end of the year will rule close to 7 per cent. The demand for time loans is due to the fact that the money borrowers recently took more than they actually needed.

Grain

CHICAGO.—There was a reflection of continued unrest abroad in the strength shown by the Liverpool wheat market, coupled with the weakness in the London stock market today. Conditions point to a continuation of an unsettled state in the Balkans and this will more than likely cause an irregular broadstuffs situation at Chicago and elsewhere.

While the export sales of wheat from day to day are out of very large volume, they are much larger than is generally known. Buyers are anxious to keep the grain world from knowing exactly what is being done in the matter of takings for foreign shipment and purchases. It is said, are made with the understanding that all transactions in breadstuffs will be kept under cover until at least a week ago. The situation in wheat may be called abnormal. We have raised a crop of 730,000,000 bushels in the United States and still there are no accumulations of this grain in any position. Because of this state of affairs it is an easy matter for the "bull committees" of La Salle street to swing prices upward or downward to suit their own sweet will.

There is a lack of public speculation, and as is always the case which professionals are the only ones in the market, they stick together not unlikely as many sheep. They are either on the bull or the bear side in a bunch and the selling as well as the buying is done from day to day. These unsatisfactory conditions will continue until there is something in the market to influence them one way or the other.

Wheat prices gained 1¾@2¼ cents during the last week and there are many in the trade who believe that values will do better for both the December and May as these futures are held by the strongest bull concerns in the Chicago market.

Now that Arthur Cutten is out of the way on the short side of corn and the market is in the hands of James A. Patten, and the Armour Grain Company, there is likelihood that a movement in the way of profit taking by these big people will be seen from time to time.

It is expected that the shorts in December corn will experience more than less trouble in securing enough of the contract grade to even up their position and in this event prices will be bid up considerably higher than those now prevalent.

There are many in the trade who believe that corn will sell to a lower level in case the receipts increase. An export business of considerable size has been enjoyed of late and in addition an Eastern shipping demand has been seen. In case of a temporary lessening in the buying power and with good weather, receipts are likely to increase and prices will doubtless seek a lower level.

Those in the provision trade who put on heavy short lines of lard at a price considerably below the present level are now covering as fast as possible. As compared with a few weeks ago the situation in provisions has changed almost completely. Those in the trade who were most bearish at that time are now to be seen on the bull side. Those who were heavy sellers are now good buyers. Foreigners are taking more of our provisions but the South is a free buyer of the entire list.

Livestock

Receipts Saturday.

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
Fort Worth	500	800	400
Chicago	1,000	7,000	1,000
Kansas City	300	1,500	2,400
St. Louis	1,500	4,400	2,300
Oklahoma City	500

Union Stock Yards, San Antonio.

There were few traders on the market Saturday in search of live stock supplies and the early session of the market was featureless. Commission men received on consignment a more handful of stock in each division. The early run sealward found the price list steady. Beef cows topped at $4, calves at $4.50 and hogs around $9. No sheep or goats were offered.

Taken as a whole the past week's activities on this market have been fully to the liking of all parties. Receipts have been more liberal than in some time, and while the quality shown hardly has been up to expectations, there generally has been an early clearance in all divisions. For the week best cows have sold as high as $4.25, calves at $5 and hogs at $8.25. Under normal conditions the market will open up at this range Monday.

The cold snap Saturday will serve to increase the meat consumption of the city. Packers are carrying only light supplies of meat in their coolers and they will be in a position to look with favor on almost anything in the butcher stock line the coming week for this reason.

Cattle Squibs.

Al M. McFaddin, President of the Texas Cattle Raisers' association, was down at Houston the other day, where he gave out an interview which the "State Topics" prints under the head, "Free Meats and the Cattle Industry." The article is of some length, in which Mr. McFaddin gives a clear and comprehensive view of the present beef agitation. In part Mr. McFaddin is quoted as follows: "The free importation of foreign meats would not injure American packers, but would work great injury to the live stock industry in this country, as it would place the industry more completely in the hands of the beef trust than it now is. I cannot better express my views in this regard than to quote Mr. G. F. Bulsberger, vice president of the Bulsberger & Bose company of New York, who has recently returned from an investigation covering over several months of the meat market in Argentine and Europe in an interview regarding the movement to take the tariff off of foreign meats. Mr. Bulsberger authorized the following statement: 'These tariff attacks help the packer instead of hurting him. With his excellently-equipped selling organization, both at home and abroad, the American packer is able to handle the trade, regardless of the tariff. But the free entry of foreign meats would discourage live stock production of home cattle, and in the end the meat supply would be more inadequate to the growing demand than now.' Every Texas cattleman who has given the subject the least study, will agree with Mr. Bulsberger. Were it not for the beef trust, I would have no objection to the removal of the tariff on meats, for there would be nothing to fear from the free importation of foreign meat, as but little foreign meat would ever find its way to the United States. Without a tariff, however, the cattlemen of the United States would soon be at the mercy of the beef trust."

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture at last is as the "dope" straight on the beef situation and has stopped pointing to the enormous grain crops this year as proof positive of cheap meat this winter. On the other hand he is advising the consumer to learn to eat mutton, which is cheap compared with beefsteak and pork chops. The "Farm and Fireside" is fully in accord with Mr. Wilson's suggestions. "If mutton caring once becomes popular in our farmers' families, the rest of us soon will follow their lead. So has out the good chest of the farmer's table been proverbial through all the ages," it asks. "Hog and hominy have served a noble purpose in their day, but we are approaching an era of intensive farming where leads to a great extent will have succeeded beans, and lighter and more digestible foods will be needed by the rising generation of farmers graduated from our agricultural colleges."
